TIME TO TEAR DOWN.

Fair Demolition Committee to Appeal for Extension.

SIX MONTHS TO BE ASKED.

Move Is Inaugurated to Realize Better on Salvage.

EXPOSITION CLOSES OCT. 30.

Davis Says Foreigners Are Anxious to Remove Exhibits.

ALGER WANTS A NOVEMBER SHOW.

Six months or a year of additional time will probably be asked by World's Fair directors for tearing down the Exposition buildings at Jackson Park. The request for more time will have to be made of the Board of South Park Commissioners, from whom the Fair grounds were leased. A conference with the board will be held as soon as practicable.

This was the view of members of the Demolition committee who met last night in the Administration Building at Jackson Park. The committee was appointed some time ago to suggest a plan to the directors for winding up the affairs of the Exposition. The full committee consists of President Higinbotham, Director-General Davis, Director of Works Burnham, Solicitor-General Edwin Walker, and Director Henry B. Stone. At the meeting last night, which was the first formal one, there were present President Higinbotham, Director-General Davis, Director of Works Burnham, and Assistant Director of Works Graham. They discussed the situation until after 10 o'clock. Nothing was said during the evening about continuing the Fair after Oct. 30. That will be the last day, and exhibiters will be permitted to begin packing up their goods the following morning. Meanwhile, however, visitors will be permitted to enter the grounds at the regular admission fee of 50 cents. The South Park Commissioners, according to the terms of the ordinance by which the park was leased to the Exposition company, are to regain official possession of the grounds Jan. 1, 1894. After that date no admission fee can be charged.

State Commissioners Want Extensions.

It is not the intention of the committee to ask any extension of time for World's Fair purposes but in order to dispose of the buildings. As the ordinance stands State buildings in the north end of the park must be removed by May 1, 1894, and the main buildings a year later. Some of the State Commissioners have themselves asked for an extension. The Illinois board has secured it, and to be fair to all the South Park Board will be asked to make such general liberal extension as practicable.

With the main buildings there is even a greater necessity for more time. There are valuable iron arches in several of the structures which can be used for depot and other railroad purposes. The committee was of the opinion last night that, if it were obliged to dump all its salvage on the market at once, it would be glutted. It is thought there are no would-be purchasers who think the Exposition company is in a hole and must sell out within a short time, and thus perhaps at a great sacrifice. But it is to avoid this condition that the South Park Commissioners will be conferred with.

"I don't know what the Commissioners will do," said Col. Davis, "but they might materially aid us in realizing on salvage."

Mr. Burnham favored more time last night, but said if necessary the buildings could all be razed by next May. After Nov. 1 Mr. Burnham will discontinue his service with the Exposition company. He has previously made this statement and last night he let it be understood that he was in earnest. His assistant, Mr. Graham, will probably succeed to his present superior officer's duties.

Nothing definite has been determined as to what would become of the passes to the grounds now in use, but Col. Davis said there would probably be an extension.

Must See the Fair This Month.

The one point emphasized by last night's meeting was that visitors who wish to see the Exposition in its entirety must do so this month. The desire on the part of thousands to see a prolongation through next year will have to be disregarded as impracticable. Appropriations by State and foreign governments have been exhausted. The foreigners are clamoring to go home. When it is understood that they contributed about four-fifths of the exhibits their withdrawal means the ruin of the displays. The Director-General has in his office scores of requests for packing the morning after Columbus day, and they will be delivered as soon as practicable. The removal, however, will be slow. There will be no such rush as characterized installation. Then exhibiters worked night and day. In getting out they will not be afforded such facilities. After the Fair closes the electric lights will be cut off with the exception of such as are needed for patrol service, and it may be many months before the last exhibit gets out of Jackson Park.

Alger for a November Fair.

Ex-Gov. Alger of Michigan writes from Detroit the following letter to Director Eugene Pike under date of Oct. 17:

> Referring to our conversation at Jackson Park last week, you will remember I expressed a hope that the Exposition would be continued through November, or as long as the weather permits. I have conversed with many people since returning here, and all are of the opinion that it would be an excellent thing for the country and for the Exposition if it could be continued for a time. The value of it is, I think, growing in the minds of the people, and there seems to be an increasing desire and determination to visit it before it closes. The railroads are already overtaxed, and the crowd will increase. I am sure, instead of diminishing during the remainder of October, unless the time is extended. Arrangements have been made to send 1,000 newsboys from Detroit, which, I presume will be double in number from the State at large, and I hope may be duplicated by other States; but nothing can be done by the railroads in the matter during this month. It is a great pity that every man and woman, young and old, in this country cannot see that marvel of the world before it closes. Such an opportunity has never been given to any people at any age, and probably will not be repeated in this generation. Sincerely yours,
>
> R. A. Alger.

CHRYSANTHEMUM SHOW NOV. 4-15.

Evidences That It Will Afford a Remarkable Display of the "Golden Flower."

The chrysanthemum show will be held in the Horticultural Building Nov. 4-15. This was decided yesterday afternoon at a joint meeting of representatives of the Chicago Horticultural Society and the Chrysanthemum Association of America, at which W. H. Chadwick presided. The show bids fair to be one of the largest and best in every respect ever held in this part of the country. Dealers and growers in all sections of the West are enthusiastic over it and the committees in charge of the arrangements are receiving evidences of hearty support from them. At yesterday's meeting the contract drawn up by the Exposition authorities was accepted, and committees were appointed as follows:

On Management—W. H. Chadwick, Chairman: W. C. Egan, Secretary; Robert Craig of Philadelphia, J. A. Pettigrew, J. T. Anthony, E. G. Hill of Richmond, Ind., James Dean of Bay Ridge, N. Y.

On Premium—James Dean, E. G. Hill, Robert Craig, J. C. Vaughan, J. T. Anthony.

Press—George E. Vicker, John Thorpe, W. R. Smith, G. L. Grant, Fred Kraust, H. L. Berhaffen.

Robert Craig was made manager of the show. The Fair authorities have decided to give forty medals for the best exhibits and the society has a guaranteed fund of $6,000 which will be offered in premiums. It is probable the premium list will be got up in artistic form as a souvenir of the World's Fair chrysanthemum show.

New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Indianapolis, Milwaukee, Detroit, Buffalo, Baltimore, and Jersey City have agreed to send specimens. Chicago of course will exhibit more than any other city. Canada, as in everything else, will be conspicuous.

The lowest estimate is that 300 varieties and 1,500 specimens will be shown.

"At the inception of the enterprise it was proposed to have the greatest chrysanthemum show ever held in the world, and I think it probable there will be no disappointment," said Uncle John. "We have the material on hand to give the flowers a better setting than they have ever had before, and the effect cannot be other than pleasing."

The financial success of the enterprise, it is said, will depend upon whether the admission to the Fair grounds is 50 or 25 cents after Nov. 1.

CHICAGO GETS "AMERICA" REPLICA.

Henry Doulton of Lambeth, Eng., Makes the Presentation.

Henry Doulton of Lambeth, Eng., has presented the handsome terra-cotta group that stands on the Plaza in front of Victoria House to Chicago and it has been accepted by Mayor Harrison. The statue is described as follows:

> The group is a replica of the one which represents America on the pedestal of the Prince Albert Memorial column which was erected in Kensington in honor of the Crystal Palace Exhibition of 1851, the first world's fair. The replica weighs twenty-five tons and it cost Mr. Doulton $25,000 to send it to Jackson Park and mount it in its present place. The group, which is of heroic size, shows America as the central figure in the guise of an Indion maiden in native costume with figured headdress. In one hand the figure bears a stone-headed lance, in the left is a shield emblazoned with the emblems of the different divisions of the continent, the eagle for the United States, the beaver for Canada, the Southern cross for Brazil, the volcanoes for Mexico. The figure "America" is mounted on a huge bison, and on either side of this bison are other attendant figures representing the different American nations. That which stands for the United States is of the Anglo-Saxon type, clad in symbolical raiment and crowned with eagle feathers. Canada is represented by a young girl of the English type wrapped in furs. A male figure represents Mexico, and for South America there is shown a half-breed Indian, with sombrero and poncho. The group was designed by John Bell.

Mr. Doulton made the gift through his Chicago representative, F. H. Ford. In his letter he writes:

> If a slight it will be, I trust, considered a fitting link connecting the first International Exhibition with the last one and the crowning one. I can only express my deep regret that I am unable to avail myself of the unparalleled opportunity afforded at Chicago to see some of the later triumphs of peace, "for peace hath her victories no less renowned than war," and among others not the least beneficent results of the Chicago Exhibition we may confidently expect a strengthening of the bonds that unite two great nations in the Eastern and Western Hemispheres.

THORPE'S GIFT TO LADY ABERDEEN.

Uncle John Presents the Countess a Bunch of Gorgeous Chrysanthemums.

Thousands of persons envied the Countess of Aberdeen yesterday without even knowing who she was. It was not because of any grand dress she wore, for in that respect she attracted no more notice than the multitude of the well dressed ladies who thronged the Horticultural Building. It was simply because of a beautiful bunch of yellow chrysanthemums she carried, and they had been presented to her by Uncle John Thorpe. Lord and Lady Aberdeen, with a party which included J. S. Larke of the World's Fair Executive Commission; G. R. R. Cockburn, M. P. of England; Senator Tasse and Nicholas Awrey, Commissioners for Ontario, were admiring the fruit display near the big dome. Uncle John was told of their presence and he rushed one of his assistants out to get a bunch of chrysanthemums. The young man soon returned. The party had wandered into the Ontario exhibit of plants and shrubs, when Uncle John reached it. One of the members knew him and introduced him to the Countess. She accepted the flowers with delight. She thanked Uncle John cordially, and while he stood, with his hat doffed and bowing like a palm tree in a summer breeze, Lady Aberdeen reached out her hand and grasped Uncle John's. The Earl also shook hands with him and engaged him in a little chat. When it is known that Uncle John Thorpe is preparing for the great chrysathemum show and that he values each one of those flowers as so much gold it will be seen it was no small sacrifice on his part to order some of his best cut as a present for Lady Aberdeen.

FOR A JUBILLE IN JERUSALEM.

National Commission Indorses a Plan for the Year 1900.

The National Commission at its meeting yesterday approved a project to hold a jubilee of all Christian faiths at Jerusalem in 1900. The idea originated with Col. Peyton of Philadelphia, and last May at a meeting held in Carpenter Hall in that city the project was indorsed. Yesterday Thomas Shaw, Chairman of the General committee, presented a memorial from that meeting, and the commission adopted the following:

> Resolved, That the World's Columbian Commission heartily concurs in the effort being made to secure a convention of the Christian nations of the world at Jeruselam in the year A. D. 1900 through their representative laymen and clergy, and commend it to the favorable consideration of all Christian nations.

It is to be a fraternal meeting of all peoples and sects to celebrate the opening of the twentieth century of the Christian era.

The excellent 1889 vintage of G. H. Mumm & Co.'s Extra Dry is attracting great attention for its natural dryness, pureness, and quality.

SELL OFF THE FREAKS

GROUP OF "LIVING CURIOSITIES" GO AT A STOCK-YARDS AUCTION.

"Col." Pruyn, the Auctioneer, Closes Out a Broken-Necked Horse, a Five-Legged Mule, and Other Museum Specimens to Highest Bidders—"Eddie" Holton, Proprietor of the Collection, Tells of the Qualities of Hercules, the Giant Mule—Pennsylvanian Founds an Art Gallery.

Down in the Stock-Yards yesterday they sold a freak show at auction. Five hundred horsemen from twenty States were crowded into the little pavilion, on the raised seats, and in the ring. All afternoon they had been bidding on Texas broncos and Iowa farm mares. With the men on the sawdust were half a dozen typical Stock-Yards "toughs," young fellows with black bristles on their faces, holes in their clothes, no collars, and moth-eaten patches in their hair. Finally the broken-necked horse was led out into the center of the ring.

"Wh'-du-I get to start this 'ere wonderful freak 'a nature!" shouted Col. Pruyn, the auctioneer, standing up in his high box.

There were no bidders. Col. Pruyn exhausted his eloquence. The poor horse, a sorry dun in color, with its deformed neck and its muzzle almost dragging on the ground, was led across the ring. "Eddie" Holton, owner of the freak show, with his diamond stud and the huge seal ring on his right hand got down in the crowd and declared the animal would do to pull junk if it wasn't wanted as the "greatest living curiosity for exhibition purposes." Finally a horse-trainer named La Bounty made a bid of $1. "On'y livin' broken-necked hoss in the world," struck up Col. Pruyn. "'F'u men do'n bid lively on 'im I'll charge 'u ten cents a piece for lookin' at 'im! 'R 'u all—through—all—in—all—down—all done—all—over at $1. Gimme two, make 'er even money, raise 'er a quarter, don't you want 'im at no price."

Bids $5 and Then Runs.

To the surprise of everybody one of the "toughs" with the moth-eaten patches in his hair raised his hand and pointed at the auctioneer.

"Make 'er one-twenty-five," queried the Colonel expectantly.

"Five dollars," declared the moth-eaten chap defiantly.

"Sold!" shrieked the auctioneer.

"Wha' sa' name?"

But the bidder had already turned and started to run. "Frenchy," the ringmaster, caught him in the trousers with the lash of his long whip as he shot through the door.

"Wher's police?" cried Col. Pruyn.

Officer Michael Rafferty of the Stock-Yards district, red as to face and mustache and large as to girth, trundled after the long-legged delinquent. Officer Rafferty is a "right good chunk of a man," as they say in the yards, but he never got within shouting distance of the man who bid $5 for the broken-necked horse. He came back ten minutes later, short on dignity and wind, and Col. Pruyn soothed him with a gift of a bamboo cane that had a spirit level and a machine for measuring the height of mules concealed about its person.

Then the Colonel knocked down the broken-necked horse to La Bounty on his original bid of $1. La Bounty said he'd lead the "hoss" away after dark and try to sell him to a veterinary college.

Other "greatest natural living curiosities" went at simply ruinous prices. There was "Hercules, the giant mule," for example. Hercules had his tail done up in red flannel yesterday. He weighs a trifle less than a ton, stands twenty-two hands high and is fifteen feet long—"in every respect," as the large oil paintings which accompany him say—"the monarch and mastodon of mules." After Hercules had trotted about the ring in a most amiable and reassuring manner Col. Pruyn climbed up again to his box.

Scoop Shovels for a Pair of Ears.

"Now then, men, we'll tell 'u all about this 'ere mule. Look at 'im. Weighs a ton! One o' 'is ears 'ould make a scoop shovel! Little short in his wind, but don't hurt 'im none to work. Been pullin' the whole show all summer. Guaranteed to pull any load 'u can hitch 'im to with the hind wheels blocked. He's a whale, and what-um-I-bid to start 'im?"

A lanky, gaunt stock-yards buyer looked at the molars and bicuspids of "Hercules" and modestly remarked that he'd give $50. "Milk" Riley promptly raised him $5. Then "Hercules" took a hand in the raising business himself and cleared the crowd for forty feet at his rear.

When the price got up to $65 it stuck, and "Milk" Riley got him at that figure. Riley is called "Milk" because the boys are afraid that otherwise he might forget that he used to peddle the lacteal fluid through the Stock-Yards region. "Milk" says he will send "Hercules" to St. Louis, where he hears they have lately begun to improve the street car lines.

But the three-legged steer and the five-legged horse fared worst of all. It fairly brought tears to the eyes of "Eddie" Halton to see his star freaks thrown on the tender mercies of a crowd of Stock-Yards horse buyers. Some one bid $1 for the triangular beast.

"Now here's a full-blood Hereford steer," shouted Col. Pruyn. "He's got three natural legs and no more, an' 'e's worth more'n 'dollar for beef!"

The bids rose slowly until they reached $4.50, and "Mick" Riley bobbed up again as the winner. He said he'd hold his prize till the financial panic was over and people were able to appreciate luxuries again. The five-legged horse went to J. Rosengarden for $5—"an' it's a shame," as Col. Pruyn impressively remarked, "to see a great cu'rosity of nater going at on'y $1 a leg."

"Purveyors to the amusement-loving public" lost another great opportunity outside the pavilion. "The great canvas, the large circus tent, capable of seating 1,000 spectators in perfect comfort, was knocked down to "Tom" Bell for $5 cash. It was a horrid sacrifice, only surpassed by that of the water-proof house tent, "useful for children and adults alike." That went for $2 to a man named Franks.

"The two large oil paintings, twenty feet square, giving lifelike representations of 'Sampson, the Largest Horse on the Globe,' and the three-legged steer," were sold to W. H. Wilson, a World's Fair visitor from Pennsylvania, for 75 cents. He stuffed them away in his satchel and will donate them to his native town as the foundation for an art gallery.

"The show business," said Col. Pruyn when it was all over, "the show business ain't what it used to be when I was a boy."

ADAMS ALLOWED TO PAY BACK $892.

But the Evanston Council Does Not Agree to Drop His Case.

The Evanston City Council last night decided to accept the money offered by ex-City Clerk J. J. Adams in payment for the shortage of $892 which was discovered in an examination of the books kept by him while in office. Members of the Council say this does not mean Adams' case is to be dropped, but it will still be brought to the attention of the grand jury. The City Attorney was directed to proceed against the restaurants which have failed to take out the license required by the city ordinance. This does not mean a license to sell liquor, but every restaurant is required to take out a license to do business. Out of the dozen or more establishments in the city only one has obtained the necessary license.

MYSTERIOUS DROWNING OF A CARTER.

Report from Pointe au Trembles, Quebec, May Involve a Crime.

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—A mysterious case, which is believed to involve a crime, is reported from Pointe au Trembles, a small place near this city. A few days ago information was sent by the Chief of Police at that place to the Montreal police authorities that three men with clothes soaked with water were giving information that a fourth man, with whom they had been fishing, but whom they pretended not to know, had been drowned by the upsetting of the boat. Information was given to the city police, and a letter arrived from the Chicago police giving a description and requiring the arrest of one Louis Kasson, a German, 50 years of age, who was charged with embezzling $4,697 in that city. Detective Mahon soon found that the man answering the description had arrived at the Albion Hotel from Chicago Oct. 5. Several days after this man's arrival he was met by a young man about 22 years of age, who said he was a carter, also from Chicago, and to prove the statement produced a badge. The two men became inseparable. The steamer Hamburg, then in port, was the rendezvous for the two men, who seemed to be on terms of intimacy with one of the sailors. On the 13th a fishing excursion to Pointe au Trembles was arranged. The party consisted of the German, the Chicago carter, the sailor from the Hamburg, and a Montreal carter. In the evening three of the party returned without the Chicago carter, who they said was drowned. The clothes of the three was then quite wet, as if no means had been taken to have them dried. On the 14th Kasson, who had said he was leaving for Vancouver that night, took a ticket for Chicago. He had then upon his person the sum of $2,500.

KILLED HIMSELF BECAUSE PUNISHED.

The Man Who Lashed Farragut to the Mast Shoots Himself.

VALLEJO, Cal., Oct. 17.—John Neil, a seaman in the United States Navy, serving on board the receiving ship Independence, Mare Island Navy Yard, committed suicide this morning by shooting himself in the head. The deceased was reprimanded this morning for having overstayed his leave of absence, and was punished by restriction to the ship for a period of sixty days. As soon as Neil received his punishment he was seen to go below into the ship bagroom, where he was found later with a bullet wound in his right temple. The deceased was a man of unusual distinction, having received medal honors from Congress for bravery and meritorious conduct. Neil enlisted in the navy in 1861, served with Farragut at Mobile Bay, and lashed the immortal Admiral in the rigging of the Hartford while he stood by his side throughout the fight. Since the war Neil has served continuously in the navy and was one of the survivors of the ill-fated Trenton, which went down in Apia Harbor, and received general mention for bravery in rescuing shipmates from the Vandalia, which was also wrecked in the same gale. The deceased was a native of Ireland, aged 62 years, and a member of the Grand Army of the Republic, and the Regular Army and Navy Union. The remains will be interred in the naval cemetery at Mare Island under the auspices of the Army and Navy Union.

PREACHER RICE AGAIN UNDER ARREST.

Claims to Have Been Holding No Meetings Recently.

Justin Rice, the cowboy preacher, was arrested again last night, and in default of bail spent the night at the Desplaines Street Station. He was arrested on a disorderly warrant sworn out by A. Brougher, No. 487 West Madison street. Rice had been in the bridewell under a $50 fine for holding street meetings. On a writ of habeas corpus he was released, and yesterday his case, which he had appealed, came before Judge Brentano. As none of the officers concerned in his arrest and prosecution in the lower courts appeared against him, although they had been notitied, Rice was discharged. As he and his wife stepped from a street car at Sheldon and Madison streets last night he was arrested by three Desplaines street detectives who said they had a warrant for his arrest. Rice asked to see the warrant. This, he claims, was denied him. When his wife protested she was told, so she said, "if you can't mind your own business we'll take you along too." The police claim that the continued arrests of Mr. and Mrs. Rice are because the most promiment citizens of the West Side protest against Rice and want him prosecuted. Brougher, who swore out the warrant, is so prominent that his name is not in the city directory.

TRAINS COLLIDE NEAR FAIR GROUNDS.

No One Injured, but Three Empty Cars Are Considerably Smashed Up.

One of the Illinois Central World's Fair trains, south-bound, was run into by a South Chicago suburban train at Seventieth street at 8 o'clock last night. Fortunately there were no passengers in the rear cars of the World's Fair train. Three cars were damaged. In the last only a few windows were broken, but the second and third cars were broken up badly. It took three hours to clear the track. The World's Fair train stopped at the Seventieth street curve waiting for the signal to go ahead. Hardly had it slacked up when the South Chicago train came along at a high speed and struck the train ahead with great force. The engineer of the South Chicago train had barely time to reverse the lever, put on the air brakes, and jump from the cab while the fireman followed his example. Both men escaped unhurt. There were fifty passengers in the suburban train when the train came to a sudden stop and the crashing of broken glass was heard. The passengers were shaken up badly, but none were injured.

CHOKED TO DEATH ON BEEFSTEAK.

Peter Schultz, a Constable, Is the Victim in a Restaurant.

Peter Schultz, a constable of Evanston, while eating dinner last night in F. W. Leutz's restaurant, No. 1923 North Clark street, suddenly choked upon a piece of meat and fell from his chair to the floor. Dr. Henry Cook was summoned, but could give no relief, and his friends started with him for the Alexian Brothers' Hospital. He died just as the hospital was reached. George W. Franklin, a constable of No. 125 Clark street, and George Peterson of No. 422 Davis street, Evanston, were with Schultz at the time, and both say that he must have choked upon a bit of bone from the porterhouse steak he was eating. Schultz was 52 years old and well known in Evanston.

CAPT. WILLIAM E. HEAD'S SAD EXPERIENCE WITH AMERICANS.

Too Trustful by Far He Loses £500 During His Visit to Washington and Then, Provided with Cash and a Ticket by the English Ambassador, He Gets Against Four Aces and Is So Reduced to Sleeping in a Police Station—History of a Short Trip Through the Country.

One of her Britannic Majesty's magistrates was a guest at the Harrison Street Station last night. The man who was thus tobogganed from the bench to the police station is Capt. William E. Head of Tipperary, and he is in pretty hard luck.

In his own country Capt. Head is quite a big man and the owner of large estates; he is Captain in the Antrim militia and is wealthy. Arthur Driver is an ex-gamekeeper of the Captain. Driver came to America six years ago and settled near Tacoma, Wash. From time to time Driver wrote his old employer glowing accounts of the fine hunting to be had in Washington. Capt. Head was fired with ambition to shoot buffalo and see the Indians. This being the "close" season for landlords in Ireland, Capt. Head decided to come to America. Sept. 10 he sailed on the Bothnia from Queenstown and ten days later landed in Boston. Desiring to see the capital, Capt. Head went to Washington, but he didn't take his luggage. There was quite a lot of that luggage, and the Captain has the checks for twelve pieces. Not to be burdened with all this property, Capt. Head sent most of it to Tacoma, reserving only a small trunk containing a few clean shirts and his shaving apparatus.

In Washington he put up at the National Hotel. There he met his fate in the shape of three confidence men. The Captain didn't know who the men were and with that trusting simplicity which most characterizes him he told the "con" men that he had £500 in his pocket. In just about five hours after that information the "con" men neatly, scientifically, and expeditiously relieved Capt. Head of his £500, his watch and chain, and his faith in mankind. The detectives of Washington were put on the track of the thieves and Capt. Head was delayed there for three weeks, the host of the National Hotel providing him with food and shelter.

The Ambassador Takes a Hand.

In the meantime the case had been taken to the Ambassador, who greatly sympathized with his visitor. To show how he appreciated the position of Capt. Head he gave him $50 and purchased him a through ticket to Tacoma, Wash. After receiving his credentials from the British Ambassador he started on his 2,500-mile trip with $50 in his pocket and his confidence in his fellow-men restored. He didn't keep that $50. As to just where it went the Captain is rather reticent, but he ingenuously remarked that he didn't remember spending it and wondered whether Americans could always deal themselves four aces.

Anyhow and wherever that $50 went the Irish magistrate didn't have any of it when he landed in Chicago.

The Captain walked out of the Twelfth Street depot attired in a short coat with a pretty red flannel lining:

"Good morning, my Lord," ventured the nearest bunko man. "Going far?"

"To Tacoma, my dear man," replied the Captain, urbanely. "Can you tell me where I go to find the train?"

"Let's see what road your ticket's good over," said the stranger, holding out his hand.

Into the outstretched hand Capt. Head laid several feet of railroad ticket and waited while the polite man investigated.

"Your ticket is good over the Wisconsin Central; that's about eight blocks down that way; but see here, you don't want all this ticket and I'll give you $4 for the return half."

The Captain promptly accepted, and after treating himself to a good meal went to the depot. It wasn't just where the stranger had directed him, being in the exactly opposite direction, but the Captain got there at last and presented his ticket to the gateman.

"That's no good. Where's the other half of this ticket?" demanded the gateman.

It Was the Wrong Half.

"The other half? O, I sold that," responded the Captain. "You see, I didn't want it."

"Didn't you?" remarked the official grimly. "Well, it'll cost you another eight bones to ride on that ticket."

"I don't want to ride on the ticket; I want to ride on the train," said the Captain.

"Don't get gay," snorted the gateman. "That ticket's no good and it'll cost you another $8 to ride on this train."

"But I haven't got it," said the Captain, helplessly, and he told his story to the gateman.

"You're the boss jay of the century," vouchsafed the unfeeling official, and slammed the gate.

Then the Captain wandered sadly forth and attracted much attention with his red coat-lining. He wandered until be met an officer, who extracted the railroad check from the Captain's hat-band and took him to Capt. Hartnett at the Harrison Street Station. Capt. Hartnett is half Irish himself and he sympathized with the other Captain.

"I'm sorry about a dollar," said Capt. Hartnett to Inspector Laughlin. "How sorry are you?"

The Inspector was sorry about the same amount, and Capt. Head was promised shelter and food at the station until he could hear from his friends. Then Capt. Head went out and telegraphed the British Ambassador to send him some more money. To prove his story he had a dozen baggage checks and receipts and showed his credentials to Capt. Hartnett. He is about 33 years of age, with a fine Irish brogue and is a decidedly handsome man.

Last night the Captain slept in a witness-cell, where he could watch the light filter through the bars and listen to the exultant howls of Nora Kelly who had been brought in drunk. He says he will never forget America.

The following laconic dispatch was received from Tacoma in reply to a query:

TACOMA, Wash.—No gamekeeper,

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—Sir Julian Pauncefote is at Newport and nothing can be learned tonight at the British Legation regarding Capt. William E. Head of Tipperary, Ireland.

QUIET CITIZEN KILLS THE DESPERADO.

Bill Wade Tries to Run the Town of Webb, but Evans Objects.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 17.—Bill Wade, a notorious desperado, rode into the town of Webb, Miss., this afternoon, armed with a rifle, a brace of revolvers and a butcher knife. He soon cleared the streets with the exception of J. M. Evans, a quiet citizen, who was sitting in front of his store. Wade opened fire on Evans, but the latter refused to be bluffed, and returned the fire with such an unerring aim that when the smoke cleared away Wade was found with six bullet holes through his heart. Evans is seriously but not fatally wounded.

HOT EXCHANGES ARE THE RULE.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—Demoralized Democracy is trying again to come together on silver legislation tonight. Some of the hopeful compromisers say there are now only seven Democratic Senators holding out against the proposed compromise on the lines of the Faulkner amendment, and that when the administration calls off its dogs there will be only three. When that stage is reached, if ever, they will bring in their compromise. They have enough votes in sight to secure its passage with the aid the silver State Senators could lend in an emergency, but Gorham and the other leaders assert that the administration must furnish its full proportion in order that the responsibility may be divided. Otherwise there won't be any compromise.

The administration supporters declare it is not true that there are only seven of them left to help, and assert that there are still ten who will have unconditional repeal or nothing. At the same time the obliging Secretary Carlisle is allowing himself to be quoted to the effect that the administration would be willing to let the present monthly purchases go on for a period variously placed at from nine months to two years. Now this is not unconditional repeal, and, no matter what may be said, it is not the financial legislation that the President called Congress in extra session to enact. It is conditional surrender by the administration.

Caucus Call Receives Signatures.

When Senator Sherman made his blistering speech this afternoon Democratic repealers and anti-repealers accepted it as something that would help promote party harmony. The anti-repealers thought a caucus the proper thing to arrange a program which would get the Senate out of its deadlock, so Butler and Vest circulated a call which got many signatures. But Hill, Mills, and the repealers generally declined to go into the movement and the caucus is yet undetermined. While it is hanging fire the Democratic majority will continue to give public exhibitions of its imbecility. The silverites are immensely pleased that the discussion has been shifted from repeal to the rules. It is a relief to have Democratic Senators fighting any suggestion that the majority should rule.

Mills in his speech this afternoon, after his fling at ex-Speaker Reed's quorum counting, indicated a way by which he thought the Senate could be brought to a vote. It happens that this method was employed by Speaker Keifer in the House several years ago and Roger Q. Mills in the heat of his Democratic indignation filed a bitter protest. That protest will be read by Senator Pugh tomorrow for the purpose of showing that while Mills may have changed the Democratic party still believed in government by the minority.

The Republicans tonight are inclined to think that in spite of the difficulties in the way of harmony the Democratic majority will find some means of ending the deadlock. Whether by open compromise or sugar-coated repeal labeled "Unconditional," is all the same to them.

Is a Notable Event.

The most notable debate in the Senate since the extra session opened was that of today. A few Democratic Senators were found brave enough to advocate the principle of majority rule, for which their whole party has heaped mountains of abuse on Mr. Reed and the Republican party. The ex-Speaker was in the Senate chamber most of the time and he enjoyed the talk hugely. More notable than anything else was John Sherman's passionate plea for the Senate to respect itself and to save the respect of the country for it. He made a most impressive plea for action and in doing it he delivered the most severe arraignment of the Democratic majority that has ever been heard in the Senate. In his arraignment of the majority there was nothing of partisan suggestion. He merely showed how the political majority which controls legislative bodies must find a way to legislate or accept the responsibility of failure.

"They must agree," said Senator Sherman as he stretched his long arms forth and pointed his forefinger to the Democratic majority. "I say they must agree, or else they must abdicate and this side will take the responsibility of doing something." He had been showing how the Republican minority had steadily given two-thirds of its members to the support of the administration and of upholding the right of the majority to rule.

Republicans May Have to Lead.

What he said was not an idle threat. It has been no secret that if after a reasonable length of time the Democratic majority fail to find some way of ending the deadlock the Republican minority will come forward with a proposition. The Republican Senators are not ready to do it yet, but will be heard from before long if the Democrats are not stirred to action by Senator Sherman's denunciation.

There has probably never been a scene like that which followed the close of Senator Sherman's speech, for there has never been a time in the history of the Senate when either party could be assailed without reply. But when Sherman was through not one Democrat rose to defend his party. Bad as was silence, they knew that it was better than open confession of impotency.

The hopeful sign was at the beginning when Senator Hill unequivocally championed the right of the presiding officer of a legislative body to determine the presence of a quorum. Morgan (Ala.) is a silverite and it was well enough for him to assail Hill's position, but Gray (Del.), a repeal Senator, could not let the question rest without denying the principle laid down by the Supreme Court.

Roger Q. Mills could not sit silent and hear that principle upheld as Democratic doctrine. He had to controvert at great length anything that would seem to give the stamp of approval to ex-Speaker Reed's action while presiding officer of the House. The Democratic party as represented in the Senate of the United States is still a long way from accepting the principle of majority rule, though some of its individual members have their faces turned towards the light.

The Senators who live so much in the past that they revere their ancient rules with a spirit approaching idolatry are beginning to understand that the American people are, first of all, for the Constitution. The very essence of fair play means the privilege of voting. Then, too, the Senators are smarting under the characterization of impotency, and they are giving evidence of a determination to assert their manhood. They are not all awake to the wisdom of such a move, but there is a break in their ranks in that direction. Senator Palmer led it last night when he asserted in the Senate, in his honest, blunt, and fearless way: "Sir, I insist that, excepting the methods employed and the instruments used, there is no difference between their (the filibusters') course and armed resistance to the law."

The Fight Over the Journal.

The journal of yesterday having been read, objection to it was made by Mr. Dolph (Rep., Ore.) on the ground that it did not show the fact that Senators Kyle (Pop., S. D.) and Allen (Pop., Neb.), who had not answered to a roll-call, although they were in the chamber, should be entered as present. He spoke of the extraordinary spectacle presented by the Senate. It had been in session over ten weeks with a Democratic majority and with twenty-six Republican Senators who were ready to follow the Chairman of the Finance committee. The twenty-six Republican Senators who were in favor of the bill would be willing to vote and coöperate with the political majority in securing some rule to limit debate. If a Senator refused to vote he should be dealt with. If a Senator refused to answer on the roll-call it was the duty of the Chair to order his name to be put on the journal. If the Chair did not do so he (Mr. Dolph) would appeal to the Senate. Harris (Dem., Tenn.) and Butler (Dem., S. C.) took part in a sarcastic debate and said the lash could not be applied to the Senate.

Mr. Faulkner (Dem., W. Va.), who was in the Chair last evening when the question was raised by Mr. Dolph, defended his ruling and contended that the journal was absolutely correct. There was no power in the presiding officer to count a Senator as present who refused to answer to his name. Mr. Hoar (Rep., Mass.) said that the journal was accurate in form and substance. He believed that the Senate and the country would see in the end that it was not possible for a body of eighty-eight men, eighty-eight political leaders, to continue much longer under the system of rules which were framed for a body of twenty-six. The will of the constitutional majority would have to prevail.

Mr. Dolph declared that the committee on rules ought to present to the Senate a reasonable rule limiting debate; that the presiding officer ought, after two or three days' discussion of it, put it to a vote of the Senate, and that, if a majority of the Senate adopted it, it should be put absolutely in force.

Mr. Hill on the Needed Rules.

Mr. Hill (Dem., N. Y.) said he would venture to contribute a word or two to the discussion. He said in part:

In my judgment the Chair should exercise his own sense, and if a Senator sitting in front of him refused to answer, his name should be recorded as present. Who is wronged by that? It only runs counter to some old traditions from past ages. Whose rights would be invaded by it? If it is the duty of Senators to remain in their seats it is their duty to take part in the transaction of public business. The art of "how not to do it" seems to be the effort of the Senate. The proper way, I suggest, is whenever a Senator declines to vote, although he is present, to raise a point upon it and to present it to the regular presiding officer of the Senate. I would not do indirectly what I would not do directly, and therefore I am not in favor of adding to the rules or making any new decision by a correction of the journal. The question should come up squarely.

Mr. Morgan (Dem., Ala.) said that the question before the Senate was one of great importance, and one that had been frequently discussed in both Houses. The majority of a legislative body, he said, could take care of itself.

"Does the majority here take care of itself?" Mr. Washburn (Rep. Minn.) asked.

Mr. Morgan replied: "The Senator has been here in a majority before (alluding to the anti-option bill) and was not able to take care of himself." He continued that the present coalition had been created by the national banks for the purpose of destroying silver money.

Mr. Gray (Dem., Del.) denied the assertion and said that he was urging the passage of the repeal bill not because the national banks wanted it, but because the bone and sinew of the country wanted it.

Mr. Morgan in the course of further remarks said: "I propose to offer an amendment to the bill to strike out all after the enacting clause and insert a section repealing the whole (not a part) of the Sherman law."

"That is a good compromise," Mr. Hoar suggested, in an undertone.

"I will do so," Mr. Morgan continued, "on my own responsibility, without consulting anybody in the world. It is my view of the case, and I will carry it out."

"Will you vote for it?" Mr. Cullom asked in a whisper.

"Of course I will," Mr. Morgan replied, "and I have been always willing to do so."

Senator Morgan on Coalition.

Mr. Washburn came back to the charge of coalition and asked Mr. Morgan what he meant by it.

Mr. Morgan—I mean an agreement between Democratic and Republican Senators who favor this repeal bill, and that it shall not be amended in any particular whatever. That is the proposition. Tell me, is that right?

Mr. Washburn—I don't care to say that there is no coalition.

Mr. Morgan—No agreement or understanding?

Mr. Washburn—No agreement or understanding for any purpose. I desire to say also to the Senator and his friends on the other side of the chamber that the Republicans are standing now where they have ever stood in the last thirty years; and I desire to say when the Senator from Alabama states that there is any coalition that that is a very grave injustice to every man who sits in this chamber. We come here——

Mr. Morgan (impatiently)—Now stop. I did not yield the floor absolutely.

Mr. Washburn—I want to defend myself.

Mr. Morgan—You are getting yourself into a controversy in which you are not concerned. I had not you in my mind at all. I never thought of you being a leader in the Republican party. [Laughter.]

Mr. Washburn—Nor I, but I desire not to be stamped on or insulted.

Mr. Morgan—I stand here responsible for every word I speak—responsible here and outside, either. Now you understand that—perfectly responsible.

Mr. Morgan went on with his argument. In the course of it he referred to Mr. Sherman as one of the leaders of the coalition on the Republican side and said that he never had followed and never could follow the lead of that Senator on any subject, political or financial. He also connected with the coalition what he called, disdainfully, the "juveniles from Massachusetts and New York," meaning Senators Lodge and Hill. It was not necessary, he said, in order to make a coalition to have a verbal agreement. But—addressing himself to the Republican repealers—

You understand, as well as I do, that you will not vote for any amendment to the bill and will not vote either for a repeal of the Sherman act. I am going to put that to the test, and it will be a crucial test, too. I defy you to pass a closure rule here. I am not going to follow the lead of any man or set of men, or to surrender my constitutional rights, in response to howling, rampant demands of concessions to the national banks. If I must die here I will die like an honorable man, at my post.

Mr. Gray (Dem., Del.) failed to see any provocation for Mr. Morgan's "heroics." He went on to argue against the position taken by Mr. Hill. Mr. Hill said:

Let me state what my proposition is. According to the ordinary principle of parliamentary proceedings I claim, first, that it is within the power of the presiding officer—in the absence of express rules to the contrary—to determine the presence of a quorum. My second proposition is that there is no rule of the Senate which expressly or even impliedly forbids that action.

Mr. Gray took issue with Mr. Hill. He had denounced the proposition before (in the matter of the force bill) as a step toward absolutism. He denounced it now.

Respects to the Alabama Man.

Mr. Hill said that he had not expected to convince the Senators from Alabama and Delaware. They were not willing to bow to the unanimous decision of the Supreme Court on the question. His own view of the case was that it was the duty of the Senate to give such a construction to the rules as would not make the Senate absurd and as would facilitate public business. Mr. Hill proceeded to pay his respects to Mr. Morgan as having spoken contemptuously of the politicians of New York. He admitted that there were politicians there, but they were politicians in the highest and best sense of the term.

Of course (ironically) there are no politicians in Alabama. They are all statesmen down in that country. [Laughter.] It does not lie in the mouth of that Senator to reflect on the Democratic party of the great Empire State. Elections there are as honest as elections in Alabama. The Senator [Mr. Morgan] has spoken of his lifelong devotion to the Constitution. It might be so. I [Mr. Hill] had supposed that for a brief period my friend had been supporting another constitution; but I may be mistaken. [Laughter and applause.] As to his talk about dying at his post, I have heard like statements by men who were going to "die in the last ditch." But there are many of them left. [Renewed laughter.] In connection with the remark concerning the decision of the Supreme Court in a case involving the counting of a quorum by the Speaker of the House of Representatives, the anecdote is apropos of the lawyer pleading before a country Justice and reading a page out of Blackstone, not for the purpose of convincing the Justice, but for the purpose of "showing what a fool Blackstone was." [Laughter.] I cited the decision of the Supreme Court, not to show that the Senator was wrong (for that Senator is always right), but to show what a fool the Supreme Court has made of itself. [Laughter.] The Senate had been told by the Senator from Alabama that the Senate was powerless. It might be so. The Senator had eulogized former Democratic Senators, including especially Senator Thurman of Ohio, and yet the course which the Senator from New York [himself] was marking out was the very course pursued by Mr. Allen Thurman when, on one occasion as presiding officer of the Senate, he had counted a quorum of thirty-nine, when there were only thirty-five otes.

Mr. Sherman Wants a Vote.

Mr. Sherman (Rep., O.) expressed the hope that a vote would now be taken on the question before the Senate, but as Mr. Dolph demanded the yeas and nays and Mr. Washburn moved to lay the question on the table, Mr. Sherman passed beyond and addressed the Senate. He did not intend to debate the question of the approval of the journal, as it had been sufficiently debated. While he concurred entirely with the Senator from Oregon, he had no doubt that the journal was correctly made up. He said:

The rules of the Senate are made to expedite public business in an orderly, proper manner. There is no doubt of the right and the necessity for every legislative body to have exclusive power over its procedure. At the same time, while that is the primary object of all rules, it is equally important to give to the minority full and fair opportunity of debate. The right to debate a question broadly has been recognized by the Senate since the beginning of the government, but, while the rules of the body are intended to expedite legislation, they are used as an obstruction by the minority in order to defeat the will of the majority. The rules, therefore, should be at once changed, corrected, and altered. Whenever a minority pressed its means of obstruction unduly, it acted in the nature of a revolution, it sought to break down the rules of the Senate and to use them as a means to deprive the Senate of its powers to make laws for the people of the United States. The recent obstruction, made during this heated contest, has gone far beyond anything I have seen in my experience as a member of the Senate. I have seen measures resorted to on the present occasion which have never been resorted to since I have been a member of the Senate, or (as I believe) since the government was framed. The Senate had originated with a dignified body of thirty-six members—more like a Council chamber than a legislative body. It had therefore thrown down all barriers against debate and had gone to the extreme verge of liberality. But whenever the time comes when the rules cannot be made to promote legislation but to obstruct it, then as a matter of course the Senate will have to adopt rules to prevent obstruction. Such things as have recently transpired were never done in the olden times. Sometimes Senators, while present, refused to answer. In doing so they have, in my judgement, violated the rules of good order. During all the war measures and the reconstruction measures I sat in the Senate, when I was much better able to do so than I am now, until the gray of the morning; but in every case until the last ten or twelve years there was finally an agreement between the minority and the majority; the minority yielded and the time was fixed for a vote to be had. If a single case has occurred to the contrary before the force bill I should like to know what it was.

The House of Representatives often resorted to obstruction; but there is a previous question, and when the majority proposes they can put it in force. In the Senate, however, there was never such an extremity resorted to. Therefore, if not today, or not at this session possibly, the time has arrived when the Senate must adopt rules and regulations to prevent obstructions to public business. The Senate is a different body from what it was in olden times. A body of eighty-eight Senators is very different from a body of forty-five or fifty. There is no legislative body in the world that has not some power to control debate, some closure rule, or some means by which the majority could pass laws. The Senate, therefore, will have to follow the example recently set by the House of Commons in England and by the House of Representatives in the United States, and which prevail in France and all countries having any organized legislature. In my judgment, the best way would be in the next session to have the Committee on Rules strengthened to a larger number and to let that committee take and examine all these various rules, and (carefully limiting debate and giving to the minority an opportunity to express its opinion) to prescribe some reasonable rules by which the majority should fix the time when the final vote should be taken.

The Senator Scores the Majority.

The Senate has been in session over three months and not a single measure of importance has been passed. The House of Representatives has performed its duty, but the Senate is staggering along, unable to have a single vote on any important question. If this continues the Senate will be a marked body. We are men of action in the United States, and the Senate ought not to be a great log that weighs down and obstructs legislation. We must, therefore, resort to some way by which the power of the majority may be exercised. The responsibility rests upon the other side of the chamber. They say they cannot agree. They must agree or else surrender their political power. If the Senate of the United States as it is now organized cannot make laws without this prolonged debate; if it is unable to meet together and formulate some proposition, the people of the United States will take the Senate at its worth—there is not a doubt about that.

I have sat here more than a month without opening my mouth desiring to hear from the other side, whom the people have honored with a majority in this body. The President of the United States has expressed his opinion. We, on this side, have not obstructed the opinion of the President. We do not believe in him; we do not believe in his policy; we are under no obligation to him. And yet we furnish nearly two-thirds of the vote to pass the pending bill, while the party which the President represents stands here unable to formulate a policy and to say what it desires. If they do not agree, Mr. President, on this bill let them say so. Let them formulate something else. There are three or four important measures of public interest that demand solution at the hands of the Senate, but this bill stands in the way. One is whether you shall continue the purchase of silver bullion. On that honest men may differ. I believed in that policy and wanted to give it the longer and most beneficial experience. We have tried it and according to our humble judgment we think that, on the whole, it is not wise to continue it farther. We have now 570,000,000 of silver dollars coined, or we have the bullion to coin it. We have besides $77,000,000 of silver coined and in wide circulation as what is called subsidiary coin. We have silver bullion enough to supply all that can be coined in the next two or three years.

Therefore we acquiesce in the representation of the President that the purchase of silver bullion threatens to create a disturbance in the markets of the world and tends to excite a want of confidence in our ability to maintain a parity of gold and silver. We have tried the experiment and we believe that it has failed. The price of silver has decreased, notwithstanding the enormous purchases of it by the government. This is not a proposition to demonetize silver. We have more silver now in the United States than we ever had before in our whole previous history. No one proposes to disturb that silver. On the contrary, we would be glad to join with our friends on the other side of the chamber to increase the subsidiary coin. That I believe is the coin which the people of this country desire rather than large dollars, and any other measure which tends to promote the use of silver we are ready and willing to help. The President suggests, however, that the best of measures is first to kill all the present silver-purchase laws. We think so, too. But the other side does not think so, and their vote is potent. They have the matter in their hands. Let them agree upon something.

In times past we (the Republicans) never shrunk from responsibility. We were Republicans because we believed in Republican principles and men and measures. But whenever a question came up that had to be decided we never pleaded the baby act or said that we could not agree. We met together in conclave and there agreed, and in that way were passed all the great laws which have marked American history in the last thirty years. Of course Democrats helped us. I think that if the Republicans were to offer the ten commandments or the Lord's prayer the Democrats would oppose them. [Laughter.]

Now we do not stand in that attitude. We ask our brother Senators on the other side to meet together and consult with each other. If they do not like the President's plans let them give us some other, in God's name, and let us settle this important question. I have seen a letter from the Secretary of the Treasury showing that there will be a deficit of $50,000,000 this year. If Mr. Carlisle does his duty he will at once today, or tomorrow, or at the earliest hour stop the expenditure of all money where it is not fixed by law and where it is not imperative.

Should Stop All Expenditures.

The idea of going on and spending at the rate of more than $5,000,000 a month beyond our revenue is utterly indefensible in a government like ours. The idea that we are not even willing to give our note for the payment of the money (referring to the issue of bonds) is a monstrous one. Senators on the other side say that it is unpopular to increase the public debt. But we are increasing the public debt by owing. We must decide this silver question some way or other. If you (meaning the Democrats) cannot do it and will retire from the Senate chamber, we will fix it on this side of the chamber, and do the best we can with our silver friends who belong to us and who are blood of our blood and bone of our bone. But yours is the proper duty, and therefore I beg of you, not in reproach or in anger, to perform it.

Mr. Morgan (Dem., Ala.)—I would like to know whether the Senator from Ohio will vote for the unconditional repeal of the entire law called the Sherman act.

Mr. Sherman—No, and no other man who understands the subject would do it in my judgment. To do it would be dishonor and leave unprotected the $150,000,000 of Treasury notes outstanding. The only provision in that bill about which there is any controversy or dispute is the provision for the purchase of silver bullion. My honorable friend would not propose to repeal it if he would study the question in all of its details.

Mr. Morgan—I have studied it and I will offer an amendment to repeal the whole act and will ask a vote upon it.

Mr. Sherman—I shall vote against it with the greatest pleasure, and I have no doubt that two-thirds of the Senators of the other side will do the same.

Mr. Morgan—Very well; we will try it.

Mr. Sherman—That is precisely what we want you to do. If we will try tomorrow after the long debate which has been had, and if we dispose of the question as we think best for the people of the United States we will gladden the hearts of millions of laboringmen who are now being deprived of employment; we will relieve the business cares of thousands of men whose whole fortunes are embarked in trade; we will relieve the farmers and facilitate transportation of their products to foreign countries, which is now clogged by the want of money. Break up this filibustering and obstruction to the will of the majority; give the Senate force and power to pass this bill and pass it; and in ten days the skies will brighten, business will resume its ordinary course, and all the clouds which lower upon your house shall be in the deep bosom of the ocean buried. [Applause.]

The discussion was continued by Mr. Call (Dem., Fla.) and Mr. Mills (Dem., Tex.). At the conclusion of Mr. Mills' speech, in which he said that Mr. Sherman had hit the mark when he placed the responsibility for action upon the Democratic party, and after a little cross-questioning between Senators Butler, Hill, and Mills, Mr. Voorhees rose. He said he wanted to pour oil on the troubled waters. There had been a good deal of complaint about night sessions and he would therefore move that the Senate take a recess until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, which prevailed by a vote of 46 to 5, and at 5:30 the Senate took a recess until 10 o'clock tomorrow.

BOUNTY LAND AND BANKING LAWS.

Proof of Loyalty in the Late War Not Needed by Applicants—To Restrict Loans.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 17.—Mr. Kem (Pop., Neb.) rising to a question of privilege in the House, denied the truth of a statement reflecting upon Messrs. Bryan, McKeighan, and himself for not attending to their duty to their State, and stating that it was left to a Republican (Meiklejohn) to attend to the interests of Nebraska. In the course of his denial he said that the action of Mr. Meiklejohn in the premises was not that of a high-principled gentleman. In the consideration morning hour Mr. Culberson (Dem., Texas), from the Committee on Judiciary, called up a bill amending the Revised Statutes so as to dispense with proof of loyalty during the late War of the Rebellion as a prerequisite to being restored or admitted to the pension roll of any person otherwise entitled thereto under existing laws; and also providing that proof of loyalty shall not be necessary in any application for bounty land.

Mr. Burrows (Rep., Mich.) entered his protest against the measure. Mr. Oates (Dem., Ala.) said that the number of men who would be restored to the rolls under this bill would be insignificant. Being in charge of the bill he modified it so that it should apply only to bounty land claimants. The bill was then passed.

The House then resumed the consideration of the Cox bill for the better control of national banks. Mr. Lockwood (Dem., N. Y.) opposed the bill. It was powerless for good and its passage at this time would work an absolute injury to the national banks and to the people of the country. After further discussion the bill was passed without division. It provides that no national banking association shall make any loan to its President, its Vice-President, its cashier, directors, or any of its clerks, tellers, bookkeepers, agents, servants, or other persons in its employ until the proposition to make such a loan, stating the amount, terms, and security offered therefor, shall have been submitted in writing by the person desiring the same to a meeting of the Board of Directors of such banking association or of the Executive committee of such board, if any, and accepted and approved by a majority of those present constituting a quorum, but only to the amount now allowed by law.

The House then in Committee of the Whole resumed consideration of the bill relative to public printing and binding. Without disposing of the bill the committee rose and the House at 5 o'clock adjourned.

To Look After Government Interests.

Hoadley arrived yesterday and has been in consultation all day with the Attorney-General and Senator Brice. It is understood that they will have a consultation with E. Ellery Anderson, government director, and everything will be done that is possible to secure the government against loss.

Treatment of Van Leuven Cases.

Payment in a large number of suspected Iowa claims, distinguished as "Van Leuven claims," has been suspended, and in some cases the suspensions have already covered two quarter days. The Commissioner of Pensions today ordered that all the "Van Leuven" cases, so called, be treated as "special," both in the bureau itself and in the course of further examination in the field. Where the pensioner is found to be entitled to a pension upon the face of the certificates, the medical referee will at once rescind the order of suspension without waiting for the full papers from the field.

Chinese Subject Acting Consul at Amoy.

That a Chinese subject is acting as Consul at Amoy is verified. J. Hampton Hoge of Virginia was appointed Consul May 10 and when the incumbent, Dr. Edward Bedloe of Philadelphia, received the notice he waited a reasonable time and returned. The Vice-Consul also came home, leaving Tsin Chin Chung, the interpreter, in charge of the consulate. Mr. Hoge allowed the thirty days given him to depart to slip by and received an extension, the last heard from him at the State Department being that he would leave his home Oct. 6.

To Equalize Bank Taxes.

Representative English of New Jersey today addressed the House Committee on Banking and Currency in support of a bill he has introduced, providing for a rebate of 85 per cent on the issue of State banks. He did not believe in wholly removing the tax on the issue of these banks, but he would make it the same as the tax on national banks. He would hold a rod over national banks, so as to prevent them from contracting the currency. Other members were to be heard, but they did not appear, and the committee adjourned until Friday.

No Tariff Bill Yet Made.

Chairman Wilson and other members of the Committee on Ways and Means today assured inquirers that the report that the committee had practically completed the preparation of the tariff bill was incorrect. These inquirers were informed that in the opinion of the committeemen the bill would not be ready for report to the House until the latter part of November.

BREAKS IN THE DOOR.

JUDGE TAYLOR ENRAGED AT BEING KEPT FROM HIS LODGE-ROOM.

The Door Was Also the Entrance to the Opera-House at Terre Haute and Was Temporarily Closed—The Judge Has a Large Audience for the Display of His Temper—Plankinton's Agent at Milwaukee Refuses to Give Up the Bank Books—De France Prosecution Delayed.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—Judge Taylor of the Circuit Court last night battered down a door at the opera-house and threatened to use a knife on an employé. The Judge is an officer in a Masonic lodge that has a lodge room in the building. Access is by the stairways leading to the box office. The street doors were kept closed until the sale of tickets for the evening performance was begun. The Judge objected and battered in one of the doors. When the ushers tried to stop him he drew his knife and made his way to the lodge-rooms, where he obtained a record of the lease, and then sought Manager Hayman, who showed him that the lease was subject to the opera-house lease. The Judge said he would come next lodge night with a battering ram. Manager Hayman told him that bulldozing tactics would not win and warned him not to carry out his threat. Later in the evening he apologized for what he had done and said Judge Taylor is the Judge who sent a couple of newspaper men to jail for commenting on the fact that he dismissed a grand jury while it was investigating the city contract conspiracies, which action on his part was upset by the State Supreme Court.

CANNOT GET THE BANK'S BOOKS.

William Plankington's Confidential Agent Refuses to Produce Them.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—William Plankinton, the assignee of the Plankinton Bank, is making a protracted stay at the World's Fair in order, it is said, to avoid producing the books of the bank before the grand jury. Having tired in waiting for Plankington to return the grand jury is now attempting to force Mr. Fletcher, the confidential man of Mr. Plankinton in the bank affairs, to produce the much-wanted books. Mr. Fletcher was before the jury today, but he refused to produce the books, claiming to have no authority to do so. Accordingly the jury secured an order citing Mr. Fletcher to appear before Judge Waliber tomorrow to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt for refusing to produce the books. There is a movement emanating with the grand jury to have another assignee appointed for the Plankinton Bank because of Mr. Plankinton's long absence.

Richard Roghe and Mrs. Julia Johnson, charged with an attempt to murder Peter Johnson, the husband of the woman, pleaded guilty today and were sentenced to ten years each in the State penitentiary.

Sheriff Dunn and Deputy Sheriff Lacey left Chicago at 10:30 o'clock tonight for this city with John B. Koetting, cashier of the defunct South Side Savings Bank, which Koetting looted. They will arrive here at 1 o'clock in the morning. Deputy Sheriff Lacey reached Chicago this evening from Monterey, Mexico, where he arrested Koetting. Sheriff Dunn went to Chicago today to accompany them to this city as an extra precaution to protect Koetting, as threats of violence have been made against him by depositors of the suspended bank. The disclosures as a result of the investigation of the affairs of the bank have much aggravated the depositors, none of whom will realize a dollar outside of the preferred creditors. Cashier Koetting is not likely to be given another opportunity to forfeit his bail bond as he did when brought back from Denver, as a strong effort will be made to keep him in custody. The grand jury is said to have found several indictments against him for embezzlement and other offenses.

The Chicago police have been asked to arrest Peter Williams and his sister Annie on a charge of arson. They are accused by Williams' wife with an attempt to burn their home here to secure the insurance. They left for Chicago a few days ago.

DE FRANCE'S PROSECUTION DELAYED.

Case Continued at Detroit Until Important Witnesses Can Be Secured.

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 17.—Stonewall J. De France was apparently in excellent humor when he appeared in police court this morning.

"Do you expect to get off on reduced bail today?" he was asked.

"No. I want to give the prosecution every chance to prove the charges," he said. "If they fail to do so I shall endeavor to make them. I shall not attempt to get away. There are so many terrible accidents outside these days that a fellow is safer in confinement."

When the case was called Justice Sheahan granted the prosecutor's demand for a continuance for two weeks and De France was led away without a protest for reduction of bail. As Kennedy, who is to be brought from California, is making a fight against returning, the proceedings are delayed until his habeas corpus is disposed of in San Francisco. It is believed that the gang who are most interested in his continued absence have sent money to the Pacific slope to fight the case there.

Detective Rehan of Chicago was present in court, and would probably have arrested De France had he furnished the required bail.

FROM DRAINAGE CANAL TO PRISON.

William Pace, for Attempted Murder at Romeo, Begins His Sentence.

Brunson of Plainfield, Amos Savage of Homer, and William Willard of Joliet, Vice-Presidents; A. R. Morgan, Joliet, Secretary; and Benjamin H. King, Joliet, Treasurer.

SOME OF THE INJURED MAY DIE.

Aftermath of the Explosion of Dynamite at Emington, Ill.

EMINGTON, Ill., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—The windows broken in yesterday's explosion are fast being fixed up with the new glass as it arrives in the town and the business-men who had their stock scattered by the shock are busily engaged in getting straightened up. The remains of Chris Eyer and James Cornwell of Dwight and Fred Eyer of Olney were taken to Dwight last night for burial. That of C. E. Fowler is lying at his residence in Emington and will be buried tomorrow. All the seriously injured are still alive, but in several cases death is expected any time. Coroner Zimmerman completed his labors at a late hour last night, the different juries returning verdict that the parties came to their deaths by an explosion from dynamite while preparing a blast to shoot a well and attaching no fault to any one connected in sinking the well.

STILLMAN'S ALLEGED WIDOW.

Will Contest the Will in Which He Left His Money to His Niece.

ELKHART, Ind., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—Edgar H. Stillman, a wealthy wholesale liquor dealer and real estate owner of Key West, Fla., died here last week at the home of his niece, Mrs. M. K. Weaver, willing all of his property to the latter. He was supposed to be unmarried, but an unknown woman, who gives her name as Emma Maynick Stillman, of Washington, D. C., has appeared and claims to have been the dead man's wife, and has engaged able attorneys to set aside the will.

TO RECEIVE CONFEDERATE VETERANS

Reception to Be Given Them as They Pass Through Cincinnati, O.

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—Union veterans and the commercial bodies are arranging a big reception for the Confederate veterans when they pass through on their way to Chicago.

The police are looking for Frank Smith, a Louisville bicycle thief, and Albert Clundt, a horse thief, who escaped last night from the Frankfort, Ky., penitentiary. Clundt's brother is a telegraph operator, and when the request for the horse thief's arrest came over the wire he took it but held it long enough to give his brother time to escape.

Frederick Davis, who claims Chicago as his home, was arrested early this morning on suspicion of trying to hold up Milton Preston, a merchant from Peach Orchard, Ky., who was drunk.

NEGRO NARROWLY ESCAPES HANGING

Mob in St. Louis Has the Rope Around a Tree When the Police Arrive.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—George Jones, a negro, 22 years old, narrowly escaped lynching this morning. Mrs. Sarah May, an invalid widow, aged 50 years, who lives with her two children in a small tent at the corner of Sarah street and Forest Park boulevard, was engaged in drawing water from a well in an isolated section of that vicinity when she was accosted by Jones. The woman screamed for help, and the negro seized her, choking her into insensibility. The woman's shriek for help had been heard by a number of laborers, who hurried to her assistance. They assailed the negro, and after a desperate resistance he was captured, and bound hand and foot, and a rope placed about his neck. The rope was thrown over the limb of a neighboring tree. In the meantime the police officers of the Fifth District Station had been notified by telephone and were hurrying to the scene. When the mob saw the police coming their fury became intensified and they hurled stones, staves, and clubs at the frightened and yelling negro. The police finally arrived in time to save his life and he was taken to the station.

Still Talk of Lynching Kaiser.

HAMMOND, Ind., Oct. 17.—Franz Kaiser, who narrowly escaped being lynched yesterday by the enraged citizens of this town, was arraigned today before Judge Crawford and held to the Criminal Court in bonds of $2,500. His stepdaughter was put on the stand and told the story of Kaiser's brutal crimes. The people of Hammond are still talking of lynching Kaiser and a strong guard is kept about the jail. The prisoner is night foreman at the tanking-room of the G. H. Hammond company. He is about 50 years old.

MUSEUM OF LINCOLN RELICS IS OPENED.

The House Where He Died Utilized for the Home of the Collection.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—There was a notable gathering of dignitaries, including Vice-President Stevenson, Chief-Justice Fuller, and Gen. Schofield of the army this evening at the house on Tenth street, opposite Ford's Theater, in which President Lincoln died. It was the occasion of the opening of the museum of Lincoln relics, a lease for a year having been effected upon the house by eighteen representative citizens of the national capital.

From the time the house was opened at 8 o'clock until nearly midnight there was a constant throng of people in the rooms of the historic old mansion viewing the relics of the martyred President, the majority of which have already been seen at Springfield, Ill. Prof. Langley of the Smithsonian Institution placed two interesting relics on exhibition today, one being the chair in which Mr. Lincoln was sitting when the fatal shot was fired, and the other the tall silk hat, with broad black band, which he wore to Ford's Theater on that memorable evening in 1865. These relics were deposited in the Smithsonian Institution the day succeeding the tragedy by either the military or police in charge of the theater, but no papers were filed with them. Upon the back of the red silk upholstered rocking chair can be plainly discerned the dark discoloration which the government chemist declared to be the blood of the victim of the assassin's bullet.

Short addresses appropriate to the occasion were delivered by Chief-Justice Fuller, Vice-President Stevenson, and Senator Cullom, the latter giving his impressions of the dead President according to his personal remembrances, after which those present were invited to register their names in a book kept for that purpose.

Cured of a Bad Case of Scrofula

Scrofula permeates humanity. It is thoroughly infused into the blood. Scarcely a man is wholly free from it, in one form or another. It clings tenaciously and will never leave its victims till driven off by the power of a good blood purifier like Hood's Sarsaparilla. This medicine cures scrofula promptly, surely, thoroughly. Thousands of people say so. For instance, read this:

Orleans, Ind., May 12, 1893.

"I am justified in thinking Hood's Sarsaparilla a splendid medicine by own experience with it. I was a great sufferer from scrofula, having dreadful sores in my ears and on my head, sometimes like large boils, discharging all the time. My husband insisted that I take Hood's Sarsaparilla. At the first bottle

My Appetite Improved, and I felt somewhat better. So I bought another bottle, and by the time it was half gone the scrofula had entirely disappeared. I am now entirely free from scrofula and was never

FOR A ROUSING DAY.

MR. M'DONOUGH AND FAIR OFFICIALS WORKING FOR NEW YORK.

Exposition Authorities Ready to Grant Anything Gothamites Want—Arrangements for Parade and Festival Hall Exercises—Crowds Coming In on All Trains Daily—Chauncey Depew Thinks 150,000 New-Yorkers Will Be Here—Gilroy Leaves for Chicago.

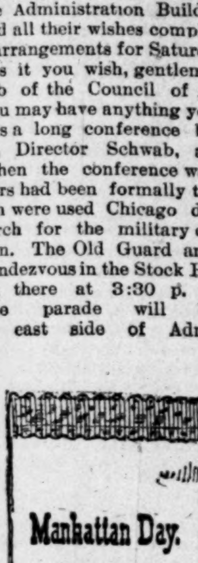
Mayor Gilroy's private secretary, Mr. McDonough, E. S. Cockey of the New York Celebration committee, and Capt. White, who will command the Old Guard Manhattan day, went to the Administration Building yesterday and had all their wishes complied with in respect to arrangements for Saturday.

"What is it you wish, gentlemen?" asked Mr. Schwab of the Council of Administration. "You may have anything you want."

There was a long conference between the committee, Director Schwab, and Frank Millet. When the conference was over the New-Yorkers had been formally tendered the floats which were used Chicago day, and the line of march for the military display was agreed upon. The Old Guard and the military will rendezvous in the Stock Pavilion and start from there at 3:30 p. m. From there the parade will be north along the east side of Administration Building to the Electricity Building, then across the canal to the west side of Manufactures, north and east to the lake shore, then north in front of the Government Building and on to the Mall, the street running east and west through the State buildings. The parade will pass the New York Building eastward, march south along the Woman's Building and the east side of Transportation Building to the plaza west of the Administration Building, where the procession will disband.



MANHATTAN DAY BADGE.

A fireworks display was agreed upon and the set pieces will be shown in the basin in front of the Peristyle. The rockets and other aerial effects will be produced out in the lake as usual.

All Buildings Open at Night.

Director-General Davis for Manhattan day issued an order that all the Exposition buildings be kept open Saturday night. He so telegraphed E. V. Skinner, the Secretary of the New York committee, and received promptly the following response:

New York, Oct. 17.—George R. Davis, Director-General: Thanks for your message of even date with reference to keeping open all exhibit buildings on night of 21st. Railroad offices here all report a large demand for tickets and many special parties are organizing. Our Mayor leaves tonight to conclude arrangements for what we hope will prove one of the historic events of the Exposition. We know, at least, that it will be indicative of the good will which New York bears Chicago. E. V. Skinner, Secretary.

No assistance which the Exposition management can render to New York people will be left undone. They have been given assurance that all their wishes will be respected. Mr. Millet is at work scheming for special features. Private Secretary McDonough was pleased with the reception he received, and left the Administration Building fully assured of coöperation.

The committee from the Sons of New York, ex-Mayor Creiger, Chairman, met with Mr. McDonough and Capt. Brand of the hussars at the Sherman House in the afternoon. It was announced that the Old Guard would arrive with Mayor Gilroy. The New York delegation will be quartered at the Grand Pacific. The command will wear the full winter uniform, with overcoat, blouse, belt, bayonets, scabbard, cartridge-box, white gloves, and fatigue-cap upon left hip. None of the members will be allowed to appear in citizens' dress at any time during the stay, not even when off duty. Maj. Sloane will have command and Capt. James F. Wonman will be the officer of the day. There will be 200 members of the Old Guard here.

Is Drawing Crowds.

Manhattan day is drawing the crowds. The one-cent a mile rate by the trunk lines on excursions in force Sunday is drawing to Chicago excursionists enough to tax the highest capacity of the twenty-one passenger lines with terminals in Chicago. All of these roads did a big Fair business yesterday.

"We have increased our capacity in the West 56 per cent on account of the late October rush to the Fair," said Supt. C. D. Law of the Pennsylvania lines. "We brought today six additional passenger engines to Chicago, and the Columbian express from now on will average from two to ten sections of from eight to twelve cars each. Our limited from New York was run yesterday in three sections and we also had six sections of train No. 8. We run no extras. We do not believe in that system. All our trains are run under the protection of a regular schedule and signals. Business this week should be greater than ever before. People will not come in a bunch as they did for Chicago day, but will keep gradually coming until Chicago beholds in its limits the greatest crowd in its history."

The St. Paul road ran yesterday 125 coaches more than are used in ordinary business. This line expects an average of 300,000 visitors in Chicago during this week. All its trains were loaded yesterday and every regular came in from two to six sections.

The Burlington brought in yesterday eighteen train-loads of through Fair passengers from the West, Northwest, and Southwest, coming from the territory beyond Aurora. One of the trains from the Southwest had fifteen car-loads. The total number of through passengers amounted to 8,900 people. The suburban service brought in from Aurora and intermediate points about 12,000 suburban passengers additional, making a total for the day of about 21,000.

Heavy Business of the Roads.

The Alton brought over 11,000 people, and expects to keep up that average during the week.

The Northwestern ran extra cars on all regular trains, and every train arrived in sections. General Manager Sanborn of this line said: "The travel has never been so heavy, but we are not running extras. There is no limit to the sections of regular trains, however. We are not short of engines or cars. The biggest crowd of the Fair will be here this week."

The Rock Island ran three extras yesterday, bringing in 1,300 people on these trains alone. The Nickel-Plate brought in 1,000 on two extras, outside of the crowded regular trains. The Chicago and Eastern Illinois ran eight extras, averaging eleven cars to the train. The Erie brought in 2,000 on four extras, and many extra coaches were added to the Monon's regular trains. Three extra trains on this route landed 1,800 passengers. The Grand Trunk had eight and the Wabash seven extra trains. One train on the Michigan Central from Detroit and the East came in ten sections.

Stationmaster Magron of the Grand Central Passenger Station said never before this season have the crowds been so constant and great in numerical strength.

The Baltimore and Ohio railway ran its morning eastern express in ten sections of twelve cars each. The opinion among railroad officials generally is that the coming week will find more travelers bound for Chicago than during any Fair week previous.

The Illinois Central is running all its trains in three sections. The travel from the South as far as Cairo is heavy. Officials of this line believe the travel will be heavier this week than any time previous.

More Details of Program.

New York, Oct. 17.—[Special.]—Mayor Gilroy has received mountains of letters and personal advices that the New-Yorkers are responding to the Manhattan day movement in the most gratifying manner. Chauncey M. Depew today estimated that from 125,000 to 150,000 New-Yorkers would attend the exercises Saturday. The first installment of official badges arrived at the Mayor's office late this afternoon. Mayor Gilroy and Gen. Horace Porter put their heads together today and settled upon the program for Saturday's exercises in Chicago. The day will begin with a parade.

The Old Guard, the Chicago Hussars, and other military organizations will assemble early in the morning and escort the committee and city and Fair officials from some place in the city, not yet decided, to the Midway Plaisance, through this to the New York Building. There a reception will take place, Mayor Gilroy for the city and Gen. Porter for the committee doing the honors. The parade will again form shortly after 1 o'clock and proceed to Festival Hall, where the exercises will take place.

Music will open the exercises and then Dr. Morgan Dix will make a prayer. Upon the platform, it was announced today, will be the chief officials of both cities, the members of the New York committee, the World's Fair officials, and a number of invited guests. Mayor Carter Harrison will begin the speeches by an address of welcome on the part of Chicago. To this Mayor Gilroy will reply for New York. More music will follow and then Chauncey M. Depew, Charles S. Smith, President of the Chamber of Commerce, and President Seth Low of Columbia College will speak in the order named. There will be singing by the big choral society and at the close of the program Archbishop Corrigan will pronounce the benediction.

In the evening the grounds will be gorgeously decorated. Every building within the inclosure will be kept open until midnight and will be brilliant with colored lights. The New York State Building, of course, will be the center of the display. The New York committee has ordered $10,000 worth of fireworks to be displayed in the neighborhood of the New York Building, and the World's Fair officials have ordered special works, too.

A number of business-houses are going to pay the expenses of certain of their employés to Chicago. There will be a tremendous gathering of New York commercial travelers.

Mayor Gilroy, accompanied by Corporation Counsel Clark and one or two others, left for Chicago at midnight tonight by the Baltimore and Ohio. The Board of Aldermen passed resolutions requesting the boards of the various departments, including the Board of Education, to grant all their employés who might wish to be at the Fair Manhattan day one week's vacation.

There will be a meeting of the committee in Chicago Friday.

BOURKE COCKRAN ON THE FAIR.

Declares It "A Marvelous Wonder"—Delighted with What He Has Seen.

The famous Tammany orator, Bourke Cockran, is "doing the Fair" in advance of New York day. To a reporter of the Post he said:

The New York people are deeply interested in the Fair and as many of them will be in the city Saturday as can be safely transported from the coast. There is no question about the success of the Fair. It is a marvelous wonder. One is surprised at it, too, for with all due appreciation of this great city, there is nothing in it or about it that suggests the sublime beauty of the World's Fair which you have produced. Nothing in the city leads strangers to expect such architectural perfection as characterizes the whole Exposition. It is wonderful. That feature more than any other has appealed to me since I arrived. I have seen all the recent great expositions, and national and international displays, but I have never seen anything approaching this. Of the exhibits I have seen but little, but from what I have read and heard they surpass any collection ever made. It is a great success, a glory to Chicago, and a pride of the nation.

Last summer when I was out here to the convention I made a trip to the grounds and saw the mud-building material and almost hopeless confusion of labor. The ultimate success of the undertaking was doubtful then. I have not been in your city since then, and when I look upon this Exposition that grew out of the confusion of a year ago I am astonished. There is nothing that I can say that will adequately express my admiration and delight at what is before me. New York is deeply interested in Manhattan day. I hope to see the celebration one of the greatest of the Fair, but I may not be able to remain here and witness our success, but I am doing what I can to aid the committee in making the occasion a success in every possible way. The program, however, is being made up in New York and I am unable to give any information concerning it that has not already been published.

Bourke Cockran is going to stay in Chicago to do what he can to make Manhattan day as historic an event as possible. He is a member of the Manhattan Day committee. He was in the New York Building yesterday discussing the plans for Saturday's celebration. At first the Tammany orator had not intended staying in Chicago until Saturday, but the enthusiasm of the committeemen and the sights at the Fair have caused him to change his plans, and if it can be arranged he will be at Jackson Park Saturday.

The Award Diploma Fight.

The Associated American Exhibiters yesterday unanimously approved of the action of their Board of Directors in indorsing the plan of the lady managers for getting diplomas of honorable mention. The exhibiters are sending telegrams to Congressmen urging the passage of the Durborow resolution. Mr. Thacher is not idle. It was announced in the National Commission yesterday there was an organization in Washington prepared to fight the plan of the lady managers. Commissioner St. Clair said he was opposed to it, as he thought it was wrong, but added that as soon as an exact copy could be procured from Washington he would present a copy to the Commissioners, leaving it to the members to approve it or take adverse action. Commissioner Hundley of the Awards committee, it is said will present today a resolution favoring the plan of the lady managers.

To Protect Purchasers of Souvenir Coins.

The World's Fair directors have decided to protect the purchasers of souvenir half dollars, and all the coins sent back to the Treasury Department will be reminted into ordinary half dollars. There are nearly 2,500,000 coins that it is estimated cannot be sold, and the directors will pay the cost of converting them into common money. Notification to this effect will be sent to Washington within a few days. The directors are determined that there shall be no glut in the market in the matter of souvenir coins, and every person who paid a dollar for one will probably find it rise in value instead of decrease.

Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans Coming.

Bloomington, Ill., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—The inmates of the Soldiers' and Sailors Orphans' Home at Normal, numbering nearly 1,000, will in a body attend the World's Columbian Exposition two days during the coming week. The State will pay their railway fare and their board and lodging, and the Fair Commissioners will take them in charge on their arrival in Chicago and see that they are provided with proper lodging places. Resident Trustee A. S. Eddy of this city went to Chicago today to perfect the arrangements and determine when the children will start for Chicao.

Weather at the Fair.

The automatic instruments at the Weather Bureau exhibit recorded weather conditions at the Fair up to 5 p. m. yesterday as follows: The minimum temperature was 40° at 6:30 a. m.; maximum, 63° at 2:20 p. m. The temperature at 5 p. m. was 54°. At the time of the maximum temperature a change in the wind direction caused a sudden fall of 7°. The direction of the wind was southwesterly until about 2 p. m., when it shifted to the southeast, remaining steadily in this direction during the afternoon. Continuous sunshine was recorded from 6:55 a. m. to 4 p. m. The barometric pressure was unusually high.

Antwerp Exposition Booming.

Stanislas E. Haine, Vice-President of the Antwerp Exposition, returned to Chicago yesterday. He reports great progress in the work of securing exhibits for the exposition next summer and says the Belgian people who have heard so much of the great Chicago Exposition are looking forward to a remarkable display in the American section at Antwerp.

World's Fair Notes.

From now until the close of the Fair the Art Palace is to be open evenings until 10 o'clock.

The Associated American Exhibiters decided yesterday to make their organization permanent. All American exhibiters were made associate members.

The Fire Department of Walla Walla, Wash., has passed resolutions eulogizing the firemen who lost their lives in the Cold Storage fire at the World's Fair.

The Algerian Café has been opened again and Al Sifeico is now in the management, vice Sol. Blume. The row between him and the seventeen Algerians whom he had arrested has been settled out of court. The charge against Mr. Blume of embezzling $290 remains to be heard.

George Barry of Dawson, Ill., accidentally tipped over a statue of Diana in the Australian Building yesterday. It was injured and in its fall broke the nose off a bust figure of Sarah Bernhardt. Thomas Pugh, the Superintendent of the exhibit, asked Barry to pay $80 for the damage. He did not have the money and was given a ride in a patrol wagon to the Service Building. The officer of the day decided that the case was one for the civil courts to pass upon.

SEE THE FAIR SIGHTS.

SIXTY THOUSAND CHILDREN "DO" THE EXPOSITION.

They Make a Vast Picnic Ground Out of the White City—Lunch Place the Magnet That Keeps Them from Getting Lost—Raid on Agricultural Building Free Samples—Waifs Go to the Exposition Today—More Tickets for Those Who Need Them—Other Fair News.

Over sixty thousand children turned the Fair grounds into a monster picnic yesterday. At noon they were still presenting their tickets. Nearly every group brought a lunch basket. It was amusing to see little tots carrying bundles of lunch half as big as themselves for the crowd they were with, and passing the burden in turn from one to another. The solicitude shown for the safety of the lunch was the magnet that kept these little groups together in their wanderings, and the thought of going with an empty stomach, if lost, served, in many cases better than the command of a parent not to get too far away.

As the Children's Building was one of the first the little ones met on entering the grounds many of them remained there a greater part of the day. The gymnasium, its swinging rings, ladders, and slippery swinging poles were alive with young people all day, and from the reckless manner in which they used the apparatus an accident was looked for any moment. No broken heads or limbs were reported by nightfall, however.

In the Transportation Building the boys found their haven of rest, for there are few American boys who have not the ambition to be an engineer, fireman, or brakeman on a railroad train. They clambered over the locomotives, sat on the cowcatchers, and though there were ropes and guards around the engines the boys found their way into the cabs and tenders and bestowed upon themselves the honor of putting their hands on the throttle and lever. They hovered about the displays of cars and models of ships.

The Fisheries Building was the objective point of an army of children as soon as they reached the grounds, and it was one of the first buildings to become crowded. Guards found it necessary to direct the movements of the crowd in the building, and fixed one door for an exit and one for an entrance. Inside the crowd was so dense that sight-seers could only move with the procession. Several able-bodied fathers placed their promising sons on their shoulders and marched through the place, thus giving them an excellent view over the heads of the older folks.

Penny-in-the-slot-machines were patronized as they never were before.

When noon arrived the children squatted down on the floor, the edges of platforms, on benches, or wherever they chanced to be, and munched away until all the lunch each little party had was gone. Some juvenile diners selected peculiar perches on which to rest and eat their dinners. They climbed over the lions and figures of other animals at the entrances to several of the buildings and amused themselves throwing crusts at the passer-by.

The attendants at the displays in the galleries of the Agricultural Building no doubt wonder how all the little folks learned that they gave away free biscuits up there. The word seems to have been passed among the children early in the day that free food could be had in the Agricultural Building, and thither they directed their steps with great haste. They swarmed around the exhibiters and stretched out their hands wherever the plate was passed.

Waifs to Go Tomorrow.

The newsboys and bootblacks are to meet in front of the Memorial Art Palace at 8 a. m. Thursday, where they will form in line and march to the Illinois Central viaduct. Two special trains have been placed at their disposal through the personal interest of President Fish. H. H. Kohlsaat has furnished $100 worth of pastry for luncheon for the little fellows and Mr. Ferris has offered to give each of them a ride free in the big wheel. The boys will be decorated with a Ferris wheel badge, which will pass them through the turnstile. Those who have aided the ladies' committee in taking the waifs to the Fair are the following:

| | Tickets. |
|---|---|
| Mrs. James W. Scott | 1,000 |
| The Wild West | 1,000 |
| Mr. Fowler | 1,000 |
| The Hub | 500 |
| The Bee | 250 |
| David Mayer (personal) | 250 |
| Harry G. Selfridge (cash) | $50 |

A number of other smaller amounts have been sent to Mrs. Lewis D. Webster, Mrs. James W. Scott, Mrs. William Borden, and Mrs. Louis Herrich, the committee, and it is thought all will be provided for. Anyone wishing to aid the movement further may send checks to James W. Scott or Mrs. Lewis Dana Webster, No. 386 Dearborn avenue.

Supt. Lane and Alexander H. Revell were busy yesterday taking care of the children's World's Fair tickets. Mr. Revell gets the contributions and the tickets, and Supt. Lane distributes them among the children. The work has grown beyond all previous estimates, and up to last night 25,000 children had been supplied. The distribution is not confined to school children. All worthy requests are taken care of, and there seems to be no reasonable excuse for any child to miss seeing the Fair as far as admission tickets are concerned. Mr. Revell has 5,000 more tickets ready for distribution today, and says there is need of many more. He believes when a ticket is given to a school boy or girl the recipient will get to the Fair some way or other.

Additional Subscriptions Made.

The Superintendent desires that all principals who have in their schools a single pupil who has not been once to the Fair shall call at his office this morning and get tickets. Many have not called at all, and a number of those who came for tickets for the scholars of the grammar grades have not been back for tickets for the pupils of the primary grades. There are tickets enough for all, and more are coming in.

Eighty-six children were reported lost yesterday. Considering that 60,000 children were within the grounds the number of these who became separated from their relatives or chaperons is not large. Thirty-five were picked up by guards before night. They were taken to the Service Building and there awaited the arrival of their friends. The majority of those who were lost were school children. There were many anxious mothers who cried for fear some harm had come to their children. At midnight only three boys were in the Service Building. Their parents had not called for them. They were given beds.

"If not too late," says A. B. Freud, No. 2568 Emerald avenue, "I would suggest that all physically able public school teachers donate one day out of children's week to take their respective classes to the Fair, as in that way only will the object of this vacation be accomplished."

Watseka, Ill., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—The public-spirited citizens of Watseka have raised a fund to pay the entire expense of taking 200 poor children to the World's Fair. Four cars have been chartered, and the excursion will leave tomorrow morning with a sufficient number of attendants to care for the children, who range from 9 to 16 years of age.

NO FAT STOCK JUDGING AS YET.

Owners of Exhibits Restive on Account of Thacher's Delay.

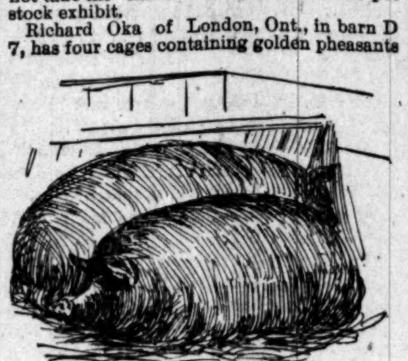
The neglect of John Boyd Thacher's committee to appoint and confirm the necessary judges of award prevented any judging at the fat stock or light horse shows yesterday. Everything else was in readiness. In the poultry and pet stock department everything will be in readiness for awards today. Yesterday the final 500 birds were received that make the exhibit the largest and most complete of its kind ever held. Supt. Seeger has been working night and day and the 5,000 entries and the 7,000 specimens have been handled expeditiously and successfully. Throngs of admirers surged up and down the aisles between the coops yesterday.

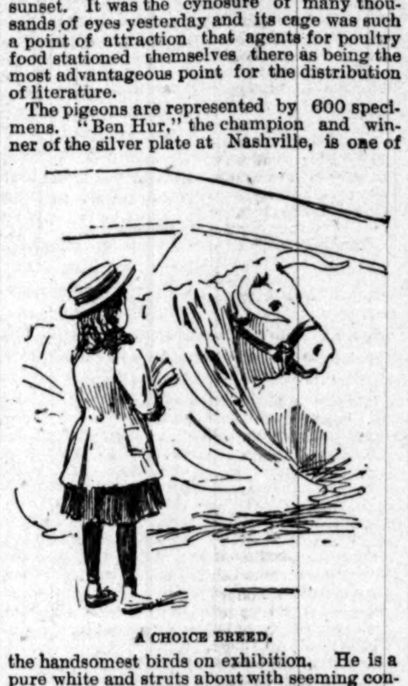
A four-legged hen exhibited by Mrs. J. G. Vaughn of Odin, Ill., had a crowd about her compartment all of the afternoon. It did not take the children long to find the pet stock exhibit.

Richard Oka of London, Ont., in barn D 7, has four cages containing golden pheasants and Oriental frills. One of the pheasants has plumage that would put to shame an Italian sunset. It was the cynosure of many thousands of eyes yesterday and its cage was such a point of attraction that agents for poultry food stationed themselves there as being the most advantageous point for the distribution of literature.



A PLUMP PAIR.

The pigeons are represented by 600 specimens. "Ben Hur," the champion and winner of the silver plate at Nashville, is one of the handsomest birds on exhibition. He is a pure white and struts about with seeming contempt for his neighbors, the fantails.



A CHOICE BREED.

The live stock people are inquiring why they do not get the premiums awarded them at the Fair. They have understood $150,000 was set aside for premiums for the live stock exhibit, but they have not seen anything of the money yet and they are inquiring why.

Examining Food Exhibits.

Prof. W. C. Atwater, assisted by Prof. Woods. Prof. Smyth, and Dr. H. S. Gibson, in the chemical laboratories of the University of Chicago and of the Northwestern University Medical School are making an analysis of foods for the Awards committee to determine the amount of nutrition in each and which are most economical from the standpoint of health and purse. Several hundred specimens of American preserved meats, vegetables, and other products have been taken for examinantion, as well as specimens of fresh meat as slaughtered in Chicago. Foods and standard food materials from foreign countries to the number of 1,000 specimens are also represented.

For a Prize Winners' Exposition.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—There will be held in New York from Nov. 24, prox., to Jan. 15, 1894, an exposition to be known as the "World's Fair Prize Winner' Exposition," in which foreign nations and foreign exhibiters have been invited and have agreed to participate. With a view to aiding this enterprise Mr. Fitch of New York has introduced a bill in the House asking for special customs regulations. The bill has been referred to the House Committee of Ways and Means.

Detroiters Arrive Today.

The National Guard of Detroit, Mich., forty strong, accompanied by the Detroit Newsboys' Band of thirty-five players, will arrive at the World's Fair this morning. They will be eacamped at the west end of Midway and expect to remain ten days.

MUSIC AT THE FAIR.

At the same hour that Mr. Eddy gave his organ recital in Festival Hall yesterday Miss Neally Stevens played a pianoforte program in Recital Hall, Music Hall Building. The numbers presented by Miss Stevens were principally by American and resident American composers, and mostly of a minor character. The variety afforded was, nevertheless, agreeable, and several of the compositions, notably those by Seeboeck, Klein, and Barili, were marked by poetic conception. Miss Stevens has a small though musical tone, and played in a conscientious manner, at times with appreciation, but failing in warmth and vigor.

The first movement of Bargiel's Trio in F major opened the program of the popular concert; Mr. Bendix, first violin; Mr. Unger, 'cello, and Mr. Liebling at the piano. The piano part was made subservient in a musicianly degree, but because of this fact the work of the strings, strongly in evidence, became more marked, displaying oftener the quality of orchestral precision rather than that spontaneous fluency which should distinguish chamber music. The quartet work later, however, in which Mr. Dietrich acceptably supplied the place of Mr. Junker, was more agreeable in result. Mrs. Katharine Fisk sang two songs, "Calm as the Night," by Bohm, and Griswold's "What the Chimney Said," obtaining a peremptory encore. Mrs. Fisk's voice is a contralto, combining great volume and warmth and of dramatic quality. There is at times unwise use of the vibrato, and as yet uncertain knowledge of the subtle gradations in dramatic values, shortcomings which, owing to the musicianly intelligence displayed by Mrs. Fisk, will doubtless be of but passing duration. Mr. Liebling played Mozkowski's brilliant "Valse de Concert," and Mr. Bendix played a chopin "Nocturne" and Poppers' "Elfentanz." The program for today's popular concert in Music Hall at 2 o'clock p. m. is as follows:

|---|---|
| Piano Quartet, Andante and Finale | Schumann |
| Violin Solo, Air Varie | Wieniawski |
| Mr. Bendix. | |
| Piano Solos (a) Last Hope | Gottschalk |
| (b) Scherzo, op. 31 | Chopin |
| Mr. Liebling. | |
| Aria | |
| Mrs. Fisk. | |
| Quartet, last movement | Grieg |

MANY MORE ARE HURT

LIST OF INJURED IN WABASH WRECK REACHES SEVENTY-ONE.

All of Them, with the Possible Exception of One Woman, Will Recover—Accident Caused by Breaking of a Rod and Was Unavoidable—Another of the Injured at Jackson Dies, Making a Total of Thirteen—Four Killed in Pennsylvania Collision.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—Those who were injured in last night's Wabash wreck are doing well, and it is doubtful if there will be any fatalities. Helen Lithgow Duncan, from London, aged 18 years, a girl who was en route to Omaha with her family, was the most badly hurt and may not recover. Her injuries are internal. The complete list shows that seventy-one were injured. Those in addition to previous list are:

Ahern, C. R., No. 2220 Cass avenue.

Whitlaw, Buck, Paris, Tex.; back injured.
Woods, Frank B., conductor of wrecked train.
Wade, Thomas A., Fieldon, Ill.
Williams, J. H., Springfield.
Zimmerman, Charles M., Cincinnati.

General Manager Magee of the Wabash estimates the property loss of the company at $31,000. No one can be blamed for the accident. It was caused by the steel rod which holds the frog to the rail breaking. This forced the rail alongside the frog out. The front wheels of the engine jumped the gap, but spread it wider, and the first car of the train was derailed. The action of the crew of the Chicago and Alton train, which passed immediately after the wreck and refused aid, has been severely condemned on all sides, and is being investigated by the officials of that road.

THIRTEENTH WRECK VICTIM DIES.

Testimony at Inquest on Failure of Air Brakes.

Jackson, Mich., Oct. 17.—Mrs. Timothy Donovan of Morris Run, Pa., one of the most seriously injured in the Michigan Central wreck here Friday last, died at the City Hospital at 8 o'clock this morning. This makes the thirteenth victim. The remains will be taken to Towanda, Pa., tonight. Engineer Whalen's leg is more seriously hurt than supposed, and it is feared amputation may be necessary.

At the inquest this morning Baggageman Russell testified that there was a door in the front end of the baggage car. He looked out of the door after leaving Ann Arbor and saw no one on the platform. Mrs. Mary Slater, however, testified that when the train passed her house she saw a man standing on the steps of the front platform of the baggage car.

Phillip Veaugie, head brakeman on second special, testified that he had heard only one whistle for brakes, saw the conductor pull automatic brake cord, and it had no effect.

D. H. Sutherland, Superintendent of the Eastern and Bay City divisions of the Michigan Central, gave the time at different points of the two trains, which showed that they were running a half hour apart up to the time they left Grass Lake. He said when trains are run slow across unprotected streets there is more danger than when running fast. "The Michigan Central," he continued, "does not make rules which its trainmen cannot enforce. When we can make the public safer we do not take notice of city ordinances."

Engineer Whalen testified that he tested the air brakes three times between the first real stop and Ypsilanti and everything was all right. He slackened up at Ann Arbor and Dexter. At both places the air checked the train. He was then running about twenty-eight miles an hour. He next tried the air east of the high bridge, near Jackson, made a light application, saw the brakes came up to the wheels, and then released them. At Elm avenue the brake worked on the engine but failed on the cars. Then he called for emergency brakes, but they also failed. Felt no change from handbrakes, and then reversed the engine and put on the sand. Train was running twenty miles an hour when crash came. Opinion is that the air worked on the engine, but not on the coach. Think it was cut off between the tender and the cars.

FOUR KILLED IN RAILROAD YARDS.

Pennsylvania Limited Collides with Freight Crossing at Right Angles.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 17.—Four deaths have resulted from a collision of the Pennsylvania limited with a freight train in the yards of the Cleveland and Pittsburg railroad at Wellsville, O., early this morning. The dead are:

Caruthers, George, Cleveland and Pittsburg engineer, acting as pilot for limited, instantly killed; resided at Ravena, O.; leaves widow and large family.
Ferree, Robert, express messenger of New Philadelphia, O., both legs crushed and otherwise injured; died while being taken home.
Jackson, Robert A., engineer of the limited, resided at No. 231 Locust street, Allegheny; terribly scalded; died after four hours' suffering.
Jackson, Elmer, fireman of the Limited, frightfully scalded, arms and limbs broken, and head cut, died within a few minutes.

The injured are:

Coughanour, Daniel, engineer of freight, Wellsville, O., badly hurt by jumping.
Fowler, Edward, train electrician, Chicago, both legs crushed, otherwise injured.
Frazier, Alexander, Bellevue, Pa., baggagemaster, badly scalded and hurt internally.

A dense fog prevailing is considered responsible for the accident. The freight train was crossing the track almost at right angles with the approaching train. The crew of the freight saw their danger in time to jump.

EXPRESS AND FREIGHT COLLISION.

Big Four Trains Come Together in Indiana, Injuring Two.

Wabash, Ind., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—South bound express train No. 23 and local freight No. 81 on the Michigan division of the Big Four collided just before noon today at North Manchester in this county. The freight train was unable to get into a side track and the engine was cut off and run around to the rear. The express running at a high rate of speed struck the freight engine's tender. Both locomotives were totally wrecked and the caboose and baggage car were smashed. The passengers were thrown over the seats by the shock. The only ones injured were:

Barry, William, of Goshen, injured about head, back, and limbs.
Davidson, Woodford, of Indianapolis, bruised about face and head.

Twelve Freight Cars Wrecked.

Beaver Falls, Pa., Oct. 17.—At 5:10 o'clock this morning a freight train coming down the heavy grade west of here broke in two. The two parts crashed together, wrecking twelve cars of merchandise, the freight station platform, and the telegraph tower. Elmer Lyons, the telegraph operator, was thrown down a forty-foot embankment and badly hurt. Several tramps are thought to be under the wreck.

You will be free from sour rising food by using Carter's Little Liver Pills.

SUBMITS TO A DELICATE OPERATION.

Commander-in-Chief Adams Has Pieces of a Broken Bone Removed.

Capt. J. S. B. Adams, "Jack," as his old comrades at the front thirty years ago still call him, Commander-in-Chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, submitted yesterday to a delicate surgical operation.

At the battle of Gettysburg Capt. Adams' body was punctured by two minie balls. They struck him simultaneously and until he was examined he did not know he had been hit twice. They struck him in the right hip, and one plowed its way through and passed out of the groin. The other struck the pelvic bone and shattered it.

Every five years since then he has suffered almost beyond endurance with necrosis and septicemia, due to deep suppuration, and for weeks the agony continued until the pus burrowed its way through his body forming for itself a canal to the groin.

Saturday Capt. and Mrs. Adams arrived at the Imperial Hotel from their home in Boston to see the World's Fair. Capt. Adams complained of his wound and discovered that a swelling was forming on the hip where none had ever before developed. Dr. W. Lewis Tallman and Dr. Christian Fenger of the North Side were called in. At noon yesterday the patient was prepared for an operation. "Are you sure I'll come out of it?" he asked. Upon being assured he would he placed himself on the table and remarked: "Then I'll not bid my wife good-by."

Examination indicated that because of the patient's age—he is 52—and because of undue exertion there had separated a spicula of bone from the main pelvic bone and the death of the small bone produced a deep abscess. The surgeons opened up the fleshy part of the thigh and completely removed a large quantity of débris. After thoroughly cleansing the abscess another opening was cut through to the back of the thigh and a large drainage tube was introduced, by which the cavity may be kept free from all poison.

The patient stood the anæsthetic and operation exceedingly well. The time was one hour and thirty minutes, and when he returned to consciousness he was quite hilarious at the removal of the cause of his trouble. He will not have sufficiently recovered to leave his room earlier than three weeks hence.

IROQUOIS CLUB MEN FOR SILVER REPEAL.

The Club Pronounces for Unconditional Stoppage of Purchase of Bullion.

After a debate of considerable duration held with closed doors the Iroquois club of Chicago last night at its regular quarterly meeting expressed itself in favor of the repeal of the Sherman act. The resolution is:

The members of the Iroquois club of Chicago, in regular meeting assembled, express their earnest conviction that the best interests of the country demand the immediate and unconditional repeal of the purchasing clause of the Sherman law of 1890. We sincerely hope that the majority of the Senate, who are known to favor such repeal, will remain true to their convictions. We believe that the attempt of the minority to defeat by obstructive methods the popular will, as expressed by the House of Representatives, should be manfully resisted by the majority.

Copies of the resolution were ordered sent to President Cleveland, the President of the Senate, and the Speaker of the House of Representatives. The meeting was representative and was presided over by Adlai T. Ewing. In addition to this the club passed a resolution of condolence with Richard W. Morrison, Assistant State's-Attorney, who received serious injuries in a cable accident some days ago.

WILL the august minority in the Senate graciously finish transacting the business of the United States of America and adjourn?

WE extend to the frost-bitten people of Mississippi, Tennessee, and Louisiana a cordial invitation to come up to Chicago and get warm.

A NEW YORK contemporary says Gov. Altgeld is a part of the "change" the people voted for last year. He is, but in this part of the country he is regarded as pretty small change.

THE most persistent and conspicuous barker connected with the Midway Plaisance department of the Senatorial show appears just now to be the Hon. Mr. Allen of Nebraska.

COL. WATTERSON advances the theory that it is the weight of the crazy scheme the Western financiers are piling upon silver that makes the Montana statue of Justice bowlegged. Col. Watterson has no business to know whether that statue is bow-legged or not.

A BRIGHT comet with short tail was discovered by Brooks at 4 o'clock Tuesday morning. The object was then in 12 hours 21 minutes of right ascension and 12 degrees 55 minutes of north declination, with a slow motion towards the northeast. The comet is about 7 degrees east from Beta, the bright star in the tail of Leo Major.

THE editor of the Gordonsville (Va.) Gazette, feeling himself entitled to a vacation, and having no substitute upon whom he can shift the burden of getting out his paper in his absence, has announced a suspension of one issue of the Gazette and has come to the Fair. We welcome him as a patriotic citizen of the American Republic and hope he will have as good a time as he deserves.

THE New York stock market was lower yesterday on the same old reason of the Senate's delay. The local market was both active and strong. Sterling declined. New York exchange sold at 75 cents premium.—The leading produce markets were less active and comparatively steady, prices holding within a narrow range. Wheat receipts at primary markets were again liberal, and corn was sustained by the good shipping demand. As compared with the latest prices of the previous day December wheat closed ⅜ cent lower, May corn steady, oats ¼ cent higher, cash rye firm, barley weak, flaxseed steady, January pork 25 cents lower, lard 12½ cents lower, and ribs 15 cents lower.

THERE does not seem to be any good reason for the interference of State's-Attorney Kern in the quo warranto proceedings against the Lake Street "L" road. His action is not approved by the people. It is not demanded in the public interest. On the contrary, the West Side people, who have been denied rapid transit facilities long enough, condemn Mr. Kern's course, and the action of the Council last night unanimously requesting him not to further obstruct the completion of the "L" road should have some weight with him. The best interests of the West Side will be served by the completion of the two "L" roads now in process of construction. Every action that tends to delay needlessly the extension of rapid transit facilities to the most populous section of the city is censurable.

NOTWITHSTANDING that the Controller protested to the Mayor against the extra appropriation for the Street Department asked for by Supt. McCarthy, to be used to make anti-Gary votes on election day, and that Mr. Wetherell also wrote to the Commissioner of Public Works saying that "the condition of the city finances is such as absolutely to forbid the extra expenditure," yet Mr. McCarthy was in the Council Monday evening lobbying and wirepulling for the additional appropriation. He was at the Democratic machine committee meeting in the afternoon, where the use of such a fund for political purposes was discussed, and he paid more attention then to advancing the interests of his friend Larry Boyle than to the interests of the public which contributes his salary. Had he attended strictly to his official duties during the year there would have been no necessity for the extra appropriation. He has not attended to his duties. He is not attending to his duties now. He devotes himself to wirepulling and intrigue for his personal candidate, and seeks to use the public funds in aid of his political schemes. If the Mayor should consult his own dignity and the dignity of the body over which he presides he would reprimand or dismiss McCarthy for his mismanagement of the funds of his department and his unseemly proceedings at the Council meeting Monday.

THE so-called compromises proposed by free silver Senators are notable for the fact that they all provide for more silver, but not one provides for selling bonds to get more gold. The excuse given for this by some of the compromisers is that it is "contrary to Democratic traditions" to borrow money. This is the first that has been heard of such traditions. Bonds—or stock, as it was then called—were issued under Mr. Jefferson's administration in connection with the Louisiana purchase. No one condemns that action, but it is as proper to sell bonds to preserve the stability of the currency as to get Louisiana. The Madison administration borrowed money right and left to carry on the war of 1812. The Monroe administration sold bonds, or stock. The Van Buren administration borrowed money on Treasury notes, which were funded into stock under his successor. The Polk administration sold bonds. That of Buchanan borrowed money on bonds and Treasury notes. These are the Democratic traditions and precedents. There is nothing in them which should make any Democrat unwilling to borrow money to protect the credit of the government at this time. These free silverites know there are no such traditions as they speak of. Their objection to the sale of bonds is that the gold which would be received for them would be used to save the country from a slump to the silver standard.

MANHATTAN DAY BOOMING.

It is now certain that Manhattan day will come next to Chicago day among the red letter events of the World's Fair. Perhaps it will surpass it should the weather be fair, but this is hardly probable. On Chicago day Chicago had the help of the Northwest, and although it proposes to turn out in force Saturday it is not likely that the Manhattanites will send a sufficient delegation to offset the delegations from the West on the former occasion.

All the same, Manhattan day is bound to be a big one. It is now anticipated that between 50,000 and 60,000 New-Yorkers will come here escorted by the Old Guard, which in turn will be escorted by the First Illinois Regiment when the Guard comes, and by the Chicago Hussars when it leaves. The program for the day will be an elaborate one. At noon the New-Yorkers will rendezvous at their building, and march thence to Festival Hall. There addresses will be made by Mayor Gilroy, Gen. Porter, President Seth Low, Bourke Cockran, Chauncey M. Depew, Frederick R. Coudert, and others. Mrs. Agnes Booth Schoeffel will recite a poem, and the New York Apollo club and delegations from the Arion and Liederkranz will sing. At half-past 3 there will be a big parade of military bodies, and in the evening a magnificent illumination and display of fireworks.

The celebration of Manhattan day has roused as much interest here, and perhaps more, than it has in New York. It may not be as general a holiday as Chicago day, but many of our largest establishments will lose and the municipal government will turn out solidly to do New York honor, headed by the Mayor, who will have old Dutch blood in his veins for that occasion only. Without a single feeling of resentment or a qualm of jealousy Chicago will do its utmost to make the day a booming success, and it expects New York to do the same. THE TRIBUNE already has set forth in detail the splendid exhibits made by New York in nearly every department of the Fair, and it once more urges the New-Yorkers to come and see for themselves what their State exhibiters and their architects have done, and to see the Fair itself, of which Bourke Cockran, their eloquent Tammany orator, now in the city, says:

> There is no question about the success of the Fair. It is a marvelous wonder. One is surprised at it, too, for with all due appreciation of this great city, there is nothing in it or about it that suggests the sublime beauty of the World's Fair which you have produced. Nothing in the city leads strangers to expect such architectural perfection as characterizes the whole Exposition. It is wonderful. That feature more than any other has appealed to me since I arrived. I have seen all the recent great expositions and national and international displays, but I have never seen anything approaching this. Of the exhibits I have seen but little, but from what I have read and heard they surpass any collection ever made. It is a great success, a glory to Chicago, and the pride of the Nation.

Can the New-Yorkers resist after this? Will even Dr. Dana hold out longer and sin away his day of grace? In this connection THE TRIBUNE does not indorse the proposition of the Mayor's paper to lassoo him in New York, ship him here by express, and then run him through the Fair with a posse of Columbian Guards behind him. It believes yet he can be brought here by moral suasion. If he cannot then he must be left to perish in his sins.

WANTED: A DEMOCRATIC PLAN.

A two-thirds majority of the Republican Senators have given President Cleveland's bill for the repeal of the silver purchase clauses of the Sherman law their hearty and unfaltering support. They have put more votes at his disposal than has his own party. For the purpose of securing results beneficial to the country they have accepted the leadership of the Democrat Voorhees and have followed where he led. He insisted on a couple of months of talk and then on the "continuous session" experiment and they acquiesced. They have remained at Washington and in the Senate chamber at great personal inconvenience to help Mr. Cleveland and to oblige Mr. Voorhees, but matters seem to be no more advanced than they were two months ago towards stopping silver inflation.

Every now and then some free silver Democrat comes forward with a "compromise proposition." The Republican Senators have turned a deaf ear to all of them and have stuck by President Cleveland's repeal program. They pay no attention to these schemes of individual Senators. They are waiting for the Democratic party in the Senate to act. That party in the House has done so. The same party in the Senate should put its views in the form of an amendment to the pending bill or a totally new measure, and then it will not take the Republicans long to decide what they will do regarding it.

The Democrats are in the majority in the Senate and they are responsible for what is done there. They cannot evade that responsibility and throw it on the Republicans. If the latter had a financial scheme of their own they could not pass it, no matter how meritorious it might be. All that they can do is to make their choice between Democratic plans if the majority cannot agree on some one plan. The Republican Senators have given their approval thus far to the policy of Mr. Cleveland and of the Democratic House of Representatives. If the Democratic party in the Senate has anything better to propose let it produce it, so that other Senators and the people generally may pass judgment on it. It may be that if all the Democrats in the Senate will agree on a plan it will be possible to get a vote on it. For the Republicans will not filibuster against it, no matter what it is, and the Populists and silver State Senators would find obstruction rather difficult if deprived of their Democratic allies.

If the Democrats want to convince the people that it is possible that they can govern the country after a half-decent fashion for the next three years they ought to pull themselves together and present a plan of their own if they cannot accept the Cleveland program. The Republican "repeal" Senators cannot be expected to spend all their time in the Senate chamber making up a quorum so that Peffer and Stewart and Jones and Morgan may make blathering speeches to a mere handful of unlistening Senators. They expect the Senate Democrats, who are in power, and who, if united, can pass any bill without them, to devise something which will meet with unanimous Democratic support and pass it. Then the House and Senate Democrats will have to settle their disagreement the best they can.

THE CHINESE REGISTRATION LAW AMENDED.

The House has passed, with only nine negative votes, the bill amending the law of May, 1892, providing that all the Chinese laborers who were in the United States lawfully should register and take out certificates, and that those who, being unlawfully in the country, were not entitled to certificates should be sent back to China. A year was given the Chinese in which to comply with the law. As a general thing they failed to do so. Out of 106,000 only 13,000 took out certificates. This was due not so much to inability to register as to reliance on the opinion given the representatives of the Chinese by eminent counsel—Joseph Choate of New York being one of them—that the Supreme Court would declare the law to be unconstitutional. As has happened to other eminent lawyers on other occasions, the Supreme Court did not coincide with their views. But as of the nine Judges only five upheld the law, while three did not, and one Judge was absent, Mr. Choate was not without support in his opinion.

The decision of the Supreme Court was given a few days after the expiration of the time during which the Chinese were allowed to register. Hence there are about 93,000 of them who are liable to arrest and deportation. But it would take seven millions to pay the expenses of their removal, and since each of them would demand a trial the United States courts in California would not be able to attend to any other business for years. For these reasons, and because the Chinese were misled by the lawyers, the House has passed this bill extending the period of registration for six months, and also defining more strictly than in previous laws the word "laborer" as follows:

> The word shall be construed to mean both skilled and unskilled manual laborers, including Chinese employed in mining, fishing, huckstering, peddling, laundrymen, or those engaged in taking, drying, or otherwise preserving shell or other fish for home consumption or exportation.

It is believed that all the Chinese who were here lawfully before May 5, 1892, will take out certificates and will remain in the United States, from which it was not the intention of the Geary law to expel them. The sole object of that measure was to separate the sheep from the goats, and to provide for shipping the latter out of a country which they had entered in violation of law. About six months hence the uncertificated Chinese, whose number will not be very great, can be taken in hand and sent where they belong. The law as amended provides that the photograph of every registered Chinaman must be attached to his certificate, so that there can be little or no misuse of these papers. They cannot be loaned to those unlawfully here to protect them from arrest.

It is understood that the Chinese Government is not dissatisfied with the law in its amended form. It is not a matter of much consequence what that government thinks of American legislation, but other things being equal it is just as well that whatever influence it does exert among Chinese in the United States should be exerted to make them obey its laws promptly and cheerfully.

FRANCE LOSES A GREAT MAN.

Gen. MacMahon, Duke of Magenta, Marshal of France, and the second President of the French Republic, has just passed away at the advanced age of 85. He was descended from an ancient Irish family, and, like so many others of his race, took to a military career, in which he rose to high honors. After his graduation from St. Cyr he first saw service in Algeria and rose from a Captaincy to a General of Brigade. In the Crimean war he distinguished himself, and in the Italian campaign of 1848 was honored with the titles of Duke and Marshal of France for his gallantry at Magenta. From 1864 to 1870 he was Governor-General of Algeria, but in the latter year he resumed military service as commander of the First Corps in the war with Germany. Defeated in the battle of Woerth, he was placed in command of a fresh army and sought to make a junction with Bazaine. In this he failed, and the end of his service for France came at Sedan. After his release he played an important part in putting down the Communist uprisings in Paris. About this time he made his appearance in political life and was elected President to succeed M. Thiers in 1873. He held that office until 1879, when he resigned and was succeeded by M. Grévy. His political career was unsatisfactory to the friends of the republic owing to his strong monarchical tendencies, and he resigned the Presidential office rather than consent to a law depriving monarchical officers of their titles. As a politician he was not successful, but as a soldier he proved himself able, skillful, and gallant, and he always will be remembered by France with admiration and gratitude for his brilliant storming of the Malakoff in the Crimean war, for which he received the decoration of the Legion of Honor. His devotion to the army was intense, and it is as one of the greatest soldiers of France since the elder Napoleon that he will take his place in history. As a gentleman no dishonorable act sullied his long and brilliant career.

GOLDEN WATER.

The Washington Star is responsible for the statement that the inventor of a new process has been experimenting with the waters of the great Salt Lake with the most astonishing results. He finds that each ton of the water contains $3 worth of gold (?) and believes he can extract it at a cost of about 50 cents per ton. As the lake is estimated to contain 15,000 million tons of water there should be enough gold in it to yield 45,000 million dollars, five-sixths of which will be profit. The resulting amount of some $600 gold per head to every man, woman, and child in the United States, after paying the cost of extraction, would constitute a per capita that ought to be sufficient to satisfy the wildest longings of the shouters for "more money," and it should be possible to extract the precious metal as fast as under present arrangements it could be coined for the use of the people. But an exchange suggests that it is not necessary to go to the trouble of coining it, or even extracting it from the water. The lake can be purchased by the Nation, which would suit the Socialists. Then it could be paid for with silver at the ratio of 16 to 1, which would meet the views of the extreme silver men. After that the Treasury could be ordered to issue salt water certificates for the water at the rate of $3 per ton, which would suit the Populist idea of propriety and expediency. Thus three different sets of people would be pleased, and the advocates of a staple currency could have any objection they might make answered by the statement that the amount of gold in the lake is constant irrespective of any rise or fall of the lake surface. Possibly if the attention of Senators Stewart, Peffer, and the rest was called to this matter they would consent to withdraw their opposition to the repeal of the purchasing clause in the Sherman act and undertake the formulation of a measure intended to deal with the new conditions. This would placate another set of people—namely: the Mormons, who claim that the first discovery of gold in California was made by one of their own number.

TWO CHICAGO OBJECT LESSONS.

Philadelphia was the locality of the Centennial. It was a big undertaking for the Quaker City, but it carried it through to a creditable success and it managed its burden in a very handsome manner. Having had an experience of this kind it knows how to appreciate what Chicago has been doing with an Exposition incomparably larger, and it now is engaged in studying some of the object lessons of the World's Fair with an earnestness and enthusiasm which THE TRIBUNE feels like commending to New York, Boston, and some other Eastern cities which have maintained an indifferent mood.

The Philadelphia Press, reflecting upon the immense attendance on Chicago day, attributes it not so much to the popularity of the Fair as to the civic pride, enthusiasm, and energy of the city, which appear all the more remarkable to it when it is considered that cities with a large foreign population usually have less of this local pride than those having a population of American birth. It observes that, while Chicago has a larger population of foreign birth even than New York, there is no city in the country in which local feeling is so strong. We may even forgive its characterization of Chicago as "a big, modern, raw, dirty, ugly city" when it says that "no little Greek city or Italian republic ever felt a stronger pride or a more vehement local patriotism." The Press has gone to the very bottom of the reasons which have made this Fair such a success. It is due more to this civic pride and to the unanimity of the people in standing together and working together, uniting their efforts and concentrating them upon a given purpose, than to any other cause that this splendid work has been accomplished in such a manner as to compel the admiration of the world. As the outcome to the first object lesson the Press remarks:

> It is easy to make light of this civic patriotism; but without it cities are nothing but an assemblage of homes which men enter without desire, leave without regret, and do nothing to improve, to serve, or to celebrate. This is all New York is today. With this master passion among a great body of its citizens a city becomes the deep desire of all who dwell within its limits and is sure to fashion some monument like the Acropolis at Athens or the White City by Lake Michigan to stand a dream of beauty in the minds of men through all time.

The second object lesson which Chicago contributes and of which the Press makes application, not only to Philadelphia, but to other Eastern cities, is the manner in which the different transportation systems of this city handled 2,556,616 people, counting going and coming, in the twenty-four hours of Chicago day, or really in less time than that. "This is a greater business," it says, "than if the whole population of Philadelphia should turn out and take two rides in one day on the car lines of this city." Speaking of the 757,660 separate fares collected on the South Side cable road, it says: "Let any Philadelphian imagine, if he can, the consumptive Market street or Columbia avenue cable lines trying to carry half a million people in one day, or one-fourth as many." The Press reasons out the causes leading up to this result as accurately as it did in the first case mentioned. It says:

> In some way Chicago seems to solve problems over which other cities puzzle themselves until they become gray-headed. It may be due to superior sagacity, but it is probably more largely the result of that overmastering spirit of enterprise that refuses to let any obstacle stand in the way of an improvement that is necessary to the progress of the city. But in some way it is accomplished.

"In view of all these facts," says the Press, "it might be well for other cities desiring rapid transit to study Chicago's manner and method." Philadelphia, as will be observed, is a studious pupil in the Chicago school. Boston has got its eyes open and is beginning to look round. New York is still a little dull and sleepy but it is coming here Manhattan day, and after that it will commence studying on the problems Chicago has solved, without which solution it cannot expect to be a really live, go-ahead city, however big it may be. There need be no apprehensions, however, on this score. When the slow New-Yorkers get here they will catch the Chicago contagion and learn how to hustle and get there.

SENATOR JONES of Nevada took up the time of the Senate Monday for a couple of hours with his continued speech. After having talked for two hours on the function of money, its value, and how it was regulated, he announced that he would resume at another time. Later in the day Senator Peffer favored the Senate with another installment of his speech, and will give it another when he gets ready. Notwithstanding the fact that this method of making speeches which have no end is a manifest evasion of the rule of the Senate, which says that no Senator shall make more than one speech on any one subject, not a single member of the body has protested. One would expect that the repeal Senators would do everything in their power to stop the torrent of talk which interferes with their reaching a vote. Yet for some inexplicable reason they allow a rule, the enforcement of which would cut off much of that talk, to be violated almost daily. If asked why, they would probably say that "the courtesy of the Senate" had put a broader construction on the rule than it was originally meant to bear. If asked why they think more of the "courtesy of the Senate," abused grossly by filibustering Senators, than they do of their own duty to their constituents and their country, they would have no answer to make.

THE Toronto Globe, summing up the World's Fair so far as its relations to Canada are concerned, finds that it will not be easy "to forget the grandeur of the enterprise, the broad and generous spirit of its promoters, and the courage and skill with which, through much danger and discouragement, they conducted the undertaking to a successful issue." It further finds that it has been possible to get comfortable accommodations at a reasonable price; that the management of the State buildings has been courteous and hospitable; that the orderly behavior of the people has been one of the triumphs of civilization; that where Canadians took part heartily in the competition they have met with gratifying success; that the Fair has been a force making for friendship and good will between the two countries; and that "the coming years will witness a great improvement in the relations between our neighbors and ourselves." To our neighbor's handsome compliments there is but one thing to add—namely: The hope that when the next World's Fair is held Canada will have a national instead of an international interest in it.

THE House Democrats in the Fifty-first Congress sat in their seats but refused to vote, in order that the roll-call might show no quorum voting. That practice was knocked in the head for the time being by Speaker Reed counting these silent gentlemen and having the clerk enter them as "present but not voting." Some of the free silver filibusters in the Senate have been playing the same game of sitting silent during a roll-call to break up a quorum. But the repealers have not Reed's courage and common sense. Some of them actually shudder at the thought of counting silent Senators to make a quorum. Senator Vilas asked if the fact that every Senator was in his seat was not sufficient evidence that there was a quorum present. Senator Gray of Delaware calmly answered that it was not. He is of the opinion that a Senator cannot be assumed to be present unless when his name is called he answers to it. Any Senator who so chooses, though actually present, may be constructively absent. It is not astonishing that a plain American citizen in the gallery said "I'll be d——" when he heard Senator Gray's singular statement. Every sensible man will agree with the individual in the gallery.

THERE was an election in Indianapolis last week, and the Democrats, who had been in control in that city for several years, were driven from power by a sweeping majority. Monday the Republicans assumed charge of the municipality and discovered "that the city is absolutely bankrupt, with an indebtedness of nearly $900,000 falling due within the next six months. There is only $2,000 on hand. The election inspectors have been told to wait for their money until Nov. 10, and money must be borrowed at once with which to pay the salaries of officials." It is the old, old story of Democratic recklessness and extravagance in municipal matters. The condition of affairs in Indianapolis, as described, had a parallel in Chicago when Hempstead Washburne succeeded D. C. Cregier in the Mayor's chair, and unless he mends his financial ways Mayor Harrison will leave his successor a rather depleted City Treasury. Thus we find his Controller writing to the Commissioner of Public Works yesterday protesting against the extravagant and illegal proposals of the Street Superintendent and the Superintendent of Street Cleaning for additional appropriations, and saying:

> The condition of the city's finances is such as absolutely to forbid this expenditure, and I shall be compelled to refuse to approve the pay rolls if sent to me. You will, therefore, please notify the above-mentioned parties [McCarthy and Welles] that they must not expend during the present fiscal year more than was appropriated in the annual appropriation bill in March.

Mayor Harrison has hitherto prided himself on his conservative management of the city finances. But it is to be feared that he has succumbed to Democratic methods in that line. Judging from the tone of his Controller's protest it is time to call a halt. If Mayor Harrison does not check the spendthrift methods of his bureau chiefs it will be necessary for the Council, which has a Republican majority, to act.

SENATOR VEST announced defiantly night before last that—

> The unconditional repeal of the Sherman act had no chance of passage. It was impossible under the rules, and there would be no change of rules.

Being asked by Senator Hill on what he based his predictions, he said "the only answer necessary was to call attention to the rules, and to the experience through which the Senate had just passed."

Here the minority says insolently to the majority that the latter cannot have its way because the "rules" forbid it, and those rules cannot be changed without the consent of the minority! If the majority Senators are not "pigeon-livered and lack gall" such remarks as those of Vest would not merely put an end to all compromise talk, but would incite them to action and make them show Senator Vest that, rules or no rules, they could force their bill to a vote. How can any repeal Senator dream of compromise with a minority as dictatorial and overbearing as that of which Vest is spokesman? To yield now would be to yield everything which the same free silver gang may see fit to demand in the future. If the majority had any grit one of its members would move to vote at once. If the Vice-President refused to entertain the motion or held it was debatable, an appeal should be taken from his decision. His ruling should be overruled and the vote taken. Until the majority does this it will have to submit to the taunts, jeers, and threats of Vest and his associates.

JUDGE COOLEY says:

> For a majority of the Senate to concede for any reason that a rule of practice in debate or of Senatorial courtesy makes it possible for a minority to prevent legislation by indefinitely protracting debate is equal to revolution. It is as much revolution as though accomplished with arms and violence.

Senator Palmer says:

> I insist that excepting the methods employed and the instruments used there is no difference between their [the filibusters'] course and armed resistance to law.

The Judge and the Senator are right. But while the former can merely advise or protest, the latter is where he can act. Judge Cooley says:

> Members of the majority should make the proper motions looking to definite and final action on the pending measure and the presiding officer should recognize them, since only in that way can the inalienable right of the Senate to express its will be exercised.

Senator Palmer is on the floor and he can make such motions. Why does not he do so? He might find that timid repealers would not keep him company, but certainly he would not stand alone. There must be some Senators who are sick of the two months' farce. Senator Palmer has expressed himself sharply regarding the tactics of the filibusters and has not hurt himself in Illinois thereby. If he will get up in the Senate and move to proceed to a vote and keep on making that motion as often as he gets the floor the people of Illinois will be thankful to know that they have a Senator who does not think the Senate rules are of higher authority than the Constitution.

Herr Harrison and Herr Hesing.

There are evidences of reconciliation between Herr Harrison and Herr Washington Hesing. A few weeks ago Herr Harrison said in his organ that "Herr Hesing is no Democrat," never has been, and that "it would be a crime against Democracy to appoint him to any Federal office." Yesterday, however, the organ recommended Herr Hesing for the Subtreasurership, saying:

> There is one office within the gift of the President of great importance and well worth the ambition of any man. The Times therefore ventures the suggestion that Mr. Hesing be named Subtreasurer. The Postoffice should be kept entirely free from politics, and the offices of Collector of the Port and Collector of Internal Revenue should be given to men free from political alliances, and therefore Mr. Hesing would be ineligible for either. The Times earnestly commends the German editor for the Subtreasurership and hopes that President Cleveland may see fit to thus reward him.

Herr Harrison does not yet trust Herr Hesing. He does not want to see him Postmaster, or Collector of Customs or of Internal Revenue, lest he should use the large patronage of either office to oppose the City Hall machine. But the patronage of the Subtreasury is comparatively insignificant, and consists chiefly of a big bond. However, Herr Harrison has been known to do more inconsistent things than support Herr Hesing for the Postmastership. Since his reconciliation with Ald. Culerton one can expect almost anything in the way of political floppery on his part.

Voters Apathetic.

The political reporter of the Herald (Dem.), speaking of the members of the Democratic Campaign committee who met Monday, says:

> They have little or no interest in the individuals on the ticket, and all admit that but for the candidacy of Judge Gary hardly one voter in ten would realize that an election is pending at all. In this connection it may be said that one of the most marked features of yesterday's gathering [the Democratic Campaign committee] was the admission that throughout the city, from the center to the limits, an overwhelming feeling exists in favor of Judge Gary's election.

This is entirely true. Even the members of the committee do not care to deny that they wish the reëlection of Judge Gary, and it is utterly impossible to get up any Democratic enthusiasm for the Boyles, Brownings, Perry Trumbulls, Kerstens, and Sextons of the Democratic judicial ticket. On the other hand, however, the Republican managers appear to be apathetic or lacking in energy. Thus far they have done nothing to utilize the strong sentiment in favor of the reëlection of Judge Gary. Perhaps they will be more active in the future. Certainly there is much work to be done.

Machine Partisan Expenses.

Says the City Hall machine organ in reference to the expenses of electing the Boyle-Browning-Kersten anti-Gary ticket:

> Some $20,000 will be needed in the campaign. Part of this will be borne by the candidates and the balance will be raised by voluntary contributions. The Finance committee is regarded as an exceedingly strong one, and will go to work at once.

One of the members of the "strong" Finance committee is expected to "collect" from the protected gamblers, another from the brewers and saloonkeepers, while another has been told off to bleed the county employés. But what is the necessity for $20,000 in this campaign? The tickets will be printed and distributed to the voters at the public expense. There will be few meetings. The naturalization mill cannot do much grinding this year; its grist was used up last year. Is the $20,000 to be used as a corruption fund in the interest of the machine candidates for the bench? A delightful state of affairs, surely.

PERSONALS.

Editor McClure of the Philadelphia Times is still prostrated by rheumatism, and his recovery is doubtful.

Lord Dunraven was the correspondent of the London Telegraph during the trouble between England and Abyssinia, and also in the Franco-Prussian war.

José Francisco Cortes, who died last week in Morelia, Mexico, is believed in that town to have been 193 years old, and they point to an entry in the local court register to prove it.

Mr. George W. Childs Drexel, the new publisher of the Philadelphia Ledger, is but 25 years of age. He is a son of the late A. J. Drexel, who was long Mr. Child's associate in the ownership of the paper.

Attorney-General Olney's sole exercise in Washington is tennis. For an hour or two every afternoon he may be seen playing a game that would do credit to the skill and agility of a much younger man. His courts are said to be the smoothest and best kept in the city.

Lord Dunraven is not an Englishman at all, at all, but an Irishman, and his name is Quinn and he is a Knight of St. Patrick. As a sportsman and statesman, and more recently as a competitor for honor as a yachtsman, he has mingled work and pleasure more equally during the 52 years of his life than the ordinary inheritor of titles and wealth is accustomed to do.

William D. Howells, after his return from the World's Fair, said to a New York reporter: "I believe it is the greatest show ever seen on this earth. The influence, from a literary and artistic point of view, upon this country, especially upon the West, will be incalculable, for it teaches us self-reliance as a Nation in matters of art as well as in matters of business."

Ismail Pasha, whose bad luck is traced by many Egyptians to his act, while Khedive, in letting Cleopatra's Needle come to this country, is not permitted to leave Constantinople without the surveillance of a medical man, who is also a diplomatic spy. His condition is not so precarious as that of the creditors who advanced him $20,000,000.

Senator Perkins of California ascribes his popularity to a simple little method he has adopted. He says that he has a habit of asking every second or third man he meets for the time of day, and immediately setting his own watch according to the information given him. Senator Perkins asserts that the wear and tear on his own watch and the compliment paid to that of his constituent are repaid by the latter's vote and his support in different ways.

Mrs. Ada Bittenbender, who for the second time is the Prohibition candidate for Justice of the Supreme Court of Nebraska, has legal attainments of a high order. She is as modest and unassuming as she is earnest and forceful. The platform on which she is nominated covers every conceivable and inconceivable subject within the range of American politics—prohibition, woman suffrage, Henry Georgeism, socialism, Bellamyism, and populism. The only obstacle that Mrs. Bittenbender will encounter in the campaign is a lamentable shortage of votes.

The Record Twice Beaten.

New Orleans Times-Democrat: The "Lake City" has now a right to claim that it has held the greatest celebration the world has ever known, with more people present and with more striking scenes and incidents. This has been its great aim—to outdo the world. It has accomplished it twice this year—first in the great Exposition and again in the celebration of Chicago day.

"It Was a Famous Victory."

Louisville Courier-Journal (Dem.): Nobody doubted after last November's election that Grover Cleveland and the National Democracy had won an overwhelming victory. It seems to have been all a mistake, however. At present the silver-mine Republicans, the Populists, and the free silver Democratic deserters are in complete control of the legislation of the country.

Altgeld Is the Worst.

New Orleans Times-Democrat (Dem.): There is no way of stopping Altgeld, and the probabilities are that by the end of the term Illinois will be able to close its prisons and penitentiaries for repairs, as there will be no one in them. We have known pardoning Governors before, but Altgeld is the worst yet encountered.

Politics Before Business.

Minneapolis Journal: The Southern Democratic Senators, with their Northern allies, are getting ready to pass the House bill to legalize fraud at national elections. Yet these fellows have been fighting a bill to relieve the business of the country from stagnation and loss with all their might.

Radical Difference of Opinion.

MANHATTAN DAY.

New York Advertiser: It is true that New York City came up very slowly to the support of the World's Fair, but it isn't too late to make amends. Let Manhattan day—the 21st inst.—be made a rouser.

New York World: It is well to remember that this is not simply a matter of personal pleasure but also a matter of municipal pride. It is not merely an honor to New York but an honor to Chicago. It is a testimony of our good will to the city of the lakes, and the more generally it is participated in the more effective it will be in this particular.

New York Herald: As New York has undertaken to have a "day" at the Fair it should be a matter of civic pride to make the occasion one worthy of the metropolis. This will be the last of the great "days," and it will come in the most charming season of the Fair. Let it be one of the most memorable—surprising to Chicago and glorious for New York.

New York Times: It is expected that more than 20,000 people will go directly from this city, and when to these are added all the great number of former New-Yorkers now living in Chicago or its vicinity, the expectation of the committee that Manhattan day will be second only to Chicago day in the history of the Exposition seems fairly well justified.

New York Recorder: Manhattan day at the World's Fair will be the day of all days in the record of the great Exposition except, perhaps, Chicago's day. Chicago, being on the spot, made a turnout which for obvious reasons no distant city can expect to surpass. New York's day, however, as becomes the imperial city of the imperial State of the Union, will eclipse all other days. It is a matter of proper pride with New-Yorkers that it should.

New York Journal: New York will have a splendid demonstration at Chicago Saturday of this week. It will be an outpouring of friendly sentiment, which will do much to promote closer union between the great metropolis of the country and the mighty city of the West. The city which originated the idea of the Columbian Fair must do things splendidly at Chicago. We must send an army of visitors to Jackson Park on Manhattan day.

New York Press: A demonstration befitting the imperial metropolis on Manhattan day at the World's Fair seems now assured. Let the attendance be in keeping with it. Business-men show a disposition to encourage their employés to go. Railroad lines have made special rates for the journey. The opportunity is a rare one. New-Yorkers should make the day memorable and impressive by attending in multitudes to show their loyalty to their own city and their appreciation of the glories of the Fair.

New York Tribune: Manhattan day at the World's Fair Saturday next gives promise of proving a magnificent success, second only to Chicago day in the history of the Exposition. Merchants are evincing a general disposition to send out their employés to the Fair on the cheap trains, while subscriptions toward the expenses in connection with the celebration are pouring in from every side. Indeed, the popular interest manifested in the affair is of the most widespread and gratifying character, and nearly every patriotic citizen of New York seems to be anxious to coöperate with the Citizens' committee in making a big success of Manhattan day.

JUDGE GARY.

Sioux City Journal: Gov. Altgeld's opposition to Judge Gary is impolitic. He needs such Judges to supply him with the proper number of criminals to pardon.

Aurora News: The enthusiasm which Chicago shows in behalf of Judge Gary's campaign justifies the prediction that Gov. Altgeld's Thanksgiving proclamation will be very short and very sour.

New York Advertiser: Judge Gary is denied a renomination in Chicago because he sentenced the Anarchists. Judge Maynard is renominated in New York because he aided and abetted a crime. This is the essence and double distilled quintessence of Democracy.

Rochester Democrat: Judge Gary, who has been renominated to the bench in Chicago by the Republicans, should be reëlected by a Chicago day majority, because opposed to him are Altgeld and the whole horde of Socialists, Anarchists, and agitators of every stripe against good government. Judge Gary's defeat would be a victory for all these enemies of law and order.

Springfield Republican: Judge Gary, until this year, has since 1869 received both Republican and Democratic nominations whenever he has run for judicial place, but this time he was turned down by the Democrats, who have thus indorsed Gov. Altgeld's assault upon Mr. Gary's handling of the famous Anarchist case. Judge Gary's Democratic opponent was prominent in the endeavor to have the Anarchists pardoned.

Cincinnati Gazette: The Anarchist scandal in Illinois strikes hard. It was the immense majority for Cleveland in Chicago that was the most impressive incident of his reëlection, and now the Democrats have turned down Judge Gary because he did not use his judicial position to prevent the conviction of bloody Anarchists. The Democrats have thrown aside the just Judge and nominated a crank, who thinks he is an Anarchist, and is a sort of milk-and-water Nihilist.

The Senate Will Confirm Van Alen.

The New York World, the leading Democratic organ of the East, remarks in regard to the Van Alen case: "The majority of the Democrats apparently do not wish to discourage large campaign contributions even if they are to be paid for with public offices."

The World proceeds to say: There is every reason to suppose that the Senate will confirm Van Alen's nomination. Indeed, it cannot decline with safety and a due regard to Senatorial courtesy.

It refused to inquire even into the flagrant case of Payne. It declined to concern itself when the charge that Senator Brice bought his way to a seat was pressed upon its attention. Even the request of the Legislature of Ohio, formally made, could not induce the Senate to institute an inquiry.

The Senate is not equipped for the exercise of virtue in that way. A suggestion that it should do so would be a reflection upon too many of its own members, not to say a covert threat to them.

There are Senators who bought their seats and Senators whose seats were purchased for them by the Southern Pacific railroad ring. There are others who were made Senators by the money of speculative mining interests. The Pennsylvania railroad company's money is represented equally with sovereign States in that body. Still other moneyed interests have their representatives in the Senate by one species of purchase or another.

It would be an affront and a threat to many of the most self-complacent members of that body for the Senate to raise the least objection to the sale of office for money, or in any other way to suggest a doubt of the right of money to all the "recognition" it can buy.

The excuse made by the Senate committee for its favorable action—that no formal charges or legal proofs had been presented to show Van Alen's unfitness—is trenchantly treated in our Washington dispatches. There was not a member of the committee but knew that the nomination was made in return for a heavy contribution to the Democratic campaign fund. The facts had been published and were not denied. The refusal of the committee to take cognizance of admissions and proofs which convinced the country of the nature of the transaction could only have been due to a cynical indifference to its essentially corrupt character.

RUSSIA'S NAVAL OFFICERS WARMLY WELCOMED IN PARIS.

Streets Crowded with Cheering People Who Give the Visitors a Typical Parisian Greeting—Received by the President and the Reception Formally Begun—Delay in the Weeks Extradition Hearing at Costa Rica—His Attorney Thinks He Will Not Be Returned.

Paris, Oct. 17.—After what may be termed a triumphal journey from Toulon Admiral Avelan, commander of the Russian squadron, and the fifty officers of the fleet accompanying him arrived here at 9:17 o'clock this morning. At an early hour people began gathering about the Gare de Lyon, the railway station at which the nation's guests were to arrive. The square between the station and the Mazas Prison was packed with a dense mass of humanity long before the time for the arrival of the train. The crowd extended up the Boulevard Diderot as far as the Avenue Daumesnie and down as far as the River Seine. The Rue de Bercy, the Rue de Lyon, and the transverse streets in the vicinity were also filled with enthusiastic crowds all eager to give the Russians a true Parisian welcome.

When the train was seen approaching the station the crowds began to sing the Russian anthem. Only a few of those present could sing the words, but nearly all knew the air, and the volume of sound was tremendous, though musical. The Mazas Prison was hidden from view by an immense platform that extended its whole length and which was packed with people. As the Russian officers appeared the crowd ceased singing and shouts of "Long live Russia!" "Long live the Czar!" were heard on every side. The women present were as eager as the men to welcome the distinguished guests, and their shrill voices could be distinctly heard above the roar of the welcoming cries.

Greeting Wildly Enthusiastic.

It may truthfully be said that despite the assertion that the Parisians would keep calm during the visit of the Russians a more wildly enthusiastic greeting has never in recent years been extended to the representatives of any nation. Amid the cheering crowd that surged about the entrance to the station the Russians, resplendent in full uniforms, passed, bowing right and left, their faces wreathed in smiles as they beheld the enthusiasm of the populace. Carriages were taken at the station and the party were driven through the Rue de Lyon to the Place de la Bastille. Here they passed under a magnificent triumphal arch that spanned the place some distance in front of the column of July.

The route taken from the Place de la Bastille was along the Boulevard Beau Marchais, Boulevard des Filles du Calvare, Boulevard du Temple, through the Place de la Republique to the Boulevard St. Martin, and thence through the Boulevards St. Denis, Bonneneuville, Poissonnière, Montmartre, des Italiens, des Capucines, and de la Madeleine to the Church of the Madeleine. The whole route was lined with spectators, who were almost frantic in their expressions of welcome.

Decorations at Every Point.

The decorations along the route were beautiful and appropriate mottoes were displayed from every point of vantage. The tri-color of France and the white flag with the blue cross of Russia were everywhere seen and the combination of these colors presented very beautiful effects. Before the guests had proceeded far on their drive their open carriages were almost filled with the many bouquets that were thrown and handed to them. A large squad of cavalry accompanied the Russians.

The procession from the railway station was headed by mounted policemen and Gardes Republicans. Much difficulty was experienced in clearing a passageway for carriages, the crowd pushing forward to get a glimpse of the procession, and the front ranks were crowded under the feet of the horses. Progress was slow and the Russians became infected with the enthusiasm. As the crowd shouted "Vive la Russie," "Vive la Czar" the Russians sprang to their feet and waved their hats, shouting in reply "Vive la France," "Vive la Belle France."

Every window and balcony along the route was crowded with men, women, and children, most of whom wore rosettes or badges made of the national colors of France and Russia. The inevitable small boy was out in force, and, like the genius everywhere, had as good a view of the procession as any one. The branches of every tree along the route were loaded with boys, and the gendarmes, had they been so disposed, would have been unable to pluck them off above the density of the crowd that surrounded the ranks. The Russian officers were observed to broadly smile when they saw some ragged street gamins lying flat along a limb and with one hand and both feet waving a welcome to them.

It is estimated that the crowd outside the Gare de Lyon alone numbered 100,000 persons.

Crowd Stops the Procession.

Soon leaving the Madeleine, the procession started for the Cercle Militaire. On the way there the carriages, together with the cavalry escort, were frequently compelled to stop, owing to the density of the crowd.

Arrived at the Cercle, the President and members of the Municipal Council of Paris were found waiting. The President presented an address to Admiral Avelan. The latter made a brief reply, saying he was happy to have been chosen to return the visit of Admiral Gervais to Cronstadt and St. Petersburg.

The day was observed as a holiday by thousands of workmen, not only in Paris but in the suburban towns. Many excursion trains were run during the day and each brought hundreds of workmen to the city. Thousands of people after the Russians had passed thronged the streets admiring the decorations that, in many instances, were truly works of art. The most lavish and most tasty treatment was displayed in the Place de L'Opera, the Place de la Concorde, and the Place de L'Hotel de Ville.

Extraordinary Greeting by Women.

A noteworthy feature of the reception was the anxiety of the women to subject themselves to the embraces of the Russians, who, it must be said, were fully equal to the occasion. Handsome girls and women would by means known only to themselves get through the line of guards and, with no fear of the display that might be made, spring upon the steps of the carriages, the hubs of the wheels, or any other place that would afford a foothold, and hold their faces up to be kissed. It was really a wonder that many of them were not run over by the carriages or trampled upon by the horses, but so far as known all escaped without accident. Once they reached the carriages the gallant Russians saw to it that they neither fell off nor missed the kisses and embraces they sought. With much laughter and cheering from the crowd the Russians would lean over and heartily squeeze and kiss their fair visitors, who would then, either blushingly or made red in the face by their exertions, make way for others equally as anxious as they had been to greet the visitors.

After the reception by the municipal authorities the officers were driven to the military club, where they were received by Gen. Chanoine, Gen. Baratier, and other high military officers. The club adopted the Russian custom, and bread and salt on silver salvers were offered the guests, who, dipping the bread in the salt, ate with their hosts. Gen. Chanoine, speaking the Russian language, welcomed the guests in a most felicitous manner. Admiral Avelan returned thanks in the name of himself and his officers. After the formal reception was over the Russian officers appeared at the windows of the Cercle Militire, where the crowd outside gave them a wild ovation.

Repetition of Toulon Scenes.

Soon after a sumptuous luncheon was served and then the guests were conducted to the rooms that had been set apart for their use during their stay in Paris. The whole day's proceedings may be summed up in the statement that the reception was a repetition of that given the Russians at Toulon. The decorations in Paris, however, were less profuse than those in the Mediterranean port, but were far more artistic.

Gifts for Czarina.

Emile Berr of the Figaro staff and M. Judet, director of the Petit Journal, were given an audience last night at Fredensborg by the Czarina (Princess Marie Dagmar of Denmark). The object of this visit was to present through her to her children various articles representative of the Franco-Russian alliance. The gifts were accepted, and subsequently the Czar, through Prince Waldemar, his brother-in-law, sent his thanks to MM. Berr and Judet for the gifts, and said he would retain them as a personal gift.

At 1 o'clock the Russian officers were escorted to their carriages and, accompanied by cavalry, were driven to the Russian church in Rue Deru, where a "Te Deum" was sung with all the pomp of the Greek church. Among those who attended the service were Baron Mohrenheim, Russian Ambassador to France, the municipal authorities and many members of the Chamber of Deputies.

Upon the conclusion of the religious ceremony the party reëntered their carriages and returned to the Cercle Militaire. Thence they proceeded to the Russian embassy in Rue Grenelle St. Germain. Here a squadron of cuirassiers, resplendent in the gorgeous uniforms, were waiting to escort them to the palace of the Elysée.

The space between the Elysée and the Palaise de l'Industrie was packed and jammed with humanity who cheered wildly as the prancing horses of the cuirassiers accompanying the Russians came in sight along the Avenue des Champs Elysée.

As the guests passed withing the court yard of the palace they were met with the military honors due their rank, and were at once escorted into the presence of President Carnot. Each of the officers was introduced to the President by Baron Mohrenheim. After a brief reception by the President the Russians visited the Chamber of Deputies and the Senate, the offices of the Prime Minister and the Ministers of War and Marine. The enthusiasm manifested by the residents of the aristocratic districts was equal to that displayed by those who live in the poorer parts of the city, and everywhere the excitement was intense so long as the visitors were in sight.

At the President's Dinner.

At the President's dinner 104 covers were laid. Baron Mohrenheim, Russian Ambassador, sat at M. Carnot's right and M. Challemel-Bachur, President of the Senate, sat at Mme. Carnot's left. The other places had been assigned to the Russian officers and the French officers and diplomats in alternation. The Comte de Monteelle, French Ambassador to Russia, and M. Laboulaye, his predecessor at the post, were present. After the dinner Mme. Carnot with Admiral Avelan opened the ball. The whole diplomatic corps had been invited. The façade of the Elysée was resplendent with lights and banners. The Paris journalists entertained the visiting Russian correspondents this afternoon at dinner at the Hotel Frascati. La Presse says that when Admiral Avelan and his staff appeared on the balconies today to answer the cheers of the crowd the Admiral, after bowing three times, put the French national standard to his lips and kissed it.

The streets leading to the Place de l'Opera were full. Nothing like the splendor of the scene has been seen in Paris since the empire. The evening newspapers comment upon the coming of the Russians as if the two nations were already together in the field and the war was half won. Several quote from foreign newspapers to show that the fêtes are provoking the fury of the German statesmen and editors.

President Carnot at the reception of the Russians this afternoon addressed the visitors, and Admiral Avelan replied briefly. President Carnot has made Avelan a grand officer of the Legion of Honor, and has decorated most of the other officers and the staff of the Russian embassy.

IMPORT OF THE SPECTACLE AT PARIS.

People Feel They Have an Ally and Now Fear No Sudden Attack.

[SPECIAL CABLE.]

Paris, Oct. 17.—[Copyright, 1893, by James Gordon Bennett.]—The day in Paris was a triumphant and grandiose spectacle. Two million people were massed in the streets and cheered the Russian officers. No discordant cry was heard. The joy of the public was colossal. I means that France has found an ally and no longer feels that it is alone in Europe, that it no longer fears a sudden attack. The French have won a victory without effusion of blood. They have found sure friends, whose friendship is based on a community of interests and racial sympathies. The fête has lost its official character and has become a veritable fraternal festival. Admiral Avelan has produced an excellent impression. It is the finest day that Paris has seen since 1870. A week will be given up to festivity and then serious matters will be taken up, but they will be pacific.

COUNT AND COUNTESS BLUCHER SHOT.

Victims of the Vengeance of a Discharged Gardener, Who Kills Himself.

Berlin, Oct. 17.—Count and Countess Blucher at their Weitzow estate in Pomerania, today, in accordance with custom, started on a walk which led them to a wild and seldom frequented part of the estate. A gardener who had been discharged for a wrong and had threatened revenge, had concealed himself in the woods and when the couple entered followed them. When they had reached a spot that the gardener thought fitted for the commission of his crime he sprang out before them armed with a double-barreled gun. Almost before the Count could utter a word the gardener shot him in the head and then shot the Countess in the neck. The murderer dropped his gun and ran to the castle. He entered the hall and as the affrighted servants gathered about him to inquire as to his disheveled appearance, he drew a revolver from his pocket and killed himself.

Some gamekeepers in the vicinity of the scene of the crime heard the discharge of the gun and ran to the place. They found the Count lying unconscious upon the ground, while close to him was the Countess. The latter told as well as she was able the story of the shooting, and then both she and the Count were conveyed to the castle, where the confusion caused by the gardener's suicide was added to by their arrival.

Medical aid was hastily summoned, but nothing could be done to save the life of the Count, and he died shortly after the physicians arrived. The Countess is still alive. Before her marriage to Count Blucher she was Baroness Weitzow.

SQUIRE ABINGDON'S COUSIN MARRIED.

Prince and Many Fashionable People Present at the Ceremony.

London, Oct. 7.—The marriage took place today of Millicent, second daughter of Col. Stanley Clarke, Equerry to the Prince of Wales, to Capt. Edward William Baird, cousin of the late Douglass Baird, who was better known as "Squire Abingdon." The ceremony took place in St. James' Church, Piccadilly. The Rev. Frederick Hervey, domestic Chaplain to the Prince of Wales, officiated. The Prince of Wales and many members of the highest aristocracy were present. The bride wore a dress of white satin, draped with point de Gaze lace, over which hung a bridal veil of tulle. Around her head was a wreath of orange blossoms. The Prince and Princess of Wales, the Duke and Duchess of York, and the Duke and Duchess of Fife sent gifts of diamonds to the bride.

Thinks British Forces Will Win.

Lord Chelmsford, Commander in Chief of the British forces in South Africa during the Zulu war, said this evening he thought the British forces now in the field against the Matabele warriors would be strong enough to drive them beyond the Zambesi River. The Matabeles were fine, powerful fellows, he said, not inferior in physical strength to the Zulus and fully their equals in the fight. Their efficiency in battle would be checked greatly by their inability to handle the rifles with which they were armed. In the Zulu war he had noticed that the natives recently armed with rifles were much inferior, both in attack and defense, to those of the same race who wielded the assegai.

Herr Von Plener Coming to Washington.

The Vienna correspondent of the Central News says that Herr von Plener, leader of the German Liberals in Austria, is about to resign his seat in the Reichsrath. He is said to have consented to accept an appointment to a place in the Austrian Legation at Washington.

M. FORAIN'S VIEWS ON THE FAIR.

He Tells Parisians of Its Success and Describes Some Works of Art.

[SPECIAL CABLE.]

Paris, Oct. 17.—[Copyright, 1893, by James Gordon Bennett.]—M. Forain, who arrived in Paris yesterday from Chicago, in an interview today says:

The Exposition was in all its brilliancy when I was there, and I perceived nothing of the lack of success which I had heard. This Exposition is something enormous. The Americans have the sense of the gigantic. The artistic portion greatly interested me. I saw Manot's "Toreador," some fine works by Corot, Delacroix, and Meissonier, which Americans had lent. I saw again there Bonnat's superb "Lavigerie," two horses by Besnard, and a fine Duez. I shall also mention the German portraits by Lembach, one of which is painted in the style of Rembrandt. I also saw a pretty detail as we were returning to New York. We had the satisfaction to admire at our ease the remains of a railway accident, a cattle train which had left the rails. It almost seemed as though it had been done to give pleasure to the foreigners who were traveling over the road. This was not the least attraction of our return.

FREE FIGHT AT A MEETING AT ROME.

Anarchists Start the Disturbance and Afterwards Burn the Theater.

Rome, Oct. 17.—A political meeting held at the Circo Reale Theater in this city last night resulted in a free fight and the destruction of the building. Sig. Barzilai, a Radical member of the Chamber of Deputies, was addressing the meeting. His remarks did not please the Anarchists, many of whom were present, and he was frequently interrupted. He attempted to reply to the Anarchists and a wordy war resulted. Sig. Barzilai and his friends attempted to out-talk their opponents. Finally a blow was struck, and in a moment a free fight was on. Several of the combatants were quite severely wounded. Early this morning the theater was discovered to be on fire, and it was rapidly consumed, the firemen at no time being able to check the flames. There is no question as to the incendiary origin of the fire, and it is generally attributed to the Anarchists. The loss entailed amounts to $60,000.

MORE CHOLERA CASES AT GREENWICH

Eight Appear in the Workhouse but of a Milder Type.

London, Oct. 17.—Eight new cases of choleraic disorder appeared in the Greenwich workhouse today. These cases, however, are of a milder type than any that have yet occurred. The total number of persons now under treatment is 220, of whom 170 are convalescent.

Berlin, Oct. 17.—Cholera is spreading in Stettin. Five new cases and two deaths were reported today.

Brussels, Oct. 17.—Several cases of sickness that is alleged to be cholera are reported daily in the Charleroi district of Belgium. Three deaths occurred in one family yesterday. The persons attacked belong to the families of striking coal-miners, who are suffering for lack of nourishing food.

INSURGENT STEAMER REPORTED SUNK

Dispatch Comes from Peixoto's Friends and Is Not Credited at Montivideo.

[SPECIAL CABLE.]

Montevideo, Uruguay, via Galveston, Tex., Oct. 17.—[Copyright, 1893, by James Gordon Bennett.]—The European diplomatic corps in the Brazilian capital are disgusted with President Peixoto. Their proposal to land troops was based on an agreement with Peixoto that he would dismount all of the shore batteries and not put them into action again. They soon learned that his agents at his direction were secretly erecting a new battery. The foreign representatives then declared all negotiations suspended. Peixoto made new promises and the diplomats entered into a new agreement.

The government officials report that fire was opened on Nictheroy by the insurgents' fleet in an attempt to dislodge Peixoto's troops stationed there, but it was not successful. The insurgents deny that the attempt was made.

Mello's forces are now in possession of the naval depot at Armacao. This is an important acquisition.

Forts Fire on a Fleet.

The government's forts in the harbor fired on Villegaignon and the fleet. The heavy guns of the warships were not well handled, but many of the shots were effective. Some of the guns in Fort Santa Cruz and other forts were soon put out of action. The government forces were not skillful in managing the guns in the forts, but those in the rebel fort, Villegaignon, were well served and their fire against the other forts destructive.

News has been received of the capture of Duestro by Mello's fleet. The garrison declared for the revolutionary leader. Admiral Mello is still stationed outside of Rio, where he prevents any ships loaded with provisions entering Rio or discharging their cargoes so as to aid the loyal garrisons in Fort Santa Cruz. Advices confirming the capture of Santa Catharina by the revolutionists, which had been denied, have been received. The troops in the garrison have joined the insurgents. Another artillery duel with the forts is expected. Business houses in Rio have shut down. No letters are allowed across the republic. The Rio News has been attached by the government for printing truthful reports of the revolution. President Peixoto has convoked the Congress elections for Oct. 30.

Steamer Reported Sunk.

The Brazilian Minister here has received the following dispatch from Peixoto's representatives. The statements in the dispatches are not credited here:

Fort Santa Cruz in a fight with Fort Villegaignon silenced the guns of the latter. The gunboat Trapani was disabled and the Aquidaban damaged. The steamer Arano with insurgents aboard tried to force passage of the harbor, but was sunk by the guns of Fort Santa Cruz. Many were killed and many prisoners captured. Several of the insurgents jumped overboard and were saved by the French steamer Oronoque. The packet boat Pallas, from Santa Catalina with provisions for Mello, tried to reach the fleet, but was repulsed by Fort Santa Colly. The stage of siege has been prolonged for fifteen days.

DELAY IN THE WEEKS HEARING.

His Lawyer in Costa Rica Believes He Will Not Be Returned.

San Jose, Costa Rica, via Galveston, Tex., Oct. 17.—[Copyright, 1893, by James Gordon Bennett.]—There has been further delay in the hearing of the extradition of Francis H. Weeks, the New York embezzler. It was expected the President and Cabinet would have rendered a decision by this time, but President Rodriguez is still ill, and this has caused a further postponement. Premier Igleseas called the Cabinet meeting yesterday to hear the argument of Don Hernandez in opposition to and Dr. Zambranas in behalf of the United States. It was thought proper, however, that President Rodriguez should be present, and proceedings were continued until he is able to attend.

Secretary of State Jiminez has recovered and has resumed direction of the Foreign Office. He is disposed to grant the request of the United States for the surrender of Weeks, but the other members of the Cabinet are not inclined to favor his extradition. Another newspaper in San José, La Republica, opposes the surrender. It contends that in the case of Cortes, alias Peralla, who forged several notes on the Costa Rican Bank and fled to the United States, application was made by Costa Rica for his surrender on the ground of comity. The United States refused the request.

Don Mauro Hernandez, Weeks' lawyer, seems much elated over the prospect that his client may be set free by the Costa Rican Government.

"I was unable to see the President today," said he, "on account of his illness, but I can assure you that Mr. Weeks will not return to the United States. President Rodriguez is too conscientious to sacrifice an innocent man, too patriotic to commit a grave injustice in the guise of courtesy due to a more powerful neighbor. The Executive is himself an able lawyer and was for years Chief Justice of our Supreme Court. I have, as has my client, great confidence in the fairness of any conclusion that he may reach."

PREPARING FOR A REVOLUTION.

Barrios Said to Have Arranged a Secret Alliance with Honduras.

Guatemala, via Galveston, Tex., Oct. 17.—[Copyright, 1893, by the Press Publishing Company.]—President Barrios was in consultation with the chiefs of the different parties. It is believed he has arranged a secret alliance with Honduras in case of a revolution. Mercantile houses are forbidden to sell arms. It is reported that the enemies of Barrios are trying to arrange a coalition with the Salvadorean President. The President expects to soon accomplish the reorganization of the government. The public exhibits a sullen feeling. Troops are kept in barracks anticipating an outbreak. Popular feeling attributes the assumption of the dictatorship to the influence of the American wife of the President, who is credited with great ability and ambition.

Members of the late National Assembly have signed a circular addressed to the people justifying their conduct and arraigning Barrios for many arbitray violations of the Constitution. It calls on the people to vindicate the rights of the mercantile community and censure Barrics for overthrowing the government.

Ex-President Barrilas said he knew nothing regarding the coup d'état more than what had been reported. He emphatically denied having heard Barrios mention any intention of assuming the dictatorship. He believed the difficulty would soon disappear, as Barrios wished to return to constitutional methods. He said he would take no part in a revolutionary movement and would not fight except against a foreign foe.

The country is in an uproar. All of Barrios' enemies are affected. The strictest censorship has been established over telegrams and mails.

RIO AGAIN BOMBARDED BY MELLO.

Damage by the Brazilian Insurgents Reported to Have Been Heavy.

Buenos Ayres, Oct. 17.—Advices received here are to the effect that Admiral Mello, commander of the insurgent Brazilian fleet, again bombarded Rio Janeiro yesterday. The damage done is said to have been great. Many of the residents who remained in the country during the prior bombardment are now fleeing. President Peixoto continues his efforts to organize a fleet with which to give battle to the enemy.

MACMAHON IS DEAD.

FRANCE'S ILLUSTRIOUS SOLDIER AND EX-PRESIDENT NO MORE.

Full of Years and Honors, He Falls a Prey to a Tumor That Results from Inflammation of the Lungs—His Funeral Will Be a Public One, if His Family Will Permit—Burial to Be in the Hotel des Invalides—Life of the Famous Marshal.

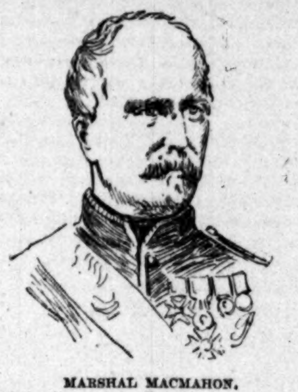
Paris, Oct. 17.—Field Marshal de MacMahon, Duke of Magenta, and the second President of the France republic, is dead. The end to his distinguished career came this morning the immediate cause of death being a tumor on the right side of his chest, discovered ten days ago, which developed on his recovery from an attack of inflammation of the lungs. His end was peaceful. Throughout his illness Marshal MacMahon had been gentle, affectionate, uncomplaining, and thoughtful for the welfare of those around him. He was somewhat distressed on account of his wife, who had sat up nightly for three weeks. King Humbert's sympathetic message greatly pleased him, but he had ceased to take interest in worldly things.



MARSHAL MACMAHON.
[At the time of the Franco-German war.]

If the relatives of Marshal MacMahon will agree to it the state will conduct the funeral, which will be a public one. The remains will be interred in the Hotel des Invalides.

Many conspicuous politicians and military men were admitted to the death chamber this evening and condoled with Mme. MacMahon.

Berlin, Oct. 18.—The Berlin newspapers announce Marshal MacMahon's death, but pass few comments. The Post remarks on his "well known integrity, blameless character, and oft-proved valor."

Rome, Oct. 18.—All of the newspapers here make sympathetic allusions to the death of Marshal MacMahon. The Riforma says: "King Humbert's recent telegram to Marshal MacMahon interpreted the sentiment of the whole Italian people. Even his enemies must bow reverently to the old soldier's memory."

[The death of this old Marshal and ex-President of the French Republic takes another character out of the history that was made on the other side of the sea. The list, like the list of the conspicuous men in the War of the Rebellion in the United States, is being rapidly depleted. In any other country than France this old man, grizzled and corrugated of brow, blunt and positive, but kind at heart, would have had better treatment. But the man who steps into the active arena of French affairs must know in what jeopardy he places his reputation. MacMahon, unlike any prominent man of France for a generation, was of Irish ancestry. His family came from Ireland after the downfall of the Stuarts and intermarried with an illustrious French family. His father, Charles Laure de MacMahon, was a General and Peer of France and a confidential friend of Charles X. His wife was Mlle. de Caramau, a woman of rank, who bore him sixteen children, and of this family the subject was the youngest. He was born at the château of Sully, near Auton, 1808.

Just before his death he could look back and count up his earnings of military and civic honors in the following order: Sub-lieutenant in 1830, which rank he had had when he left the military academy of St. Cyr; Aide-de-camp to Gen. Achard during the siege of Antwerp; Captain in Africa, 1833, and a wound at Constantine in 1837; a General of division in 1852; a hero in the Crimea in 1855, and the one who achieved the victory of the fall of the Malakoff; in the Senate in 1857, and in the African expedition the same year, in the Kabylian expedition; in 1859 Commander of the Second Corps in the war with Italy; June 4, in the same war, he achieved the brilliant victory of Magenta, for which the Emperor made him Duke of Magenta and a Marshal. He saw, along this line of dates, the coronation of William I. as Emperor of Prussia, to whom he surrendered later in life.

When the downfall came—or, more appropriately, according to Zola, "the smashup"—in 1870, MacMahon was posted at Strasburg when the columns of the provinces of Prussia came upon him. He met with reverses there; he fell back on Woerth and was routed there. The Prussian cavalry pursued him over the mountains. He rallied his frightened battalions at Chalons, where he met the Emperor, Napoleon III. (which was another defeat), and in a few days he received orders to march to Metz and reinforce Bazaine. The old soldier protested, as did every man who carried a gun or a saber. The whole of France rebelled at it. MacMahon said the heart of the nation was Paris, and he wanted to take his troops there and make the stand. But the order was imperatively to the contrary. He was a soldier; a soldier always obeys orders. The world knows the result. France falls on its knees and hides its face whenever Metz is named. MacMahon massed his forces at Sedan. He was wounded there and gave up his command to Ducrot. The defeat came and the old man of the Malakoff and Magenta sauntered leisurely about the streets of a Belgium village until the treaty of peace of 1871, dictated by Bismarck. Thiers became the head of affairs and MacMahon was called to Versailles and from the palace of the old Kings of France he formulated his plans for overthrowing the commune. He remained in command until France commenced to breathe. He was offered political advancement and declined. The unwillingness to accept the Presidency of the republic manifested by MacMahon, when, on the 24th of May, 1873, the venerable Thiers resigned and retired, was evidently sincere. After much urging he finally yielded, however, and addressed to the Assembly a letter accepting their charge, and giving his word as "an honest man and a soldier" that he, in conjunction with the army, would "maintain internal peace and support those principles on which society reposes."

On the 5th of November, 1873, Gen. Changarnier presented to the Assembly a proposition that MacMahon's power be confirmed for a period of ten years and that a commission of thirty be appointed to make studies for projects of constitutional law. This proposition was presented to MacMahon by a committee headed by the Comte de Remusat. The Marshal expressed himself fully willing that the passage of constitutional laws should accompany any prolongation of his own powers, and on the 17th of November, 1873, he addressed to the Assembly a message in which he declared in favor of a confirmation of his power for seven years and a determination to use all his influence for conservatism. After much opposition the "Septennate" was definitely established on the night of the 19th of November by a vote of 378 against 310.

Under his administration the indemnity to Germany became extinct. He was a soldierly President and because he would not be made a tool of by the Bonapartists, Legitimists, and Orleanists they combined against him and he resigned Jan. 30, 1879. Since then he had lived in retirement. Any mutterings heard in France never molested him or caused him to look up. Why should they? He had done enough for his country. When he was President he inhabited the Palace of the Elysée, where numerous brilliant fêtes and receptions were given each season. Mme. MacMahon and her children were seen much in public and the Duchess was a leader in all good works of charity.

His name was Marie Edme Patrice Maurice MacMahon. On July 20, 1882, he completed his memoirs, but he would not allow them to be published until after his death. They are in four volumes and cover the time between the Algerian campaign and the establishment of the French Republic.]

WON $500,000 AND DIED PENNILESS.

Demise of "Dick" Penistan, an Old-Time Actor.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—Richard Penistan, actor, tavern keeper, and the winner and loser of several fortunes, died of paralysis at the Forest Home for actors at Holmesburg yesterday. There are few characters who are better known to Philadelphians than "Dick" Penistan, as he was familiarly called, and no part of this celebrity was due to the fact that he once won half a million dollars in a lottery. With his wife he appeared at the Arch Street Theater in 1852-'53. Penistan acquired world-wide fame in 1873 by drawing $500,000 in the Havana lottery. He took his money to Kentucky, started a stock farm, and lost all he invested. He also dropped $150,000 in stocks. He was remorselessly skinned by horsemen and jockeys and in less than six years was reduced to a bare living upon the income of some few investments he had made in his wealthy days. He had once acted with Edwin Booth, and had a wide acquaintance among those of the older generation of actors.

Funeral of Christopher Smith.

The funeral of Christopher Smith, a resident of Chicago since 1838, was attended yesterday morning by few except the relatives and close friends of the deceased. Father Melody of St. Pius' Church officiated, and the funeral was from the residence. At the time of his death Mr. Smith was 95 years old. He was born in County West Meath, Ireland. The first house he owned in this country was built upon piles in Lake Michigan, and he was forced to abandon it one night in a terrific gale.

TWO SUFFOCATED BY ESCAPING GAS.

Young Men from Wisconsin Found in an Unconscious Condition.

Two men were found unconscious in a room in the Madison Square Hotel, No. 97 West Madison street, at noon yesterday.

At 11 o'clock Monday night they engaged a room and registered as Mattie and Joseph. They failed to put in an appearance at noon yesterday and the hotel porter was sent to awaken them. He forced the door and found them lying across the bed. The room was filled with gas which was escaping from an open jet. It is supposed they blew out the gas. They were removed to the County Hospital, where the physicians state that their condition was serious and that death may result. From letters found on one of them it is thought they live at Racine Junction, Wis., and that their names are M. T. Wahlgran and Joseph Wooster. Two railroad tickets were also found in their pockets for Racine Junction.

An open gas jet at No. 6039 Aberdeen street resulted Monday night in the death of Alfred Jorgens, 81 years, of Cloverdale, Ill. Henry Hopper, No. 624 North Ford street, Philadelphia, occupant of adjoining room, was nearly smothered to death. His recovery is doubtful. Both men were guests at the home of Theodore G. Zuendell, No. 603 Aberdeen street.

NEW YELLOW-FEVER CASES REPORTED.

Bad Effects of the Colder Weather Upon Patients at Jesup.

Way Cross, Ga., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—Two new cases of yellow-fever were officially reported at Jesup today, as follows: Mrs. Warren, white, and James Kyler, colored. They have been sick three days. The cold weather is having a bad effect upon those suffering from the disease. There was a slight frost this morning. J. H. Gray is reported to be in a critical condition. There are reported up to date twenty cases, two deaths, and seven discharged from treatment. There are several very mild cases of sickness that have not been pronounced yellow-fever. Surgeon Carter pronounced a case at Bird's Mill, in Coffee County, as a genuine case of yellow-fever, yesterday.

Brunswick, Ga., Oct. 17.—Thirty-one cases of yellow-fever were reported today. The whites are H. Silverstein, Millie Silverstein, Mrs. J. M. Raphene, Willie Skipper, Holman Grundy, and John K. Nightingale, and twenty-five colored persons. There was one death, James Wright, colored.

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

"Le Maitre de Forges" ("The Forgemaster") of Georges Ohnet is not altoghther an agreeable play as performed in English by Mrs. Kendal or as it was given in the original by the French company at Hooley's last night. However, it is rich in dramatic possibilities, especially for such an actress as Mme. Hading, and her enacting of the rôle of Clarie de Beaulien, the obstinate and intractable wife, was at all times strong and frequently effective. It is not a part which gives Miss Hading's capabilities a wide scope, although it affords opportunity for her intensity, which were well improved. The motive of the play, pique, seems trivial, and the suspense caused by the heroine's tardy realization and atonements for her injustice to her husband seems too long drawn out. At the same time, the more credit is due Miss Hading, who, at all times, prevented the play from becoming tedious. The changing phases of her character were finely denoted. At first an impulse toward an alliance which revenged a cruel faithlessness, then a realization of the hasty step which she had taken, next the sting of conscience at the unhappiness which she has caused, followed by a generous impulse to atone for the wrong which she has done a sincere and honest man, and finally a melting away into the true womanhood which dominates her character and preserves the sympathy of her audience were all accomplished by Miss Hading with fine discrimination. Her impersonation left nothing to be desired. If anything was lacking it was in the play and because its motive did not rise higher than mere caprice.

The story is that of a woman of high station who, disappointed in the love she bears an unworthy duke, becomes affianced, through pique, to a worthy bourgeois—bourgeois only in station—who is able to supply all the qualities which the titled suitor could not—wealth, honor, love, and happiness. A lingering love for the unworthy lover cuts in twain the holy relations of the couple on their bridal day. Honesty of purpose and resignation on the one hand, and repentance on the other heals the breach and the denouement follows. Interwoven with this skeleton of the plot are a number of sub-plots, which need not be commented upon at this time.

M. Coquelin's art reveals itself strikingly when the actor is able by the force of his own personality and finesse to make something out of nothing. The ridiculous and pretentious old bourgeois, Moulinet, who has revolutionized the chocolate market and now seeks for aristocratic distinction and political honors, was enacted by M. Coquelin with rare unction. The gesture, the look, the wink, and the clumsy deportment infused the reality of life into the worthy bourgeois, the praise for which no one will withhold from him. The younger Coquelin did not appear in the cast. M. Volney played Philippe Derblay, the Forgemaster, with good taste and modest effectiveness. Mme. Barety gave correct significance to the rôle of Athenais, the impudent bourgeois. Mme. Patry was worthy as the Marquise. M. Maury was inclined to be restrained and artificial as the Duke de Bligny in the early part of the play, although his work improved toward the close. Of the other rôles it is hardly necessary to comment.

The original World's Fair art supplements of The Tribune from water color paintings by Charles Graham are to be collected and issued in portfolio form. The first part, containing one-half the views, is now ready and for sale at The Tribune counting-room. Price 50 cents.

IRON COMPANY FAILS.

BIG WELLMAN PLANT AT CHESTER, PA., IN SHERIFF'S HANDS.

Dullness in the Trade Makes the Continuation of Business Impossible—Concern Capitalized at $1,000,000 and the Works Valued at $1,500,000—Organized Originally by John Roach—Liabilities and Assets Not Known—Other Failures of the Day.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—The Wellman Iron and Steel company of South Chester failed today. The liabilities are not known, but execution was issued on a judgment of $64,000 entered by the Delaware County National Bank of Chester on three notes, indorsed by Richard Peters Jr., Secretary of the company; S. T. Wellman, President; and John P. Crozier, ex-Treasurer. Sheriff Howard closed the works this afternoon and 600 hands employed at the plant since the reduction are thrown out of work. The directors of the company will hold a meeting at the Wellman office in Philadelphia tomorrow, when it is probable that an assignment will be made or a receiver appointed.

The failure caused surprise, as the Wellman company was the largest iron and steel plant in the county, and one of the finest equipped in the country. Dullness in the iron trade is the cause assigned. Within the last few months orders have been falling off, and the force was reduced from 1,200 to 600. The plant represents a total investment of $1,500,000. The capital stock is $1,000,000. The officers are:

Samuel T. Wellman, President; S. H. Chauvenet, Vice-President; J. Howard Roep, Treasurer; Richard Peters Jr., Secretary; and Charles H. Wellman, General Manager.

S. T. Wellman is the well known steel manufacturer of Cleveland, O., and heads a syndicate of capitalists who three years ago bought out the Chester rolling mills, which the late John Roach and C. B. Houston organized in 1874. The capital stock then was $600,000. The Wellmans added many improvements, and the capital stock was increased to $1,000,000. The banks here which held the firm's paper are well secured, and as the plant had not been running steadily for some time past there is little depression here in consequence of the failure.

Iron Mountain, Mich., Oct. 17.—Upper Michigan Brewery company, capital stock $150,000, went into the hands of a receiver today. Cashier Northrop of the First National Bank was appointed. Liabilities, $80,000; assets, $100,000. Trust mortgages are given on all lands and buildings to C. B. Coleman to secure the Wisconsin Trust company of Milwaukee, $25,000, and other creditors. The officers of the company are: Thomas Fordice, Detroit, President; H. Nagle, Treasurer; Lee Fordice, Iron Mountain, Secretary and Manager.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—The Mutual Annuity company, an insurance organization with headquarters at Staunton, Va., has made a voluntary assignment. No estimate of the assets or liabilities is given out. Arrangements were made with the National Life Association of Hartford to carry the annuities of life policyholders.

Logansport, Ind., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—Kreis Bros. assigned this evening; liabilities, $25,000; assets, $70,000. Inability to collect accounts was the cause. They were dealers in agricultural implements and manufacturers of harness and buggies.

Petersburg, Va., Oct. 17.—George Davis, a leading peanut dealer of this city, made an assignment yesterday. His liabilities are in the neighborhood of $30,000.

City of Mexico, Oct. 17.—The banking house of Barren, Forbes & Co., founded half a century ago, has gone into liquidation prior to reorganization.

Routine business, reading of papers, and election of officers will occupy the sessions today. At night there will be a banquet at Kinsley's for the members. Tomorrow forenoon there will be another business meeting and a visit to the Fair. The officers who are now acting are: President, A. E. Boardman, Brevard, N. C.; First Vice-President, W. H. Pearson, Toronto; Second Vice-President, Walton Clark, Philadelphia; Third Vice-President, A. W. Littleton, Quincy, Ill.; Treasurer and Secretary, A. B. Slator Jr., Providence, R. I.

COCKRAN FOR MAJORITY RULE.

Tammany's Orator Does Not Want a Silver Compromise.

Bourke Cockran, Tammany's orator, was a guest at the New York State Building yesterday. "The majority ought to rule," he replied when asked about the silver debate in the Senate, "and I believe it will. As to a compromise, I think none should be entered into that involves the unlimited coinage of silver. But I do not want to talk politics in the midst of this Fair. My time is short. I came to see the Fair, and the vision of its beauty and marvelous splendor should not be marred even by the discussion of the ordinary things of everyday life."

ANARCHY IN CONGRESS

FORCE REFORMERS HOLD A CONVENTION WHICH LASTS A WEEK.

They Elude Detectives After Declaring Their Convention Was Off, and in a Milwaukee Avenue Hall Meet Daily—Noted Men Attend the Sessions—Confidence Men Neatly Caught by Two Policemen, Who Disguise Themselves as Farmers—McDonald Gives Bond.

The Anarchists have held a six days' convention in Chicago, closing with a public meeting at which the doors were not locked. This shows again that Chicago is a city of surprises, for these Anarchists succeeded in completely evading the agile detectives. They had speeches, discussions, committee meetings, drank beer, ate red hots, talked over the European situation, parliamentary, military, and dynamitic, and did all other things that go to make up a real old-fashioned anarchistic assembly.

They met in a hall located far out Milwaukee avenue. There were present well-known Anarchists from New York, Philadelphia, Boston, and other Eastern cities as well as many prominent in their advocacy of the cause from foreign lands, who had been drawn to the city by the World's Fair. They had originally announced that they would hold a convention here during the first week of this month; that the sessions would be secret but that a pronunciamento would be issued to the world setting forth a declaration of principles. One of the objects of that convention, as generally talked of by men who believe in the principles of anarchy, was to form an international society to bring those of the same belief in closer contact.

The secret service of the police force became suddenly active. All saloons and other places of resort or assembly of men of anarchistic proclivities were closely shadowed. This caused a semi-official notice to be given by the promoters of the convention to the press that they had concluded to indefinitely postpone the convention. The detectives quit shadowing and returned to their old-time game of gathering in pickpocets, and then the Anarchists hired a hall over a beer saloon and held a week's convention. It was graced on the closing night by Herr Most, who dropped into Chicago to see the Fair and incidentally meet his comrades in anarchy. He delivered the chief address the closing night of the convention. All the prominent local Anarchists were attendants at various sessions.

Greetings were sent to European Anarchists of the various nations and considerable other business of that sort was transacted of a character which it is difficult to ascertain.

CONFIDENCE MEN NEATLY CAUGHT.

Officers, Disguised as Farmers, Foil Two Swindlers.

Officers Burke and Dwyer were walking on Lake avenue near Fifty-sixth street yesterday disguised as farmers when they were accosted by two well-dressed men. Each carried a small case containing samples of cloth. They said in order to introduce a new cloth they were giving reputable visitors to the Fair a suit made of the new goods. The officers accompanied them to a room over the Denver saloon on Lake avenue. They explained to the officers that each was to lay $10 on a sample and draw a card from a pack, each card representing a certain design of cloth for a suit. Burke laid down $10 and drew a blank. Dwyer was more lucky and drew a card calling for a blue suit, but the men objected, stating that he had cheated. One of the men seized the money and the other started to leave the room, saying that he was going for an officer. At this juncture the officers showed their stars and placed both men under arrest. They were taken to Hyde Park Station, where they gave the names of William Clinton and Harry Dale. Later in the day they were arraigned before Justice Porter and fined $50 and costs each.

M'DONALD APPEARS IN COURT.

Gives Bonds for His Presence to Answer to Indictments Brought Against Him.

George M. McDonald, President and General Manager of the Guarantee Investment company, came into the United States Court yesterday and gave bonds for his appearance in the District court when his case is called. Bail was fixed at $1,000, and William B. Austin signed his name to the bonds. There were two bonds to be signed, for Mr. McDonald is a defendant under two separate indictments. J. G. Talbot, formerly President of the company, did not appear yesterday, but it is understood that he will come in today and file a proper paper. The statute under which the indictments were brought provides for a penalty of not more than $500 fine or one year's imprisonment. In an extreme case the sentence under a conviction might be imprisonment in the penitentiary. McDonald and Talbot are the only defendants who are in Chicago. J. M. Van Slyke, former Vice-President of the company, is said to be in Fort Wayne, and the other former and present officials are in Missouri. Mr. McDonald says that some of those who are indicted have no present connection with the company.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 17.—D. P. Slattery of this city is among the indicted officers of the Guarantee Investment company. His name, he says, appeared upon the pamphlets as D. P. Slatterly. His attention was called to it a month or so ago, but he wrote the Secretary, demanding that his name be not used, and in the new booklets it was dropped.

It is learned that in a day or two Attorney-General Wood will institute quo warranto proceedings in Jefferson City against the three bond investment companies doing business in the State to deprive them of their charters. The proceedings will of course be prosecuted in the Supreme Court. From this it will be observed that the companies which have been flourishing at a great rate will soon be between the Federal Court on the one hand and the State on the other.

KERN ASKS FOR MORE MONEY.

Appropriation for His Office Increased—May Employ Hynes in Cronin Case.

State's-Attorney Kern was before the Public Service committee of the County Board yesterday to request the Commissioners to increase the appropriation for his office. The appropriation for the State's-Attorney's office this year amounted to $5,000. Of this amount but $310 remains. Mr. Kern said that there remained in the County Jail forty-two murder cases, at least thirty of which he wanted to try before Jan. 1. The stenographers' fees and incidental expenses of trial would call for $2,000 in excess of the appropriation. The Commissioners agreed to the extra appropriation. Mr. Kern stated that the Cronin case would be called next Saturday in Judge Tuthill's court. In this connection he said that he had been urged by a number of people interested in the prosecution of the case to invite Attorney W. J. Hynes into the prosecution. He could not state what Mr. Hynes would want in this instance, though he thought it would not be less than $100 a day. He further stated the case would take at the least calculation seven weeks of six days each in the hearing. No action was taken, the matter being referred for further investigation to the Committee on Judiciary.

MRS. LEASE LECTURES ON IRELAND.

Tells at Feehan Hall How Her Ancestors "Fit" the British.

Mrs. Mary Lease of Kansas, who recently ran for the United States Senatorship in the Sunflower State and was defeated, lectured last night at Feehan Hall, No. 79 Sedgwick street, on "Ireland and the Irish." Her manner of speech, general bearing on the platform, and free and familiar use of fierce invective is closely akin to the general style of Lucy Parsons the Anarchist. She out Harrisons Carter H. Harrison in claiming nationalistic kinship with the audience she talks to. The lecture was a splendidly worded, running, historical delineation of the struggles of the Irish, disclosing a close study into the political and military history of the country from the times of St. Patrick to Parnell. She showed her lineal descent from Brian Boru, and said her ancestors had "fit" 'em, that is the British, ever since the "big wind." The portion of the lecture devoted to the poetry of Ireland was marked by many outbursts of rich eloquence and was roundly applauded.

Miss Alice S. Mitchell sang "Freedom and the Shamrock," a recently composed song, in a sweet soprano, the applause greeting which drew as an encore "The New Liberty Bell." The attendance was about as large as that at the regular Wednesday night prayer meeting in a small church where the pastor is not popular.

OBJECT TO THE TROLLEY WIRES.

Strong Opposition to the South Side Electric Railway Ordinances.

There was much discussion at the City Hall yesterday about the new electric power ordinances for the Chicago City railway. It was the general impression that Ald. Wall's ordinance for operating with electric trolley wires the Clark street cars would have to be abandoned and Ald. Carey's ordinance considerably modified. There is not much objection to the trolley system on the cross-town lines or on Wallace, Hanover, or South Halsted street. But it is believed there will be serious objection to the system on Indiana and Archer avenues. It is proposed also that the poles to be used must be fully described in the ordinance and not left to the discretion of the Commissioner of Public Works. An iron post must be used, the Aldermen say. They also take the stand that these posts should bear electric lamps which should be lighted and maintained by the street car companies without expense to the city. Thus modified the ordinances may have a chance of passing.

The Fire Department will oppose the trolley system in the central part of the city. It is understood in this connection that the North Side company will ask for a similar ordinance as the South Side company has, for the North State street and the cross-town lines. The ordinances for the two companies, it is intended, will be considered about the same time.

City Electrician Barrett is outspoken against the ordinances in their present forms, and said:

> Such measures are outrageous and should not be considered by the Council for a minute. We have been trying for years to clear the down-town district of poles, and now that we have just succeeded, here comes a company which proposes to put them up again. It is particularly outrageous to advocate an overhead trolley system when electric cars may be propelled successfully by an underground current. Such a road is in operation in this city on the North Side and it works well. In other cities, too, it is used and gives satisfaction. This being the case the Council should pass no ordinance to allow the overhead wires in any part of the city. It would be particularly bad to allow an overhead wire on Clark street in the down-town district. Those electric railway wires carry heavy currents, and if a telegraph or telephone wire breaks and falls across one of them there is likely to be a fire or a dead person at the other end of the wire. Our telephone and police telegraph wires would be menaced constantly.

Marshal Musham of the Fire Department is equally outspoken against the plan, but for another reason. He said:

> We have great trouble in getting to fires now on account of the wires strung in front of buildings, and our men are constantly exposed to great danger on account of live wires. I think the Council should reject any and all propositions looking to the erection of more poles and more wires.

Commissioner Jones is against the ordinance, and said:

> I am informed by Mr. Yerkes that the underground system works well on the North Side except in winter, and that its failure then is due to faulty construction, which could be remedied in the construction of another line of the same kind. There is no reason therefore for a new overhead trolley wire. Besides I do not think electric trains can be run with safety on down-town streets.

Black Knocked Down and Robbed.

Julius Larens met Gabriel Black, a cashier for the Wellington Catering company at the World's Fair grounds, yesterday morning about 3 o'clock at Clark and Washington streets. Black was waiting to take a car to his home, No. 1319 North Clark street, when Larens accosted him and suggested that they should walk up Clark street. When at Indiana and Clark streets, Larens knocked Black down and took all the money he had, together with a watch. Larens was arrested last night and locked up on the charge of robbery.

They were both fined $25 and costs, and immediately produced the necessary funds to set them free.

Historical Society's Quarterly Meeting.

The Chicago Historical Society held its quarterly meeting at the University club yesterday morning. ## BOAT LEIGHTON GIVEN UP FOR LOST.

Wrecked Schooner Off Port Colborne, Lake Erie, Still Unidentified.

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 17.—The unknown schooner whose topmasts show above water off Port Colborne, Lake Erie, is now supposed to be the F. C. Leighton, which left Toledo last Wednesday with 23,000 bushels of wheat for Buffalo. Its agents here, Galvin, Clark & Boland, have not heard from it, and fear that it is the one that foundered. The missing boat was commanded by its owner, Benjamin Calhoun of Clayton, and had a crew of four men, beside the Captain, mate, and cook, or seven in all. It is a canal schooner of 312 tons, was built at Port Huron in 1875, was valued at $4,500, and rated B1.

Toledo, O., Oct. 17.—The schooner Leighton, which is reported sunk off Port Colborne, had light topmasts, whereas the topmasts showing above water there are said to be black. The Benson, which left Buffalo for Erie without cargo Wednesday, has black topmasts. Neither the Cummings nor the St. Peter, on the way here from Buffalo, has yet arrived. Some marine men say that the lost boat may have been the St. Peter.

THIRTEEN BODIES ARE RECOVERED.

Theory Advanced That Dean Richmond Victims Died from Exhaustion.

Dunkirk, N. Y., Oct. 17.—Up to tonight thirteen bodies from the lost steamer Dean Richmond have been recovered. A large number of men are still patrolling the beach looking for bodies. The Collector of Customs today took charge of all of the cargo which has so far come ashore. The theory is advanced that all the people on the Richmond died of exhaustion. They all had life preservers on, and in almost every case the lungs are free from water, showing they were not drowned. The man, C. L. Clark, who claims to be the only survivor of the Richmond, has disappeared.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Oct. 17.—The mystery of the schooner whose topmasts stick above water four miles north of Parisien Island is till unsolved. It was thought to be the Georger, but that boat arrived here all right this morning. The steamer Kershaw was released from the beach in Waiskai Bay this afternoon. Tugs are working on the schooners Ironton and Yukon and expect to have them afloat tomorrow. The Canadian steamer Clinton and schooners Ceylon and Augusta, after being missed several days, passed down this morning. They were sheltered under Keweenaw Point.

STEAMSHIP MARSEILLE FOUNDERS.

Big French Boat Goes Down at Sea, but Its Crew and Passengers Are Saved.

New Orleans, La., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—The steamship Merrimac, Capt. Bennett commanding, crossed the bar this morning and brought the news that the French steamship Marseille, belonging to the French Commercial company, had foundered at sea, but that the crew of over fifty officers and men had been rescued by the steamer Palmos. In addition to the crew the Marseille had on board a number of passengers, all of whom were rescued. The Palmos was bound for Galveston, and Saturday it was overhauled and passed by the Merrimac, to which vessel it imparted the information regarding the survivors of the Marseille by signal. The Palmos is due tomorrow, when full particulars will be learned. The Marseille was an iron screw steamship, carried four masts, and was of 3,447 tons gross and 2,730 net register. It was built at Havre in 1883, and was fitted with compound engines of 400 nominal horse-power. The Marseille left Antwerp with a large general cargo on Sept. 22.

Halifax, N. S., Oct. 17.—Seven of the crew of ten of the Norwegian bark Bonte Corvo, wrecked near Sydney, N. S., Oct. 1, arrived here today. They saved little else than their lives from the wreck.

New York, Oct. 17.—Fears are felt for the safety of the Spanish steamship Ciudad Condal, which sailed for this port from Havana Oct. 10, and was due here Sunday. It is thought it has been driven out of its course in the recent heavy storm and has become disabled. The Ciudad Condal is the sister ship of the Havana, and is considered a thoroughly equipped vessel and able to withstand heavy seas. It is under the charge of Capt. Carmona, and carries a crew of seventy-two men. It sailed from Havana with 350 passengers on board and a heavy cargo of sugar.

Nassau, N. P., Oct. 17.—The crew of the American bark Chestina Redman, Capt. McLean, from Boston Sept 18 for Hurricane Island and Sabine Pass, have landed here by the New York and Cuba mail steamship Niagara, Capt. Bray. The Chestina Redman sprang a leak in the recent hurricane. When it was met by the Niagara Oct. 15 it was in a sinking condition and it was decided to abandon it. It was set on fire and then abandoned, the Niagara taking the crew on board. The vessel was left burning.

Billiards at St. Paul.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 17.—The second game in the billiard series for the Northwestern amateur championship and a sweepstakes was played this evening at the Metropolitan Billiard Hall, the contestants being Frank Doherty of Minneapolis and Frank Thayer of St. Paul. Doherty just came out of the hospital and was not in condition. Thayer had good control of the ivories and won out on a score of 300 to 180.

Windle Breaks the Three-Mile Record.

Springfield, Mass., Oct. 17.—W. W. Windle in an attempt at the five-mile bicycle record here today reduced the three-mile mark of 6:45 1-5, made by Meintjes, to 6:43. He fell behind the record on the fourth mile and stopped.

JIM GORMAN KNOCKS OUT JACK LEVY.

The Fight Lasts Eight Rounds and the Knockout Is Clean.

New Orleans, La., Oct. 17.—Twenty-five hundred people witnessed the bantam battle at the Olympic club tonight between Jack Levy of England and Jim Gorman of New York. The event of the evening was preceded by a ten-round set-to between Jack Everhardt and George Pierce. Prof. John Duffy was the referee. Pierce and Everhardt came in the ring at 8:45 and immediately commenced hostilities. Everhardt won in the second round.

Next came the bantams. Gorman was seconded by Jim Gibbons, Owen Harney, and W. Brookman. Levy was attended by Andy Bowen, Tom Anderson, and J. R. Judd. Time was called at 9:30.

In the first round Gorman depended on countering, Levy being the aggressor. Gorman scored some clean hits in the second round. Gorman gave evidence of being the better boxer. Levy's only hope seemed to lay in his ability to clinch and punch his adversary's body while locked. Levy missed several well-intended left arm swings, and was cross-countered heavily by Gorman's right. The seventh was a hot round. Gorman clinched several times, and was nearly always worsted at close quarters. From the midst of a close rally in the eighth Gorman swung his right on Levy's jaw, and the latter fell on his face in the sand completely knocked out. Neither man was hurt, and not a scratch was on either of them.

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—"Shadow" Maber, the Australian, knocked out Tom Beaver of Wisconsin in two rounds at Fargo Athletic club. Beaver forced the fighting. He was knocked down in the first and in the second was put out by a right hander on the jaw at the expiration of two minutes.

Bradford, Pa., Oct. 17.—The fight between Dan Hurley of Niagara Falls and John L. Sullivan of Buffalo (lightweights) for $500 tonight was stopped by the police in the first round. The fight was bloody, and Hurley had slightly the best of it.

ERIE, PA.—The schooner Paige, which the Wocoken had in tow before she foundered, was picked up by the tug Scott and towed to Buffalo this afternoon. The belated Burlington and Ferguson came in tonight.

RACINE, WIS.—The Chicago tugs Wau-Bun and Hall, while in port today waiting for a tow, had a towing match in the harbor on a wager. The Hall got the best of the pull and signaled for the bridge to open. In pulling the Wau-Bun through the bridge that boat came in contact with piling, breaking the tiller and breaking her shoe. The Hall crashed into the yacht Echo, cutting it down to the water's edge. It was expensive fun. The tugs Hall, Wau-Bun, Helm, and Hood have been in port ten days waiting for tows to Chicago and time hung heavy for their crews.

MONEY GOES TOO FAST

CONTROLLER PROTESTS AGAINST BUREAU EXTRAVAGANCE.

He Visits the Mayor and Complains That McCarthy and Welles Have Expended Nearly the Whole of Their Appropriations, with Two Months of the Fiscal Year Left—Streets to Be Paved by Corporations Which Have Torn Them Up—Representatives Meet City Officials.

Controller Wetherell sought Mayor Harrison again yesterday to protest against the extravagance of the bureau chiefs, particularly McCarthy and Welles, who have spent nearly all the money appropriated for their respective branches of the public business, though there are two months of the fiscal year left. The Controller says there is no money for extra appropriations. The Council estimated for an increased revenue of $350,000. This has has not been realized. The revenue from saloon licenses and miscellaneous resources have fallen off. The departments must therefore be kept within the appropriation. This can be done in all the departments except those of McCarthy and Welles.

"I made objections to Commissioner Jones to the granting of additional appropriations for the Superintendents of the Street and Street and Alley Cleaning Departments because I have not the money and in my judgment will not have the money," said Controller Wetherell yesterday.

If the Mayor permits the extra appropriation it is believed that Mr. Wetherell will retire from the Controllership. He has not been satisfied with the way in which some of the departments have been financially managed.

CORPORATIONS WILL PAVE STREETS.

Conference of Their Representatives with City Officials Results Satisfactorily.

Corporation Counsel Kraus, Commissioner Jones, and Supt. McCarthy of the Street Department had a conference yesterday with representatives of the gas companies, telephone companies, electric light companies, and other corporations which tear up the streets for the purpose of laying underground works. These men were summoned last week by a letter calling attention to the fact that work estimated to cost over $600,000 had been made necessary by their tearing up of pavements and that they must either pay for the work or have it done or the city would grant them no more permits. The representatives of the corporations suggested that it would be proper for Supt. McCarthy's figures to be verified before the work of paving the streets was entered upon. They agreed to select an engineer who is to go with an engineer selected by Supt. McCarthy next Friday to survey some of the streets and see if they can agree as to the amount of paving to be done by the corporations. This was satisfactory to the city officials.

Tracing Smallpox Trouble.

Physicians of the Health Department were out on West Twenty-first street all day yesterday vaccinating persons who might have come in contact with Katie Hautch, who was taken to the pest-house suffering from smallpox the night before. The physicians think they can trace all the cases to a patient on Sixteenth street. The grocery store at No. 1083 Van Horn street, which has been closed by order of the Commissioner of Health for several days since the removal of a case of smallpox from it, has been fumigated five times. The Commissioner has allowed the proprietor to resume business.

Award Money to Property-Owners.

Owners of property condemned for the improvement of Lincoln Park boulevard from Pearson to Oak street were awarded compensation in the County Court yesterday. The verdict of the jury gave $18,660.80 to interested owners in Neeley's lake shore subdivision of the Canal Trustees' subdivision and $40,890 to owners in Vogt's subdivision. Charles Fitz-Simons, Cuthbert W. Laing, Malcolm McNeill, W. G. McNeill, Thomas Murdock, and Henry O. Kaiser are the principal owners of the involved property.

connection with that. Last Friday she broke away from the boy that was leading her and running away went all the way to Garfield Park before she was recaptured. Her race was run on top of that. Yesterday her trainer announced that she would run in 1:16, and she went to the wire in just that time. The public followed the plunge on her in the ring and sent her to the post favorite at 3 to 2 and shorter.

Monrovia Makes the Running.

When the flag fell she was off second, but rushing right to the front, opened up a gap of four lengths, going to the half. Emperor Billet was her nearest attendant. Around the last turn and into the stretch the filly held her advantage, but once straightened out Foxhall and Immilda closed on her rapidly and had her driving an eighth out. Foxhall was in the middle of the trio, and the two fillies closing in on him formed a wedge, with him in the center. He was, of course, cut off, and Monrovia and Immilda fighting it out the former won by a head. Leigh, who was on Foxhall, made a claim of foul, but it was not allowed. He stated after the race that he could have won if he had not been cut off, but it looked from the stand as though the fillies were outracing him at the time.

Sir George was in the hurdle race. He had been extensively touted as a good thing, and was held at the ridiculously short price of 7 to 5 by the bookmakers. For a green jumper this was absurd, as the result proved. He made a mistake at every hurdle, knocked down two of them, and finished third, Prince winning handily.

Ferrier, backed down from 8 to 5 to odds on, took the first race handily.

Enterprise, backed from 8 to 5 to 1, took the third, and Tee Mike had the fourth won when the flag fell. He was two lengths in front of everything, and Alary and Prince Henry were ten lengths back. Alary closed a lot of ground and finished second.

OFFICIALLY SET FOR SATURDAY.

Three-Cornered Race to Be Run at Hawthorne—Lamplighter on the Way.

It was officially announced yesterday that the Yo Tambien-Clifford-Lamplighter race would be run next Saturday at the Hawthorne track.

Chris Smith told inquirers that J. Irving of the Ætna Stable would ride Yo Tambien in the race. The jockeys are thus settled, as Clifford will be ridden by Martin and Lamplighter by Taral.

A telegram from New York announced that Lamplighter had been shipped Monday night and will arrive at the Hawthorne track this morning.

The telegram also stated that while the horse was still in Green Morris' hands the latter has no proprietory interest in him, the horse being Gottfried Walbaum's sole property.

After Nov. 1 he and the rest of Walbaum's horses pass into the hands of Jimmy McCormack, who has been engaged as the stable trainer and manager.

FOR A NATIONAL JOCKEY CLUB.

A Meeting to Be Held in New York the Coming Winter.

Secretary Brewster of the Washington Park club is a warm advocate for the scheme to form a national jockey club for the mutual collection of forfeits, the general stamping out of fraud, and betterment of racing.

During his last visit East he talked the matter over with a number of Eastern turfmen, and the result will probably be a meeting in New York some time during the winter to discuss the scheme.

No one doubts the value of such an organization, but it seems hardly possible at the present time. Racing in the West is a grab-bag game and that in the East is not much better.

If all the clubs would agree to respect the others' rulings and thus stamp fraud out they would accomplish a world of good. That is about as near to the formation of a national jockey club as can be hoped for.

WASHINGTON PARK RACE ENTRIES.

The Unprecedented Number of 967 Received Up to Date.

The entries to the Washington Park stakes, which closed Monday, continue to pour in.

When the last mail was opened last night 967 entries had been received for the eight stakes. This eclipses any previous year up to this time and the full entry received promises to be the largest in the history of the club.

This is the more remarkable because James Pepper, Marcus Daly, and other big breeders and owners will make no entries this year. Last year Jim Pepper's entry numbered over 100.

A number of new stables, however, have entries in which more than make up for the loss of these two owners.

Hawthorne Track Officials Arrested.

Ed Corrigan, John C. Burke, John Brennock, and Joe Ullman of the Hawthorne race track were arrested yesterday morning on warrants sworn out by George L. Robinson charging them with keeping and maintaining a common gaming institution. Robinson declined to talk about himself or his object. Corrigan's attorneys secured a continuance of the case until Oct. 24. Each gave $500 bail for appearance.

SISTER MARY BEATS FARADAY.

Bob Holloway's Counterfeit Fails Again Under a Load of His Owner's Cash.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—Perfect weather, a fast track, liberal attendance, and the defeat of three heavily backed favorites marked the sport today. The fields were light except in one race. Perkins was in great form again, as he landed three winners and one second. The most notable performance of the day was the easy win of Sister Mary in fast time. She almost walked under the string. Faraday carried a lot of his owner's money, but he was never in the hunt with the fleet-footed filly. The plungers were divided as between Fondoline and Ganelon in the 2-year-old race and both sections received a regular facer by the victory of Fleischman's Tarrock, a long shot. Byron McClelland lost a lot of money on Fondoline. Irish King, a failure for months, was able to win at last, but he did not have much to beat in the six furlongs race. The China mare, Josie M., her first start in nearly a year, showed some speed, but tired on the stretch. She will do better later on. Readina, looking well, came strong near the end in the same race. The wise ones would have nothing but King David in the first race, remembering his recent remarkable performance at Louisville, but the King is a quitter and Vida had no trouble in beating him.

It is settled that Henry McDaniel, who now trains for Barney Treacy, will be "Lucky" Baldwin's trainer next season. The summaries:

First race, seven furlongs—Vida (Perkins), 2 to 1, won by nearly a length fully extended; King David (Clayton), 4 to 5, six lengths before Sis O'Lee (Graham), 8 to 1; Queen Bird and Miss Nim ran unplaced. Time, 1:29½.

Second race, six furlongs—Irish Chief (Julson), 9 to 10, went to the front on the far turn and galloped to the string, winning by four lengths; Gypsy Girl (Clayton), 4 to 1, two lengths before Readina (Perkins), 5 to 1; Josie M., L'Indienne, Dungannon, and Withers unplaced. Time, 1:17½.

Third race, seven and one-half furlongs—Sister Mary (Perkins), 8 to 5, led all the way and won in a walk by five lengths; Faraday (R. Williams), a length before Response (H. Williams), 6 to 1; Promenade, 30 to 1, unplaced. Time, 1:35½.

Fourth race, five furlongs, 2-year-olds—Tarrock (Perkins), 8 to 1, won by a length and a half in a hustling finish; Ganelon (R. Williams), 6 to 5, the same distance before Fondoline (Clayton), 6 to 5. Trim, Joe L., Bob Neely, and Kinda unplaced. Time, 1:03½.

Fifth race, one mile and a sixteenth—Anna (Clayton), 11 to 20, won handily by a length from Miss Dixie (Perkins), 5 to 1; Pearl N. (Graham), 10 to 1, two lengths away; Clementine (Fisher), 3 to 1, unplaced. Time, 1:49½.

Wednesday's Lexington entries are:

TURN OF THE TALENT.

LINDEN FAVORITES WIN FIVE OF THE SIX RACES ON THE CARD.

Mike Dwyer Gets Back Some of His Losses on Raceland and Stonenell, Who Win in Soft Spots—Crafty Tom Ryan Scores with Old Melanie—John McCafferty and Hugh Penny Land the Money—Nahma and Trinculo Capture the 2-Year-Old Events.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—[Special.]—This day's racing at Linden was in remarkable contrast to that of yesterday, when favorites were slaughtered unmercifully. Today no less than five of the talent's horses were successful, while in the other event the winner was a strongly backed second choice. Raceland picked up 120 pounds in the handicap at a mile and a furlong and won just as he pleased. Mike Dwyer bet a lot of money on him and landed a nice winning. Terrifier set a terrific pace till the stretch was reached, but then subsided and had to be content with second place.

John McCafferty and his friends won handsomely by the success of Hugh Penny in the five furlong selling race for 3-year-olds. McCafferty rode him and he was always in front although the favorite, Will Elliott, was pretty close to him at the finish.

Nahma was the least bad of the 2-year-olds that started in the dash of five and one-half furlongs and was a strong favorite. She got the worst of the start, but won easily enough.

Tom Ryan's mare Melanie had the call in the betting on the six furlongs selling race for all ages and although Flatlands stuck pretty close to her most of the way she drew away at the end and won handily.

That counterfeit Bowers was again a strong tip in the six furlong dash for 2-year-olds and was heavily backed, closing a strong second choice to Trinculo. He finished back in the ruck, while Trinculo won after a hard drive with Sprinkle.

Stonenell was the favorite and an easy winner in the heavy-weight handicap at seven furlongs, his opponents being unable to force him to extend himself.

Simms rode two winners and McCafferty, Penn, N. Hill, and Clerico one each.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—The second day's play in the cricket match, Australia vs. Canada, opened with fine weather and a genial sun, although there was a coolish breeze which made it somewhat chilly for the 500 or 600 spectators seated in the grand stand. The Australians had made 298 runs yesterday in their first innings, and the Canadians resumed their first innings this morning with five wickets down and 41 runs to their credit. They had succeeded in making a score of 110 when the innings closed. After a brief rest the Canadians went to bat again, and had rolled up 118 when their last wicket fell, leaving the Australians victorious by one innings and 70 runs. Following is the score for both days:

UNIVERSITY TENNIS TOURNAMENT.

Northwestern Players Meet in the Opening Games on the Evanston Courts.

The annual tournament of the Northwestern University Tennis Association opened yesterday afternoon at Evanston. It promises to be the most interesting and best of the tournaments yet held by the association. Six matches were played, four in singles and two in doubles, and two went by default.

As luck would have it, many of the poorer players were pitted against the strongest players in the initial games, yet nevertheless the playing was much better than the final scores would indicate. The best match of the afternoon was the opening one in doubles, between Wilson-Tubbs and Wilkinson-Short. The best playing in singles was done by Patten and Ransom. A large number witnessed the games.

The final scores were as follows:

Doubles—Wilson-Tubbs won from Wilkinson-Short, 6—1, 6—1.

Northwestern Ready for Chicago A. A.

The Northwestern University football team had their final practice yesterday preliminary to their game with Chicago University this afternoon. They had a hard game against the second eleven, composed of sixteen men, led by Capt. Clarkson. Clarkson and his men were cheered as they gradually drew near the 'varsity goal by successfully bucking the line or by making short runs around the end, and when they finally pushed the ball across the line they were applauded enthusiastically.

Capt. Griffith will probably play his men this afternoon as follows:

Oberne and Witmer, ends; Parkes and Culver, tackles; Wilson and Scott or Falkner and Aylesworth, guards; Pearce, center; Griffith, quarterback; Williams and Jewett, halves; Van Doozer, fullback.

PROMISED CONTEST IN HUSE ESTATE.

Sisters of the Doctor Object to the Second Wife as Executrix.

There promises to be a lively contest in the Probate Court over the estate of Dr. Frederick J. Huse, who died last May in St. Luke's Hospital leaving property valued at nearly $600,000. The contest lies between Mrs. Helen Clement Huse, the second wife of the deceased, and his sisters, Mrs. Marie Wilder and Mrs. J. H. Englesby of Evanston. A petition is being prepared in the interest of the two sisters, who desire to have the second wife of their brother removed as administratrix and to compel her to turn over to the estate $60,000 worth of stock in the Plano Manufacturing company. It is claimed that Mrs. Wilder at various times before her brother's death gave him sums for the payment of debts aggregating $123,000. The doctor was indebted to an Evanston bank, it is claimed, and his sister agreed to cancel the debt if he would convey to her 123 shares of stock in the Plano manufacturing company. This arrangement was carried out though the stock was never made out in the name of Mrs. Wilder. When Dr. Huse and his second wife separated a contract was drawn up wherein it was stipulated that the doctor should give his wife $60,000 worth of stock in the Plano Manufacturing company. In addition to the first proceedings a bill will be filed in the Circuit Court by Mrs. Wilder and Mrs. Englesby against the estate to recover the possession of land in Evanston worth nearly $500,000, the title of which has never been recorded, but which, it is claimed, was held in trust by Dr. Huse for the complainants.

FANTASY IS SUPERB.

THE CHIMES FILLY WINS A NASHVILLE HEAT IN 2:08 3-4.

It Beats All 3-Year-Old Records, and Is Made Handily and On a Track That Does Not Suit Other Fast Trotters—Nightingale to Attack the Three-Mile Record—Director's Flower Is Beaten by Axenite—The 2:23 Class Battle Is Postponed—Other Harness Races.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—One of the most notable feats of the season by a trotter was seen here today, when the bay filly Fantasy broke the record for 3-year-olds at either gait. She did this in the second heat of the race for her age against nine other young trotters, distance being waived, so that the peerless filly from Buffalo might be driven out without leaving the rest behind the flag. Knowing the great flight of speed possessed by Fantasy Geers let her go at a moderate clip to the half, the first quarter in 33½ seconds and the next one in 32½. Then the big daughter of Chimes moved away from her field with a pacemaker to carry her along and trotting the third quarter in 31¾ seconds, increased this terrific clip home, coming faster with every stride till she was going below a 2-minute gait at the wire. The mile was in 2:08¾, lowering the race record for 3-year-olds, previously held by Directum, by 2½ seconds, and also eclipsing the mark of 2:10½, which Sunol made in 1889 against time, along with the same record made by Arion here last November. Fantasy finished without any special urging, and her splendid performance did not exhaust her to any apparent extent. This mile is the more creditable since the track is not at its best, the footing, though smooth, being too hard for most of the flyers. Arion started to beat the 2:07¾ he scored at Lexington last week, but 2:08¾ was the best he could do, while Belle Vara and Pixley were even farther away from their records, going in 2:10¾ and 2:11¼ respectively. Many of the drivers declare the course here is two seconds slower than the one at Lexington, and the speed shown by the three members of Doble's stable just mentioned seems to support this.

Nightingale to Go at Bishop Hero's Record.

Fantasy has had an unbeaten career since she made her début at Pittsburg last July. There she lost the first two heats to Elfrida, but since then has never been headed to the wire. Her best record before today was 2:13¼, made in the third heat of a race at Rochester, N. Y., early in August, but she has shown more than one mile below 2:12 in her work, including a fourth heat in 2:11½ at Lexington. C. J. Hamlin, the Buffalo breeder, who is the fortunate owner of this wonderful young trotter, was present to see her go this afternoon, as he had been planning to have Fantasy sent nearer to her limit in her last race of the year. He was not satisfied with the track, but says if it is put in better order he will let Nightingale trot against the record for three miles, which was 7:21½, and, made by Huntress in 1872, had stood until Bishop Hero trotted in 7:19¼ and beat it in California two weeks ago.

The 2:40 trot for 2-year-olds was a lively affair, in which Axinite moved fast and game, though he had a narrow margin in both heats. M. E. McHenry made one of his great finishes in the second heat, lifting Axinite home with rein and whip, when Red Bud seemed to have him beaten. The winner reduced his record to 2:20½ in this mile, and Director's Flower, who was favorite, sustained her third defeat in as many weeks.

Though the 2:23 trot was a two in three affair it was still undecided at dark. Courier captured the first heat so easily that he seemed a sure winner, but a bad break left him behind the next time, when Raven Wilkes got home first. In the third heat Courier made a close finish with Parole, but could not catch the colt, so that the race goes over with only the three heat winners eligible to start tomorrow. Besides this there are four events, including the free-for-all trot, and the 2:15 pace takes the place of the 2:28 trot.

You're nearly as liable to catch fish in the desert of Sahara as you are to get thoroughly meritorious clothes in the average ready-made shop. The almost universal mania seems to be to make goods sightly and deceiving, so that you can be tempted to pay a big profit when you think you are buying cheap. Merit wins by the slower but surer process, but every step is a lasting success.

Is it a Tuxedo, a Swallow-Tail or a Business Suit that you're interested in today? ## CHOSEN CHAIRMAN OF THE REPUBLICAN COUNTY COMMITTEE.

Campaign Organized and Aggressive Work Started—Need of Close Scrutiny of Lists of Election Judges and Clerks Presented to the Committee Meeting—Policemen and Firemen in Favor of Judge Gary—So, Too, Are Many Democrats—Gov. Altgeld Leads Opposition.

At length the Republican County committee has settled down to work. The campaign in behalf of Judge Gary and the Republican county ticket was fairly begun yesterday at the Sherman House. There was a full attendance. After the adoption of rules and by-laws defining the duties of the officers the committee proceeded to elect officers as follows:

President, John M. Smyth; Vice-President, Lloyd G. Smith; Secretary, James R. B. Van Cleave; Treasurer, William R. Kerr; Executive committee, James H. Gilbert, Robert S. Iles, Perry A. Hull, Christopher Mamer, A. F. Doremus, James A. Fleming, Henry Wulff, John Humphrey, and F. W. C. Rhode.

All the officers were chosen by acclamation, and all the members of the Executive committee except Mr. Rhode. Mr. Linn of the Twenty-third Ward was named in opposition, but got only two votes. Mr. Smyth, the new Chairman, is not in the city. He will be back Monday, when he will take charge of the campaign in earnest. In the meantime Mr. Lloyd Smith, a young lawyer of Lake View, will act as Chairman, and the campaign will be pushed. Ald. Kern reported that he had secured temporary headquarters in the second floor of the Title and Trust Building, No. 100 Washington street. The Executive committee will meet there until the close of the campaign, when permanent headquarters will be secured.

The committee took up the most important work of the campaign yesterday—the scrutiny of the list of judges and clerks. The question was called up by Committeeman Magerstadt of the Fifth Ward. He said that many of those appointed as judges and clerks of election on the recommendation of Republican committeemen are now acting with the Democrats, having obtained positions or favors from the City Hall machine men. He had made an examination in his own ward. He found that there are among the judges and clerks of election sixteen Democratic officeholders. He had furnished a list to the Election Commissioners' office, but no notice had been taken of the matter.

To Scan Ward Lists.

Ald. Cooke and several other committeemen indorsed what Mr. Magerstadt had said, and on motion of Ald. Campbell the committeemen from the various wards were instructed to examine the lists of judges and clerks of the precincts of their wards with a view to ascertaining whether the Republicans have sufficient honest representatives according to the law; also whether there are officeholders among the Democratic judges and clerks, and to report the same to the Executive committee tomorrow (Thursday) with a view to further action. The Executive committee was also instructed to call on the Election Board to urge a proper observance of the law.

Chairman Smith called attention to the fact that there will be but one registration day this year, next Thursday, and urged that the ward clubs be called together with a view to full registration. Several of the committeemen said this matter is being attended to, and meetings have been called for this week in the First, Third, Fourth, Fifth, Ninth, Eleventh, Twelfth, Twenty-fourth, Twenty-fifth, and Thirty-second Wards to arrange for sending out notices of the registration. The work of naturalization will also be attended to. Copies of the constitution and by-laws will be printed immediately for the benefit of the new ward clubs.

Cheering reports were made by most of the committeemen as to the prospects of the campaign. The Democrats in most of the wards favor the re-election of Judge Gary, and are opposed to the machine ticket, especialy to the personal candidates of the machine men, Browning, Boyle, Trumbull, et al.

The Democratic Campaign committee has transferred its headquarters from the "Store" building, to the offices of "Bob" Burke and "Black Hat" McCarthy in the City Hall. Burke is the Assistant Treasurer, and he has already begun to make collections in aid of the campaign from those eminent businessmen George Hankins, William Skakel, John Condon, and Cy James, while McCarthy is drilling the street foremen for service on election and registration day. From now until election not much work other than that of the political kind will be done by the City Hall men. There is one drawback, however. Supt. Brennan insists that the policemen shall not interfere in politics this fall, and the McCarthy-Burke-Crossette combination is not at all desirous that the bluecoats should interfere. They are almost to a man for Judge Gary, who is being persecuted because he tried and sentenced the men who murdered their comrades in haymarket square. The firemen are also with Judge Gary without regard to party.

Democratic Support for Gary.

Indeed, judging from the talk around town, Judge Gary seems to have as enthusiastic support among the Democrats as he has from the Republicans.

Ald. Tripp, the Democratic Alderman from the Twenty-second Ward, said yesterday: "My ward is Democratic, but Judge Gary will get a large majority in it." Judge Frank Adams, Judge Richard W. Clifford, both strong Democrats, have joined Judge Tuley in urging the reëlection of Judge Gary. William J. Hynes will make an address during the campaign in favor of Judge Gary's election. W. C. Niblack, Adolph Moses, Max Pam, Jeremiah Leaming, John C. Richberg, George W. Cass, E. G. Mason, and other leading Democratic lawyers are willing to do the same.

It is proposed also to circulate an address in favor of Judge Gary, which will be signed by the leading business-men of the city. Gov. Altgeld is appealing to the German Lutheran and German Catholic churchmen to support him in the fight against Gary in reward, as he puts it, for "saving their schools." The appeal has fallen on deaf ears this far. Gov. Altgeld has been in the city for some days in consultation with those powerful statesmen, Park Commissioners Garvey, Brodowski, Moll, Heuer, Senators Bartling and Mahoney, and Grain Inspector Bunker as to the best means of beating Judge Gary. An Executive committee of the State officers has been formed, of which Garvey is Chairman and Bunker Secretary. Altgeld expects great work in the anti-Gary campaign from this combination. But strange as it may appear it is predicted on the best authority that Garvey's precinct in the Nineteenth Ward, which is three to one Democratic, will give Gary a large majority.

Everbody is laughing at Mayor Harrison's indorsement of Washington Hesing for Subtreasurer. Some days ago Harrison denounced Hesing as being a bad Democrat. Now he wants him appointed to a fat office to get him out of the way of Lawler.

County Clerk Wulff has given notice of the submission of the park museum act to the people of the South and West Park districts. The proposition will be submitted in the following form:

|---|---|---|
| Proposed authorization of the Park Commissioners to purchase or erect and maintain edifices to be used as museums and to aid in maintaining the same by admission fees on certain days only. | YES | |
| | NO | |

The Thirty-Second Ward club will meet at Axford's Hall, Forty-fifth street, near Cottage Grove avenue, Friday evening to arrange for the campaign. It is essential that all members of the club attend as registration business will be attended to. There will be a meeting of the Fourth Ward Republican club this evening also for registration.

No Defalcation in the Order.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 17.—The committee that has been investigating the books of the Knights and Ladies of Honor has reached a point where it can be stated with certainty that no defalcation exists, although the books were found in a muddled state. C. F. Dudley, the new Treasurer, cannot get backers on his bond of $100,000 and if he does not succeed by Thursday the order will be without a Treasurer.

NEED OF GOOD ROADS.

PLANS FOR THE BETTERMENT OF PUBLIC HIGHWAYS.

Graduation Succession Tax Urged to Maintain the Common Avenues of Travel—Secretary Morton Criticised for His Speech Against Granges—Household Economy in Foreign Countries Discussed—Same Domestic Conditions Generally Prevalent.

Today's Program—9 a. m., Congress on Veterinary Surgery, Hall 24—9:30 a. m., Congress on Fisheries, Hall 26; Conference State Commissioners on Fish and Game, Hall 25—10 a. m., Congress on Forestry, Hall 22; Good Roads, Hall 20; Household Economics, Hall 7; Agricultural Education, Hall 4; Farm Life and Mental Culture, Hall 6—2 p. m., Veterinary Surgery, Hall 24; Ornithology, Hall 23—2:30 p. m., General Session of the Agricultural Congresses, Hall of Columbus; Forestry, Hall 22—8 p. m., General Session of the Agricultural Congresses, Hall of Columbus; Household Economics, Hall 7.

"Some one has said, 'Judge a country by its horses,'" said Theodore Butterworth, Chairman of the Congress on Good Roads, addressing two score business-men and farmers in Hall 20 yesterday. "A greater index of a nation's progress is its roads. While our country leads the world in railroads, and while our Columbian Exposition proves the New World clearly in advance of all nations in civilization, in commercial and agricultural progress, in the one important interest of roads we fall behind European countries. When we began this Good Roads Congress work last year there was but little road organization; now we have several State roads organizations and a National League for Good Roads and numerous local road associations."

The first paper on the program was by Albert A. Pope of Boston. Among other things he said:

> Aside from questions of material gain, which is, perhaps, the lowest standpoint to consider, and the good that comes from easy means of communication, there is to be borne in mind that good roads are the great highways for the advancement of social life, education, and Christianity. The visits of friends, the attendance of children at school, and the gathering together at church are all governed to a greater or less extent by the condition of the roads; the abandonment of farms and the crowding together of people in the cities is due largely to the isolation caused by bad means of communication to and from the farm. But the problem to be solved is to provide money to build good roads. Many farmers are opposed to the good road movement because it means to them increase of taxation, and in some sections of the country agricultural interests are so depressed that they do not feel able to bear greater financial burdens. It has been estimated that the State of Illinois loses every year $100,000,000 because of bad roads. Now, I am going to urge a plan which I believe to be the least burdensome and the most effectual and equitable for providing good roads. Let each State establish a graduated succession tax—that is: a tax on property passing by succession, by inheritance, or by legacy. The succession tax will not fall on the poor. Those whose estates amount to $10,000 can well afford to give $100 to the State in return for all the protection of its laws, which have enabled wealth to be accumulated and enjoyed.

One of the speakers proposed that a part of the license received from saloons be used in improving roads. The suggestion was applauded.

A paper on road engineering and construction was read by L. M. Haupt, consulting engineer of Philadelphia. He said in substance:

> The total tonnage of the railroads in the United States in 1891 amounted to 704,399,000 tons, carried an average distance of 115 miles and giving a ton mileage of 81,210,154,000. This movement cost the shippers $755,254,430. To produce this result there has been invested in railroads the incomprehensible sum of $10,389,834,228, an average of $61,878 per mile; and it has paid a fair revenue. The enormous economy resulting from reduced resistances to locomotion is instanced by the waterways, the improvements on the great lakes at a total expenditure of $30,000,000 has saved in the cost of transportation by water, as compared with rail, nearly $150,000,000 in one year. A very large percentage of the tonnage moved by rail or water must first traverse the common road over which the resistances as measured by the cost of movement are twenty-two times greater than by rail and 266 times greater than on the ocean. The earth roads could be very greatly improved at comparatively small expense, and the resulting benefits would be general, affecting all classes of the community and all other systems of transportation. The engineering question as relating to roads requires the same skill and technical knowledge as for railroads, and may be considered under the four subdivisions of location, construction, operation, and maintenance. While the rapid progress made by the United States since 1830 was due largely to the instrumentality of her railroads, the greatness of Britain was attributable mainly to her foreign commerce, in which she utilized the cheapest known methods of transportation; while the thrift, frugality, and wonderful recuperative powers of both France and Germany were due chiefly to their good roads and numerous internal waterways, as well as to their policy of protecting home industries. Our people, as a whole, need to be impressed with the importance of securing cheaper transportation, and be made to realize that our common roads are a most serious obstruction to our otherwise phenomenal growth.

CRITICISM OF SECRETARY MORTON.

Ohio Farmer Takes Him to Task for Speech Against Granges.

But one general session of the Congress of Agriculture was held yesterday. Chairman Allerton of the General committee presided over the session, which met in Hall 7 at 2:30 p. m. The first address was that of B. Walker McKean, Secretary of the State Board of Agriculture of Maine. He said that Maine, though it does not now produce all the farm products consumed by its people, can be easily made to do so. The climate is favorable for agriculture. In his State there are 65,000 farms, worth $102,000,000, from which the product in 1890 aggregated in value $22,000,000.

Col. J. B. Brigham of Ohio criticised Secretary of Agriculture Morton for his speech the evening previous. Secretary Morton said that among the most dangerous and insidious foe that the American farmer had to contend with are the granges and alliances. Mr. Brigham said that the only excuse for such words coming from the Secretary of Agriculture was the excuse of profound ignorance, beside which the darkness of night was nothing. Those who have conceived the idea that the farmer's hands are raised against every class or profession make a great mistake. It was a great fault of the farmers of this country that they had not more representatives in the National Congress. If it had a good following of farmers Congress would do some business, and do it in quick order.

Katherine L. Miner, speaking of agriculture in the South, said:

> The drainage of our land has been made a study, and there has arisen a great demand for improved farm implements. The subject of fertilization has also been closely investigated. The sugar house has been considered, and new machinery is giving place to the old. In the development of all these industries prices of articles are growing cheaper. One man can produce with improved farm implements 10 per cent more cane in 1892 than he did in 1860. In no part of the United States is cultivation more absolutely perfect than on a sugar plantation.

FOR ECONOMY IN THE HOUSEHOLD.

Domestic Troubles in Foreign Countries Similar to Those Here.

The Congress on Household Economics met in Room 7, with Mrs. John Wilkinson presiding. Reports were received from foreign countries upon domestic service: From Germany, by Frau Morgenstern; Japan, Miss Prince; Switzerland, Frau Meyer; Austria, Frau Bundy, President of the Housekeeper's Union of Austria. These essays indicated that the domestic condition in those countries was not different from what it is here. There is the same restlessness and the difficulty of procuring satisfactory help, and it is rare to find one who is employed for more than two years consecutively. In Austria, according to Frau Bundy, the situation is even worse, because the laws regulating domestic service tend to constantly compel employé and employer to go to law and there is a vast amount of litigation.

Mrs. Anna Howe Bachus spoke on altruism in the home. She reviewed the situation in present households, and spoke of modern influences which are working towards disintegration. She deprecated both luxury and poverty as being responsible for the lack of harmony in the home. Mrs. Rebecca Palmer talked on the "Rights and Duties of the Individual in the Home;" Mrs. E. B. Harbert on "Independence in Expenditure and Dress;" and Mrs. Helen Starrett and Mrs. William Kretsinger on the "Suffering of Little Children from Uneducated Mothers and Untrained Nurses."

Prof. Lucy M. Salmon of Vassar College delivered an address on "Education in the Household." She contended that domestic service can be regulated by the same economic law which controls trades and professions, and the mistake made is that with advancing conditions of civilization this occupation has been belated, and that coöperation rather than individuality is the keynote to the solution of the problem of domestic help.

At the evening session Prof. Catharine Coman of Wellesley College delivered an essay on "The Effect of Competition Upon the Terms of Domestic Service," and Mrs. Coleman-Stuckert of Denver talked on the subject of "Coöperation as Applied to Household Life in Villages and Rural Districts.

AGRICULTURE IN FOREIGN LANDS.

Minor Congresses Hold Well Attended Day and Evening Sessions.

Those interested in agricultural education and experiment gathered in Hall 4 at 2 o'clock. Leon Vassilliere, Agricultural Commissioner from France, told what was being done in agricultural education in his native land; Peter Slieskin, professor in the Agricultural Academy at Moscow, spoke for Russia; Dr. A. Backhaus, professor of agriculture in the Royal University of Gottengen, spoke for Germany; Prof. T. Minami of the Imperial Agricultural College at Tokio, for Japan; William Saunders, Director of the Experimental Farm at Ottawa, for Canada; and Paul de Vuyst, Agricultural Inspector of Belgium, told of the agricultural societies and other agricultural forces of Belgium. In the evening in Hall 3 the Congress on Agricultural Education and Experiment held a joint session with the Association of American Agricultural Colleges and Experiment Stations. Addresses were made by W. A. Henry, Director of the Wisconsin Agricultural Experiment Station and President of the Association of American Agricultural Colleges and Experiment Stations; Sir Henry Gilbert of Rothamsted Experiment Station, Rothamsted, Eng.; and George T. Fairchild, President of the Kansas Agricultural College.

The Congress on Fish and Fisheries was well attended. Dr. George Brown Goode, director of the United States National Museum at Washington, read a paper on the relation of scientific research to economic problems; Dr. Jacques Loeb of Chicago University presented a paper on the "Influence of Light on the Periodical Depth Migration of Pelagic Animals"; Dr. B. W. Evermann of the United States Fish Commission described the "Investigation of Rivers and Lakes with Reference to the Fish Environment"; Dr. F. H. Herrick of Adelbert College of Cleveland described the "Habits and Development of the Lobster and Their Bearing Upon Its Artificial Propagation"; and Prof. J. E. Reighard, Professor of Animal Morphology, University of Michigan, gave an interesting account of the "Plankton Investigation for the Michigan Fish Commission on Lake St. Clair." At the evening session two lectures were given with stereopticon illustrations. The first was upon "Fur Seals from an Economic Standpoint," by J. Stanley Brown of Washington, D. C.; the other was on the "Food of the Menhaden," by Dr. James I. Peck of Williams College, Williamstown, Mass.

The thirtieth annual meeting of the United States Veterinary Association was held yesterday in conjunction with the Veterinary Congress. The hall was well filled. Two sessions were held during the day, that of the morning being given up entirely to business of the association. President W. L. Williams of Bloomington welcomed the members. There were reports from the Committees on International Meetings, Finance, Diseases, Prizes, Army Legislation, Incorporation, and reports from Assistant Secretaries. Friday evening the veterinarians will have a banquet at the Auditorium.

Mrs. Laura D. Worley opened the Congress on Farm Life and Mental Culture. A number of addresses were delivered, embracing talks on "Inner Life and Club Life on the Farm," by Mrs. Laura E. Scammon of Kansas City; Miss Octavia W. Bates of Detroit, Mich.; Mrs. Field of New Orleans; T. G. Kingsbury of Indianapolis, and Calvin Fletcher of Spencer, Ind. It is the intention of the delegates to this congress to form a permanent organization for mental culture and the development of those engaged in agriculture.

The nineteenth annual convention of the American Bankers' Association will assemble in Hall 3 today at 10 o'clock. Delegates have been arriving for the last two days at headquarters in the Palmer House. During the convention addresses will be delivered by James H. Eckels, Controller of the Currency; George S. Coe, New York; J. C. Hendricks, New York; Horace White, New York; Allen R. Foote, Washington; George A. Butler, New Haven; G. E. Leighton, St. Louis; W. C. Cornwell, Buffalo; E. H. Thayer, Clinton, Ia.; E. O. Leech, New York, and Prof. Sidney Sherwood of Johns Hopkins University.

SAYS HE TORE THE FLAG DOWN.

Pennsylvania Old Soldier Is Angered at Sight of Confederate Banner.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—The question of who tore the Confederate flag from the Southern locomotive, "General," in the Transportation Building at the World's Fair is answered by Maj. Isaac Brown, Deputy Secretary of Internal Affairs of this city, who says, "I did it," and he shows the flag, which he proposes to present to J. J. Andrews Post, G. A. R., of Corry, Pa., to which he belongs. A week ago last Friday he was walking through the Transportation Building and came upon the old locomotive, which was used by J. J. Andrews and twenty-one Ohio soldiers in their raid through Georgia, Tennessee, and Alabama, which resulted in the capture and hanging of Andrews and seven of the soldiers. Suspended over the locomotive was a Confederate flag. The Major, growing indignant, climbed up on the locomotive, tore down the flag, and bore it away. Maj. Brown is President of the Hartranft Corps Survivors' Association and served three terms in the Pennsylvania Legislature. He says he knew what he was doing and is prepared to take the consequences.

LAWYER SUES THE CITY FOR $25,000.

Mr. Gregory Asks for Fees in the Recent Lake-Front Case.

Attorney S. S. Gregory has begun suit in the Superior Court against the city for $25,000, the amount of his claim for attorney's fees in the Lake-Front case, which was decided in the United States Supreme Court about six months ago. The city is required to make answer to the bill at the November term of court. After the close of the case he presented a bill for services amounting to $25,000. Corporation Counsel Kraus recommended that Mr. Gregory be given $5,200, together with a reasonable retainer. To this the Council committee agreed and such a recommendation was made to the Council. Mr. Gregory agreed with the corporation counsel to accept that amount, provided the Council should allow the claim at its first meeting after vacation. This action was not taken and Mr. Gregory's attorney notified the corporation counsel that the agreement was off and began a suit for the full amount of the claim. The city will fight it.

SHOW FRUITFUL YEAR

FINAL SESSION OF WORLD'S WOMAN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNION.

All the Various Committees Submit Their Reports, Showing Prosperity in All Departments—Addresses on Temperance Work, Including an Appeal from Mrs. Borg of Finland to Pay More Attention to Its Physical Attributes—Resolutions Voicing the Views of the Convention.

Today's Program—9 a. m.—National W. C. T. U., Hall of Washington, opening exercises, appointment of committees and annual address of President Frances E. Willard.

2 p. m. Legislation and Petitions, Mrs. Catharine W. McCulloch, Illinois; Franchise, Dr. Louise C. Purington, Massachusetts; Peace and Arbitration, Mrs. Hannah J. Bailey, Maine; Proportionate Giving, Mrs. Esther T. Pritchard, Indiana; Parlor Meetings, Mrs. Anna M. Hammer, Pennsylvania; State and County Fairs, Mrs. M. C. Campfield, New Jersey; Evangelistic, Miss E. W. Greenwood, New York; Work in Penal Institutions, Mrs. Jane M. Kinney, Michigan; Work in Almshouses, Mrs. S. A. Morrison, Michigan; Police Station Work, Mrs. Margaret A. Watts, Kentucky; Securing Homes for Homeless Children, Mrs. Margaret T. W. Merrill, Maine; Work Among Railroad Employés, Mrs. Caroline M. Woodward, Nebraska; Work Among Soldiers and Sailors, Mrs. S. A. McClees, New York; Work Among Lumbermen, Mrs. Mary C. Upham, Wisconsin.

7:30 p. m.—Addresses of welcome to the World's and National W. C. T. U.; Mrs. Matilda B. Carse, President Chicago Central W. C. T. U.; Mrs. Emily Huntington Miller, Dean of Woman's College, Evanston; the Rev. Carlos Martyn, D. D., Chicago, Pastor Sixth Presbyterian Church; Lady Henry Somerset, Vice-President World's W. C. T. U. and President British Women's Temperance Association, England; Miss Lillian Phelps, representing Dominion of Canada W. C. T. U.; Mrs. Mary H. Hunt, Superintendent Department of Scientific Temperance Instruction.

The second and last day of the World's Woman's Christian Temperance Union was devoted almost exclusively to business. Nevertheless, the Hall of Washington was crowded all day long and many women unable to get seats stood for hours in the aisles. All the various committees reported the work of their departments for the last year and all showed an encouraging condition of things.

Mrs. Charlton Edholm of the Press Department submitted an account of the work done by her department and some of her own views as to the possibilities of the press in furthering the work of the union. The report of the Sunday School Department was interesting, but was interrupted to make place for the memorial service in memory of Mary Allen West, the sixth "round-the-world missionary" of the W. C. T. U., who after a journey of more than 3,000 miles through Japan, during which she delivered ninety-seven addresses, died in that country among the native adherents to the cause of temperance. Mrs. Chika Sokurai of Japan, who was with Miss West shortly before the latter's death, told with much feeling of the meeting between them, and paid a glowing tribute to the noble life of Miss West.

Reading from Crusade Bible.

Miss Anna Gordon said that it was fitting that from the pages of the "Crusade Bible" the traveler's psalm should be read by the President, and Lady Henry read, with fine expression and feeling, that great poem. At its conclusion Lady Henry said it gave her great pleasure to introduce one who had been the pioneer in the work of securing woman's equality. She said that as she and Miss Willard had read the reports of the great series of congresses they had been rejoiced that when Susan B. Anthony appeared in those congresses she had received the proudest recognition.

Miss Anthony said, as she came to the front, that she felt just as proud as Lady Henry could to stand in that great assemblage of women, for this was the first time that an out and out advocate of woman's equality had been recognized by this organization. Eleven years ago, she said, Frances Willard, the noble President of the association, had nearly lost her official head because she had introduced Miss Anthony at a meeting in the City of Washington. Miss Anthony proceeded to tell of the growth of the suffrage sentiment among the reform elements, and made a powerful presentation of the whole question, showing that all efforts at charity and reform were impotent and futile so long as present conditions existed and woman was deprived of her rightful share in the government of the world.

Lady Henry Somerset then introduced the Rev. Dr. John Hall of New York, who made a short address congratulating the union upon their good work in the field of temperance. The Rev. Dr. Wilbur F. Crafts of Pittsburg followed with a resolution to celebrate the year 1900, as the anniversary of the birth of Christ, by a series of meetings to be held at various points throughout the world and to last over the entire year. He also proposed that a band of missionaries should be sent from one meeting to another until they had completed the entire circuit. The resolution was referred to the Committee on Resolutions. The Committee on Credentials reported that there were 160 delegates present representing seven countries.

Work of Afternoon Session.

The afternoon session was opened with a prayer by Mrs. Cunningham of British Columbia, after which Mary H. Hunt, superintendent of scientific temperance instruction of the W. C. T. U., reported that a law had been passed in forty-four States of the United States making the teaching of scientific temperance compulsory. She said that this work was already bringing about good results and much was expected of it in the future. In saving the children of today the men and women of the next generation were being saved. She said that the W. C. T. U. text books were not only being translated into many languages, but were serving as models for all new text books on scientific temperance. The rest of her address was devoted to the condition of legalized teaching on scientific temperance in foreign lands.

Miss Elizabeth W. Greenwood, superintendent of the department of evangelistic work, read an interesting report upon the work of her department. Her concluding words were:

> How may be bear the gospel of life to the millions of the world in the shortest possible time? This is the question confronting our evangelistic department today, and the solution is individual consecration and individual effort.

John G. Woolley of Minneapolis followed with a short address on general temperance work. Miss Anna A. Gordon, who has charge of the juvenile work of the union, then read her report for the year. An interesting feature of this report was that of the children in raising money for the Willard fountain that is to be placed at one of the entrances of the Woman's Temple. Miss Gordon said that the subscription at present amounted to $2,681 and had been contributed by the children in sums not exceeding 10 cents. Col. Parker, Worthy Grand Secretary of the Good Templars of the World, spoke a few words of encouragement and said that the Woman's Union and the Good Templars should go hand in hand, as they were doing the same work along parallel lines.

Mrs. Gen. Bidwell, wife of the last Prohibition candidate for President, spoke a few words of welcome.

Strong Speech from Finland.

Mrs. Zelma Borg, delegate from Finland, created considerable surprise by declaring that too much attention was being paid to the moral side of intemperance and not enough to the physical. In the middle of her address she exclaimed excitedly:

> Don't harp so much on this devil, devil, devil business. Drunkenness is a physical defect and our doctors should be brought to treat it as such.

Mrs. Hanna J. Bailey, Chairman of the Peace and International Arbitration committee, presented the report of her department. In this report she claimed that the day of arbitration was being postponed by inculcating a military spirit among the children and said that she thought the military drill in schools and colleges was one of the most formidable things to be combated.

Resolutions Adopted.

The Chairman of the Committee on Resolutions reported in substance as follows:

> Reiterating the principles of total abstinence and prohibition, enjoining that special effort be made to extend the membership of the W. C. T. U., and urging that members wear the white ribbon constantly not only as a badge of loyalty, but as a means of influence, and that efforts should be made to induce every church member everywhere to sign the pledge that the whole influence of the church may be thrown on the side of total abstinence. Declaring that woman's equal right is the most effectual means of promoting the growth and success of all moral reforms. Appealing to Christian women that whenever wars shall threaten, they will pray that the great curse of war may be averted, and that they will also endeavor to promote peace by petitioning their several governments. Approving a proposal for the celebration of the 1900th birthday of Christ by a series of world's round Christian conventions, including a great world's convention of Christian reforms. Regretting that the decennial missionary conference of India withdrew the public morals resolutions, including resolutions against the opium trade, the liquor traffic, and legalized vice. Recognizing the significance and importance of the work of all around missionaries. Expressing sympathy for Miss Willard in her impaired strength and faith in her recovery. Extending thanks to Lady Henry Somerset for her self-sacrificing interest manifested by her coming to the United States and serving the convention as its President and for her manifold kindnesses to Miss Willard and her private secretary, Miss Gordon.

The principal feature of the evening session was an address by Miss Jessie A. Ackerman, second round-the-world missionary, in which she told of her interesting experiences in Australia. Mrs. M. A. Woodbridge, Secretary of the convention, read her report, after which the parting hymn was sung and the convention adjourned.

CONTRACT OF THE UNION PACIFIC.

Exclusive Agreement with Northwestern May Be Annulled.

The fact that the Union Pacific has sent dispatches to its Eastern connections requesting them to continue to interchange traffic with it on the same terms as heretofore and expressing a desire to keep up the most friendly relations with them in the future has given rise to reports that the receivers contemplate an abrogation of the exclusive traffic contract with the Chicago and Northwestern and that they mean to place it on exactly the same footing as other connections east of the Missouri River. The adoption of such a policy would be hailed with joy by all its Eastern connections, except the Northwestern and Alton, both of which have been enjoying special advantages as regards through traffic over the Union Pacific. It is believed that the Union Pacific's interests would be better subserved if its exclusive contract with the Northwestern was abrogated, as its other connections would give it much more business than they do now. It is a question whether the receivers have the power to annul a legally executed contract. Some railroad officials contend that the contract with the Northwestern cannot be abrogated by the receivers, while others contend that the contract was made by the old management, and that the receivers are not required to fulfill any of the contracts made by the company before it went into the hands of a receiver. The action of the Northern Pacific after going into the hands of receivers in abrogating its contract with the Wisconsin Central is cited in substantiation of the claim that the receivers need not carry out contracts made by roads before they go into bankruptcy. In the Wisconsin Central case, however, the courts were asked to annul the lease with the Northern Pacific, and only after the courts had granted the request did the Northern Pacific abrogate its through traffic arrangements with the Wisconsin Central. The opinion is expressed that the courts will have to decide the question whether the receivers can legally abrogate the contract with the receivers, and that until this is done the relations between the Union Pacific and Northwestern will continue as at present.

Demands Equalization of Rates.

The Missouri Pacific has just discovered that the $5 rate from Kansas City to Chicago made on account of the World's Fair has the effect of making a lower rate from Kansas City via Chicago to the East, if combined locals are used, than the regular through rate via St. Louis. General Passenger Agent Townsend thinks that in consequence thereof great numbers of people who would otherwise go East via St. Louis are going via Chicago. He requested Chairman Caldwell to rectify the discrepancy by making the low World's Fair rates also basing rates and thus placing both cities on an equal footing. A hearing was had at Chairman Caldwell's office regarding the matter yesterday afternoon, but a decision has not yet been rendered by the Chairman. Although the feeling was that no injury is being done St. Louis by the present condition of affairs yet no particular objection was raised to the equalization of rates as requested by General Passenger Agent Townsend. St. Louis has all along enjoyed the same low rates as were made to Chicago on account of the World's Fair, but it has not transpired that the low rates have induced many people to go to or via St. Louis.

Railroad Notes.

The Canadian Pacific railway's earnings for the week ending Oct. 14 were $480,000; for the same period last year $479,000.

Third annual meeting of American International Association of Railway Superintendents of Bridges and Buildings is in session at Philadelphia.

Of miroir brown velvet, lined with turquois blue silk, and with jet ornaments so placed that the velvet forms a sort of ruching, falling into a hood behind.—New York Herald.

What to Do with Altgeld.

Brooklyn Union: Altgeld, the Anarchist Governor of Illinois, seems unable to restrain himself, so great is his sympathy with all sorts and conditions of scoundrels. In seven months he has turned loose ninety-five convicts, sixty-three by pardon and thirty-two by commutation. In Illinois, as the great Fair closes, the people have before them the question whether this monkeying with the penitentiary is to be approved by the popular vote. That there should be some legal process of putting the Governor in the penitentiary seems clear.

Drifting to Destruction.

Philadelphia Inquirer: The Senate is a rudderless hulk, drifting on the seas, buffeted by every wave and at the mercy of the pirate. The national flag has been dishonored, national pride has received a terrible blow. The safety of the people is no longer the highest law and the Constitution is no law at all. "Senatorial courtesy" rules the land, while the Nation groans and cries out in anguish for aid.

SAY BONDS ARE FALSE.

STOCKHOLDERS ATTACK THE CICERO LIGHT AND POWER CONCERN.

They Assert That They Are Also Creditors and They Ask to Be Permitted to Furnish the Court with New Evidence and Facts—Proceedings in the United States Supreme Court, Attorneys Admitted to Practice, Etc.—Judge Grosscup Sitting at Peoria—The Court Record.

By a petition filed in the Circuit Court yesterday the proceedings under which a receiver was recently appointed for the Cicero Light, Power and Heat company of Austin are attacked. The petitioners are George M. and Walter E. Davis, Emery B. Moore, Frederick A. Hill, Nathan I. Harrison, and Frank M. Murray. They ask to become identified with the litigation. They assert that they own 776 out of the 1,500 shares of the capital stock of the company and are also creditors to the extent of $3,500. It is alleged that the bonds given to the American Trust and Savings Bank, which held a trust deed upon which the foreclosure suit was based, were false and fraudulent because they were executed and delivered July 1, 1892, while the company was not organized until Aug. 7, 1893. A further charge is made that at the investigation of the company's assets, which took place before a master in chancery, the defendants and officers of the corporation did not contest seriously the application for a receiver and allowed the attorney for the complainant bank to interrogate witnesses on delicate subjects without raising any strenuous objections. The petitioners maintain that they have no knowledge of the foreclosure suit, and therefore ask to be permitted to furnish the court with new evidence and facts.

Judge Grosscup Sitting at Peoria.

Judge Grosscup is holding forth in the United States Court for the Southern Division of the Northern District of Illinois in Peoria. With him are District-Attorney Milchrist, Circuit Clerk Burnham, and Marshal Hitchcock. Circuit and District Court business will be attended to during the Judge's stay there this week and both the civil and criminal dockets will be cleared up. There is no criminal business of special importance in the district demanding the attention of the court.

Chief Johnycake Will Case Settled.

SOUTH MCALISTER, I. T., Oct. 17.—[Special.]—The old Isaac Johnycake Indian will case, which had become famous during its fifteen years' pendency in the courts, was finally settled in the District Court. The court has decided that the pretended will of Chief Johnycake had never been executed according to the laws of the Cherokee Nation and declared it to be void. An appeal was taken to the Supreme Court and the decision of the lower court was affirmed. A rehearing was granted and six months ago a second decision was rendered affirming the lower court. The case has finally been settled by the land-owners paying into court a sum of money representing the appraised value of the shares of the five heirs and the costs in the case.

EXTEND SPEYER LOAN.

PHILADELPHIA AND READING IS GIVEN INDEFINITE TIME.

Collaterals Deposited for $2,500,000 Withdrawn from Sale—Mortgage and Income Bondholders Meet and Hear Report of Examiner Little—Losses by Lehigh Valley—Further Examination of the Accounts Necessary to a Complete Statement.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—President Joseph S. Harris of the Philadelphia and Reading railroad succeeded this afternoon in having the Speyer loan indefinitely extended. The loan for $2,500,000 was made by a syndicate headed by Speyer & Co., and fell due Oct. 1. The collaterals pledged to secure the loan were advertised to be sold by auction tomorrow. William Salomon, representing the syndicate, had a long conference with Mr. Harris. As the result of the conference the following was announced: "Negotiations having been opened which cannot be settled immediately, the collaterals held for the Speyer loan have been withdrawn from sale."

A meeting of the joint committee of the general mortgage and income bondholders of the Philadelphia and Reading railroad company was held this afternoon to receive the report of Stephen Little upon his examination of the affairs of the railroad. Mr. Little stated that he had received the fullest opportunities to examine the books and papers, and had made a full examination down to Feb. 28, 1893. The statement of the railroad company as to its earning power down to the end of the fiscal year of 1892 was found to be correct, he said, but losses incurred by the operation of the Lehigh Valley lease and from other outside causes were not deducted from the income as reported. Mr. Little has yet to examine the accounts down to Aug. 31, 1893. He has also to examine the books of the coal and iron company. Until the examination is completed it will be impossible to furnish a complete statement. He returns to Philadelphia tomorrow to finish his examination, and will make a further report.

Cut the Transcontinental Rates.

Transcontinental passenger rates are getting badly demoralized. The "Zoo" line has tendered its connections a basing rate of $50 for the round trip between St. Paul and Portland, Ore., and a $65 round trip rate between St. Paul and San Francisco over the Canadian Pacific to Victoria, and thence by the Pacific Coast Steamship company's steamers to San Francisco. These rates cut those heretofore in existence $30 a ticket, the old rates being $80 and $95 respectively. The tickets carry fifteen days' tourist limits in each direction and have final return limits good till April 30. The "Soo" has made these reductions to meet those made through the Mississippi River gateways for the Midwinter Fair at San Francisco.

HORSES AND CARRIAGES.

A RARE OPPORTUNITY FOR SOME PERson to get one of the biggest bargains that have ever been offered in this state: $150 cash will buy the handsome, highbred, fast trotting, and road mare Lady May; she was sired by Red Wilkes, dam May Day; she is 7 years old, 15¾ hands high, and weighs about 1,000 pounds; she is a pure, level-gaited trotter, does not shy or pull; can be harnessed or driven by a lady or the most inexperienced person with perfect safety; she will road ten miles per hour without urging, and I will guarantee her to trot a full mile in 2:30 or no sale. Any gentleman in search of a safe, sound, and fast roadster combined will do well to come and inspect her. Sold only on account of being in foal, as I have no facilities for raising a colt. For further particulars call on my groom at my private stable, 333 Indiana-st., near Rush, North Side.

FOR SALE—IN CONSEQUENCE OF HAVING run away, the handsome, Kentucky bred trotting mare Hazel W., by Red Wilkes; she is 6 years old, 15¾ high, weighs 1,050 pounds, is sound, can beat 2:30, has no record, and has always been gentle until recently, and could not have been bought for $1,000, only for having become frightened at the elevated railroad while being driven under it by a lady; she will be sold subject to any veterinary inspection; she would be invaluable to any one desiring a fast animal where there are no elevated railroads; price $150. Apply at owner's barn, rear of residence, 347 Ohio-st., North Side.

OWING TO THE DEATH OF MY HUSband I desire to sell his fast trotting and family mare, Florence Medium, sired by Happy Medium, sire of the famous Nancy Hanks. She is 6 years old, weighs 1,000 pounds; sound and gentle; trotted in 2:28½ last July. Any private party that desires her for their own use can have her for $150. My husband has frequently refused four times that amount for her. I will warrant her sound, gentle for a lady to drive, and to go a mile in 2:25. Useless for horse dealers to call. Also a fine top buggy and harness. Apply to groom, James Brown, at private barn, 295 East Erie-st, corner State-st.
MRS. ROBERT STANTON.

NEW ELECTRIC LINES.

NORTH SIDE COMPANY LIKELY TO ISSUE STOCK FOR THAT PURPOSE.

The Grain Markets Less Active—Prices Undergo No Important Changes—Northwestern Wheat Deliveries Continue Liberal—Public Stocks Now and a Year Ago—The Net Increase Since July 1 Less than 2,000,000 Bushels—Corn Sustained by Good Shipping Demand.

The feature in the operative departments of the street railways today is the pronounced movement that is being made in the direction of introducing electrical motive power. The City railway has applied for ordinances covering practically all the lines on which it now uses horses. That company has now had in operation for some months several electric lines, and they have without doubt stood the most severe test that was ever given for so long a period to any electrically equipped road and they have stood it to the absolutely perfect satisfaction of the company and the public. The natural result is a movement in the direction of more equipment of this sort. The City railway will build immediately, if it obtains the proper ordinances, something like sixty miles of electric road, and will practically abandon the use of horses. The company has found it not only far more convenient for the public, and therefore productive of greatly increased traffic, to have this form of rapid transit, but it also has found that the operating expenses are most materially reduced.

The indications are that the City railway will not be alone in this introduction of electrical motive power. It is strongly probable that the North Side company is to immediately follow in its steps in that direction. The North Side company has a large number of lines now being operated by horses. Mr. Yerkes is too shrewd a railroad manager not to have seen long ago that this was too expensive a mode of operating street railroads, and he has been experimenting for several years with various motors for outlying lines. It is now likely that a move will almost immediately be made looking to the introduction of electricity on a great part if not all of these North Side lines now operated by horses.

This will call for a considerable expenditure and it means the issue of more stock by that company. The company showed a surplus of $728,000 in its last statement and the earnings this year are generally admitted to be very far above dividend requirements, but it is still probable that in addition $1,000,000 new stock will be put out, stockholders having the right to subscribe for it at par, and the proceeds to be used in this electrical work.

It is something of a conundrum to guess how the market will look at such an issue. An issue of stock at par when the stock is selling at but a little above that price is one thing, but an issue at par when the subscriber can get $227 for his stock is quite another. The issue of new stock to an extent that endangers an established dividend rate is also a far different matter from an issue by a company whose surplus earnings are so large that there is no doubt cast on its ability to continue paying the established rate on the increase. The buying that was in the market yesterday looked as if some one had a great deal of confidence in the outlook.

At the stock market trading was exceedingly active and prices continued decidedly strong. West Side advanced to 140 and remained there throughout most of the session, closing at 139¾. The buying is still in the strongest hands and the buyers seem to have the utmost confidence that the stock has, as they choose to put it, only commenced to advance. Money is getting decidedly easy and it has set people to figuring on income. They figure that West Side stock pays 5 per cent at 180 and that gives the bulls their cue. North Side was even stronger than West and was more active than it has been recently. It started at 220 and went to 227, closing at the highest price for the day.

There was a fair amount of trading in Lake Street Elevated and the stock sold up to 22¾, touching 23 for a single sale. There is no sign of the alleged great short interest rushing to cover and some people are beginning to think that that short interest is a myth. Rapid Transit stock is firm, selling at up to 42.

Cable advices to Winston and Meagher say that the directors of the City of Chicago Brewing and Malting company announced in today's London papers that a general meeting of the stockholders of the company will be held about the middle of November, when a dividend of 7 per cent upon the ordinary shares of the company will be declared, which dividend will be payable Dec. 1. While the profits for the year will be considerably larger than would be indicated by the dividend declared and paid, it is the opinion of the directors that, in view of the financial crisis through which we have passed and the uncertainty as to the financial future, it would be unwise to recommend the payment of a larger dividend than 7 per cent.

NEW YORK.

New York, Oct. 17.—[Special.]—There are times when the stock market of a single day embodies distinctly the great moving forces of current finance. There are times, too, when the course of prices reacts nothing but the froth, tossed to and fro on the surface of the waves. The recent market has been pretty clearly of the second class. Today's selling was of a character as superficial as yesterday's buying. If prices yielded more readily than they had previously advanced, the doubt overhanging the currency situation sufficiently explained it. Neither yesterday nor today was the selling by real holders of securities a factor. This great controlling body is still awaiting, it may be said awaiting with confidence, the issue of the memorable battle at Washington. Until afternoon, today's market was exceedingly irregular. In some quarters, notably in the industrial group, it was at first strong. During the last two hours professional attacks were made upon the general list, and the closing was marked as a rule by sharp declines. Reading sold off at the start on renewed assertions that the Speyer loan collateral would be sold tomorrow, though what its owners would have to gain by such a sale, except in the improbable event that the purchase price equaled the face of the loan, is hard to see. The sale may still be pronounced doubtful. Missouri Pacific failed to respond to the assurances of its chief owners that insolvency would be averted. There are reasons, however, despite the problems for the outlook, for thinking it will be. Other stocks yielded chiefly under traders' sales, the grangers showing special weakness, varied only by fractional rallies at the close.

Money on call has been easy, ranging from 1½ to 2½; last loan at 1½ and closing offered at 1½. Prime mercantile paper 6@8 per cent. Bar silver 73. Mexican dollars 58½. Sterling exchange is weaker, with actual business in bankers' bills at 482¾@483 for sixty days and 484½@485 for demand. Posted rates 483½@485½. Commercial bills 481@482 for sixty days and 484 for demand. Government bonds steady; State bonds dull. Silver at the Stock Exchange was neglected.

Railway and miscellaneous bonds were irregular. The sales were $526,000. Boston, Hoosac Tunnel and Western 5s fell 2¼, to 95; Northern Pacific 2ds 1, to 86½; Oregon Improvement 5s 1¼, to 43; Reading 1sts 1¼, to 29¼; do 2nds 1, to 19; Denver and Gulf 1sts 1, to 39; and Wabash, Detroit and Chicago 1sts 1, to 98. Burlington and Quincy and Denver 4s rose 2¼, to 90; Consumers' Gas of Chicago 1sts 2, to 77; Hocking Valley 5s 1¼, to 88; Detroit Union Gas consol 5s 2, to 45; Houston and Texas Central 1sts 4, to 104; and Kansas Pacific consols 5, to 70. Louisville, St. Louis and Texas 1sts brought 58 against 80 the last sale.

WHAT TRADE GOSSIPS WERE SAYING.

Interesting Bits of Information Picked Up on the Floor of the Exchange.

The grain and provision market did not show the animation of the day before and the volume of speculative business was reduced. Wheat prices were low, but investors were cautious about taking hold, and there were many growls at the inaction of the Senate, which apparently had an influence in speculative circles. The signal service map showed excellent weather for curing and harvesting corn. The feeling after the close was steady. Puts on December wheat sold at 63⅛@63⅜c and were finally 63¼. Calls sold at 64⅛c and at 64¼c, and late in the afternoon were selling at the range. Puts on May corn sold at 41¾@41⅜c and calls at 41½@41⅝c.

Estimated receipts for today: Wheat, 143 cars; corn, 525 cars; oats, 264 cars; and 24,000 hogs.

According to the Liverpool Corn Trade News the continental wheat stocks increased nearly 8,000,000 bu during September. The total stocks the first of this month were placed at 32,956,000 bu against 25,024,000 bu Sept. 1.

Some of the private wires talked about the possibility of Congress adjourning without definite action on the silver repeal bill. The wheat crowd had this, and taking the cue from the late weakness in Wall street sold moderately.

The local stock of flaxseed in regular houses at the close of last week was 418,280 bu, an increase of 1,125 bu during the week, against a decrease of 213,652 bu a year ago, with the local stock then at 1,506,460.

New York day at the Fair has a good many friends on the board. A petition was circulated and generally signed asking that the Board of Trade may stand adjourned in honor of that occasion from next Friday night to Monday morning. Owing to the lack of a quorum at the directors' meeting in the afternoon no definite action was taken.

While the American exports of wheat have shown a falling off recently other producing countries seem to be pouring an increased quantity into Western Europe. The shipments from India, from the Baltic Sea, and other ports not American were 4,264,000 bu, or a million more than the exports from the same ports the week before. Locally there was a little doing in round lots, and shipping houses reported fair inquiries looking toward business. Harper worked 50,000 bu No. 2 spring presumably for export account, and there were sales of scattered "fives" of red wheat of the under grades. Vessel room was taken for 175,000 bu.

At the beginning of the present crop year the visible supply of wheat was 63,316,000 bu, against 24,262,000 bu July 1, 1892, or larger by 39,000,000 bu. Now the visible supply is 65,239,000 bu, against 55,090,000 bu a year ago, or larger by only 10,149,000 bu. In other words, due to the fact that the public stocks are increasing but slowly compared with last year, the "visible of a year ago is creeping up on the visible of this year." During the first fifteen weeks of 1892 crop year the visible supply more than doubled; during the last fifteen weeks the public stocks have increased less than 2,000,000 bu. Those friendly to wheat are viewing with no particular apprehension the free movement in the Northwest. They argue that while deliveries are now so liberal they must in the nature of things be just so much smaller in the spring. Minneapolis and Duluth yesterday reported 928 cars against 1,000 for the corresponding period a year ago.

A TAME SET OF MARKETS.

No Good Buying in the Wheat Pit—Corn Steady and Provisions Lower.

Wheat bulls strived vainly for a maintenance of the strength developed the day before. The demand for account of shorts was less pronounced; some of those who had covered the day before turned sellers, and the news was not of such a character as to induce buying of prominence. Cables reported decidedly large exports to Western Europe from countries other than America, foreign markets were irregular, and receipts at primary points continued liberal. It looked as though the New York talent was endeavoring to work the local trade, making a show of buying while at the same time they were sellers through commission houses. Locally Brosseau and Wadhams were prominent on the buying side, and Pardridge, Chaplin, and Kennett-Hopkins sold. After a comparatively steady opening free offerings carried December to 63⅛c, followed by a recovery to 64⅛c, on the posting of the clearances which were increased to 525,000 bu wheat and flour, chiefly from New York. The price would not hold, however, as the support was but feeble at the best, and some of the bears began to talk of the possible adjournment of Congress without definite action on the silver question. The close was about ¼c lower for the day at 64⅛c for December, and 71¼c for May. The Northwest had 928 cars and Chicago 332, with the local out-inspection meager at 17,215 bu. Receipts at all primary points were 1,118,941 bu and shipments less than half that sum, 421,188 bu. The local stock of contract grades increased 149,000 bu last week to 17,195,000 bu. Spot wheat at Liverpool was lower, while futures were ¼@½d higher; Berlin was up 1@1¼ marks and the continent otherwise weak. Outside domestic markets were fairly steady. There was not enough cash business to encourage holders. A round lot of No. 2 spring was sold, and cars in store went at 56½@63c for No. 3 with No. 3 red at 57@59c. Free on board sales were at 54@56c for No. 4 red winter, 57@59c for No. 3 do, 58½@60c for No. 2 hard, and 56½@63c for No. 3 spring.

Corn had few features, ruling nearly steady within ½c range and closing just where it did the night before. There was nothing really weak about the market in spite of the big receipts, and the support came chiefly from the shipping demand and from the statistical position. Buyers on Eastern account were again well represented and readily absorbed the offerings. The local stock sheet showed a decrease in contract grades of 460,000 bu during the week, placing them at 2,135,000 bu. The receipts slightly overran the estimate, and 724 of the 1,094 cars were contract or better. The out-inspection was 367,579 bu, and the good character of the cash demand was proved finally when charters were reported for 816,000 bu, making more than 1,000,000 bu for the two days to be loaded out. Speculative trade was scalping and inconsequential in shaping prices. May sold at 41⅛@41⅝c and closed at 41⅜@41½c with November at 38⅛c and No. 2 or October, 37¼@37⅜c. Receipts at primary points aggregated 742,632 bu and shipments 250,404 bu. Exports were 186,000 bu. Liverpool was 1@2 farthings higher and outside markets steady. Store sales were at 37¼@37⅜c for No. 2, 38⅜@38½c for No. 2 yellow, 36¾@37c for No. 3, and 37⅛@37¼c for do yellow. Free on board sales were at 35½@36¾c for No. 4, and 37¼@37½c for No. 3.

Oats ruled firm with a good business transacted. There was considerable buying on New York orders and by shorts. The fact that receipts were over 80 cars less than the estimate, taken with the relatively moderate amount of contract stocks and the large withdrawals from store at 79,000 bu, contributed much to the firmness. The estimate for today was moderate at 264 cars. Noble, Jones, Ross, and Baldwin were the leading buyers of May. In that future a liberal business was transacted with an advance of ¼@⅜c scored at the close, the range being 30½@31⅛c. November sold up to 27c and rested at 26⅞c, or ⅛c higher. December ranged at 27⅛@27¼c, and closed at a former price of 27⅛c. Samples were in good demand and steady under ample offerings. Free on board sales were at 27@28⅛c for No. 3 white, 26⅛@26⅞c for No. 2, and 29½@30c for do white.

In the rye market offerings were exceedingly light, and while a better demand was apparent only a light business was done. The market ruled firm at former prices. For No. 2 in store 42c was bid and no sales, with 43c paid free on board and 42c billed through. December was 45c bid and January 47c bid. Barley was dominated by nearly the same conditions as on the previous day. Medium quality was in moderate demand and weak, with the offerings liberal and sales at 34@43c. Choice was again in light supply and steady. Good to choice ranged at 44@57c, and to arrive lots of fancy barley went at 58@60c.

Millstuffs were steady under a moderate demand and light offerings, with sales of bran at $10.75@11.00 and middlings at $11.50.

Provisions were unsupported and the market was generally lower, closing near the bottom. The feeling was easy and the price readily responded to a 10-cent decline in hogs in the absence of any buying orders of consequence. The packers did not sell much and at the close showed a little disposition to bid mildly for stuff, but evidently did not want it. Hog receipts were slightly greater than expected, the price was lower, and Liverpool product was quoted 6d@1s lower. Interest centered in January product and a fair business was accomplished in pork. Opening 15c lower at $14.20 it went to $14.05 and rested 25c lower for the day at $14.10, with October at $16.25 bid. January lard sold at $8.27½@8.35 and closed 12½c lower at $8.30, with November at $9.10 and cash lots scarce at $9.50@9.55 for prime. January ribs were slow at the decline, closing 15c lower at $7.30, after selling 5c above and below that. October sold at $8.40@8.50, and rested at $8.42½. Domestic markets were weak, and the shipping demand for product was just fair. Cash sales included 50,000 lbs green hams at $7.75, 85,000 lbs and 800 tcs lard, part at $9.52½@9.80, and 100 tcs and 50,000 lbs sweet pickled hams, part $9.50@9.75.

A liberal business was done in the flaxseed market and prices were steady and unchanged. Offerings of cash were less free and found a ready outlet. No. 1 on track sold mainly at $1.02@1.02¼, with $1.02½ paid for choice lots. Futures opened easy but closed firm under a good demand and moderate offerings. October sold at $1.02@1.02¼, closing with $1.02¼ bid. December ranged at $1.04@1.04¼ and closed with sellers at $1.04½. For May $1.10¼ was paid early and $1.10½ bid at the close. Receipts, 121 cars; shipments, 110,000 bu. Timothy seed was easy under liberal offerings, which were slow in selling. However, prices showed no material change. Common to fair went at $3.00@3.10, good at $3.15@3.20, closing at the inside figure, and choice at $3.40. No business was reported in futures. Clover-seed was nominally unchanged. Fair to choice sold at $8 50@9.20, with prime quotably $9.00, December $9.15, and January $9.30.

STREET PRODUCE.

Trade Only Fair—Dairy Products Dull—Fruits Higher.

With the exception of grapes, which were slow, fruits on South Water street sold well at higher prices. The arrivals were again moderate. Poultry was plentiful, but a better inquiry was noted, and prices ruled firmer. Butter was exceedingly dull, except on local account. Today's receipts are estimated at 25,000 hogs, 18,000 cattle, and 11,000 sheep, against 21,392 hogs, 18,157 cattle, and 12,171 sheep one week ago, and 21,723 hogs, 17,244 cattle, and 11,507 sheep one year ago. Monday's receipts of cattle were the largest of the year, and the receipts of sheep about 3,300 larger than the previous largest receipts on record.

CATTLE—The general cattle market ruled 10c lower again. The choicest native steers sold almost steady, while the commoner grades of natives and rangers were 15c lower than Monday's sharp decline. Most grades of cattle are 30@40c lower than ten days ago and the present feeling is weak, especially for all half-fat cattle. Quotations:

Dry Goods—Previous monotony of quiet in the dry goods market is unbroken. Orders are coming along by mail and wire in a fairly steady manner for small lots. Negotiations for quantities are less frequent than a fortnight ago and are exceptional. Cotton goods continue to be the larger feature of trade, other fabrics being extremely quiet. Cottons are very well held, accumulations having been mostly cleared up. On certain low grades, as print cloths, prices are firmer and a fraction higher. Prints are in moderate request and ginghams in fair demand. The Parkhill book-fold ginghams are now 6¾c. Prices of cotton generally are unchanged from last month, but their position is favorable for higher prices when affairs become more definitely settled. Articles for spring are very slow in getting under way, and buyers seem likely to hold back as long as they can under the circumstances. The jobbing trade was moderate. There will be a large auction sale of silks Wednesday by the Phœnix company.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 17.—Wheat—Put on a bold front this morning and traders became filled with the idea that the market was in for an upturn and they fell into line, when suddenly a cyclonic wave struck quotations and just at the close there was a tumble and all the ground gained was lost. Traders are entirely at sea in the matter of markets. They have no positive opinions and they engage in trading with no certainty as to the outcome. The situation in Washington is a daily menace to business and no one feels that a legitimate grain situation can prevail against the actions in the Senate. The closing break today was not fully understood by local traders, who followed the lead of Chicago without being advised as to the cause of the sudden break. But there are hints that demoralization in the New York stock market had a good deal to do with frightening holders of wheat in the larger markets. The first cables were better and these, with fair New York clearances, gave a better spirit to trading this morning. The opening prices were the lowest. The tendency was for an advance from the first until within ten minutes of the close. The greatest firmness was about noon when there had been a good advance made over prices yesterday. December opened at 58⅛c and closed at 58⅛c, the same as yesterday, but it sold up to 58⅞c just before the break. May opened at 64⅞@65c, and closed at 65⅛c, after selling to 65⅝c, and against close last night at 65⅛c. The trade was largely scalping and a fair business was done. There was a strong demand for cash wheat and the advance over yesterday was about 1c. The principal buying was credited to the elevators. The millers bought freely. No. 1 Northern sold at 58@58½c principally. No. 2 Northern went at 57c, against 55c yesterday. Of course the growing strength of futures while this trading was in progress influenced purchases materially. The trade has felt for a few days that wheat was so low that a reaction must come and so any move in that direction had been accepted as a coming fulfillment of the prophecies. There was a liberal sale of barley at about steady prices. Oats are easy. Receipts of wheat were 348 cars. Flour—First patents, $2.50@3.90; bakers', $1.75@2.10; low grades, $1.20@1.45. Bran, $9.00@9.25; shorts, $10.50@11.00; market easy and demand good. Corn—Market steady; receipts light; No. 3, 37c; No. 3 yellow, 37c. Oats—No. 3 white, 24½c; No. 3, 24½c.

Duluth, Minn., Oct 17.—Wheat—The market was decidedly improved today and showed a healthy advance. It opened steady and unchanged from yesterday's close and ruled active, with large trading in both cash and "to arrive" wheat and in all the futures. With the exception of one weak spot about 11 a. m., when May wheat slumped ⅛c in sympathy with a similar break at Chicago, the market was a firm and advancing one during the morning. The afternoon session was easier, with declining tendency, with fair trading in December and May wheat at 1⅛@1⅛c below the outside prices. The close was firm at ⅛c higher than yesterday for cash wheat, unchanged for December, and ⅛c lower for May. Following were the closing prices: No. 1 hard, cash, 60⅛c; October, 60⅛c; December, 61⅛c; May, 68⅛c. No. 1 Northern, cash, 59⅛c; October, 59⅛c; December, 60⅛c; May, 67⅛c. No. 2 Northern, cash, 56⅛c; No. 3, 51⅛c. Rejected, 44⅛c. On track—No. 1 Northern to arrive, 59⅛c. Rye, 41c. Flax, 98c. Barley, 39@45c. Car inspection today, 770. Receipts—Wheat, 409,663 bu; shipments, 161,213 bu. Cars on track, 581; last year, 493.

Kansas City, Mo., Oct 17.—Grain—Carlots of wheat were ⅛c to 1c higher today than yesterday. Demand to cover short sales was brisk and receipts were light. Soft wheat was no higher. The offerings were much larger than usual. There has not been a day this year before when the proportion of soft wheat in the receipts was as large as today. Shippers bid 56c river for round lots of No. 2 hard, but no sales were reported. Receipts today were 68 cars, a year ago 306 cars. Oats continued in good demand and prices are firm. Receipts today 14 cars, a year ago 7 cars. Corn locally was ⅛c to ½c higher and the demand was considerably better than it has been. Shippers did not raise their bids. White corn was scarce and in demand. Receipts today 23 cars, a year ago 8 cars. Receipts of grain today were 68 cars of wheat, 23 cars of corn, 14 cars of oats, 3 cars of flax, and 13 cars of hay. The elevators took in today 67,951 bu of wheat and 7,869 bu of corn, and 531 bu of rye; loaded out 32,918 bu of wheat and 550 bu of corn, leaving in store 496,865 bu of wheat, 26,241 bu of corn, 16,931 bu of oats, and 11,677 bu of rye.

SMALL TRADERS SHORT OF STOCK.

They Expect Only Bad News to Come from Washington.

New York, Oct. 17.—[Special.]—There was weakness in the stock market throughout today and quotations generally are lower than they opened. There is in this, however, no especial encouragement for bear traders, considering the fact that the short interest has been much increased within the last few days. The news from Washington is so absolute that repeal is doomed that some sort of good news from there is about due. All the little fellows are short of stocks on the theory that only discouraging developments can come from Washington. Confidence of this sort generally proves expensive. The money market shows no change. Money on call is a drug. Money on time is not to be had at all except by pledging as collateral gilt edged securities having an immediate market. The cancellation of clearing-house certificates continues. Merchants are as short of accommodations as ever. Meanwhile the government gold reserve is down to where it was in the panic of July when every one was worrying over it. The fact that money is accumulating in New York banks is hardly likely to insure a buoyant stock market. Veterans of Wall street remember that after the panic of 1873 there was a similar big accumulation of funds here, but that none the less the market prices went much lower than they did in the times of the panic itself. Each day brings evidence of restricted trade throughout the country. Railway earnings do not improve. A few of the industrials are in close control, but the air is so full of bull points on these things that the collapse of their quotations ought not to be surprising. Sugar is undoubtedly earning lots of money. So far as whisky is concerned any movement in it must partake less of business than of bunko.

Tired of Kansas, Coming East to Farm.

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 14.—[Special to St. Louis Globe-Democrat.]—Sixteen German families, tired of Kansas, arrived in Baltimore last night bound for the Eastern shore in search of pleasanter homes. They came from the country around Brainerd, in Butler County, Kas. The tract on which they will locate is the old Henry estate and consists of about 1,500 acres, which was bought recently by Mr. Burkart. The land is to be divided into twenty, forty, and eighty acre farms and sold to settlers at $12 an acre, and they will have ten years in which to pay for it. No payments are to be made until the newcomers are well settled. The colonists are originally from Southern Russia, although they are Germans and Lutherans. They form the advance guard of a large body of their fellow countrymen now in Kansas and in Russia. Within a month a party of about twenty families, accompanied by the Rev. Henry Gyr, their pastor, will come in from Kansas, and a party of 100 families is expected shortly afterward from Germany.

INSURANCE AFFAIRS.

MORE CARE TO BE USED WITH RISKS INVOLVING ELECTRICITY.

Underwriters Say There Is Much Carelessness in the Installation of Electric Wires and They Look on Electric Light as an Increased Hazard—Suspension of People's Insurance Company Becomes an Assured Fact and Policyholders Are Warned to Surrender Their Papers.

The Chicago Board of Underwriters has decided that hereafter the introduction of electric light into a building or electric power or any change in electrical connections must be approved first by the insurance companies or the policy will be vitiated. Policies always have had in them the clause that "if the hazard be increased by any means within the control or knowledge of the insured" the policy becomes void.

When electricity first began to be introduced commercially permission was asked of the underwriters by those people who desired to use the new method of lighting. The matter was considered then and the underwriters came to the conclusion that as electricity was, in their opinion, less hazardous than gas there was no necessity for obtaining permission for its introduction. Ever since that the business has gone on on that theory and the insured has been free to introduce electric light or electric motive power, or to make such changes in electric wires as he saw fit, without any references to the underwriters. An order will be formulated shortly which will make this freedom in connection with electricity no longer possible. The underwriters say that with the greater competition which has come in the electrical business there has come much carelessness in the installation of electric wires, and that while they once considered electric light much safer than gas, they now look upon it decidedly in the light of increasing the hazard, and they propose to protect themselves by the new order which they have just decided to issue.

Should Surrender the Policies.

Now that the suspension of the People's Insurance company of New Hampshire is an absolute fact, and it has been decided there are not assets enough either to pay losses or to return unearned premiums on risks, it stands people in hand who hold policies of that company to surrender them immediately in case they have other insurance upon the same risk. In case of a loss the insurance which they hold in the People's would be counted up along with all the other insurance they might have on the risk, and the other companies would take no cognizance of the fact that the proportion due from the People's could not be collected. In such a case anyone holding the policy would be decidedly worse off than if he did not have it, for the fact that he held it would cut down the proportion he would have saved from the solvent company, while it gives no protection. There were a great many cases of this kind in connection with the State Investment company, which failed some time ago. People who did not surrender their policies were considerable losers in consequence.

Mr. Durfee Admits Another Company.

The Saginaw Valley Insurance company has been admitted to do business in Illinois. Comments of some of the La Salle street agents yesterday were in the direction of indicating that they thought Mr. Durfee had not exercised his usual conservative judgment in this case.

Omaha Companies Advance Rates.

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 17.—At noon today all fire insurance companies doing business in Omaha and South Omaha made an advance in rates of 20 per cent. The action is based on the inadequacy of the fire protection in the two cities and the operation of the valued policy law.

Here to Visit the Fair, Etc.

President Goodrich and Secretary Post of the Niagara Insurance company are in Chicago, and agents are wondering if there is not something more important than World's Fair attractions that bring them here just now.

Cost of Having Good Money.

Chicago, Oct. 16.—[Editor of The Tribune.] After reading your reply to William G. Roberts, under the heading of "Cost of Having Good Money," it occurred to me that you would be doing your readers an everlasting favor by introducing a series of elementary lectures (or issuing a pamphlet to sell for a nominal sum) on our money, written in the simplest possible form, and employing the same language and illustrations which you would were you instructing a class of school girls.

I am sure this would be a benefit to many of your younger readers, and am not sure that it would not be beneficial to many of the bald-heads on the front rows. And who knows but that it might be the means of saving some of our Senators?

Plea of a Small Stockholder.

Chicago, Oct. 16.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Having secured a liberal admission for the children to the Fair, why not go a step further and do a just act with the poor man or woman who has contributed $10, $20, or $30 at a time when they were appealed to to help raise the required amount and help secure the Exposition to Chicago? It is a notorious fact that 100,000 free passes had been distributed by the World's Fair directors to the rich and to people who have done nothing for the enterprise, and could afford to pay the admission price; but the poor people who have parted with their money to help the enterprise along, they are entitled to no consideration now when they are out of work and without any means. They may come down to the park and look at the high fence. The noble directors reply to this question that the poor man is no more entitled to a free pass than is Potter Palmer, who has subscribed thousands of dollars; but, sir, Potter Palmer and other rich contributors have derived a benefit from the Fair. The wealthy contributors could afford it, while the poor man, after having helped build the great Exposition, cannot even gaze on the great wonder. Give the small stockholder a chance. You might on another occasion call on him again. You might want his assistance, and he would respond just as the World's Fair directors will respond.

A Small Stockholder,
Who has paid $30, but who cannot at this time afford to pay 50 cents admission.

Financial Success of the Fair.

Chicago, Oct. 14.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Much unfavorable comment was made in the East regarding the charge of 50 cents to the Columbian Fair and the attendance at Paris, 28,149,353 (which included deadheads), was pointed at because of the 20 cents admission. But Chicago knew what it was about. The wages paid to the builders of the Columbian Fair were more than double what was paid in Paris, and this difference alone means some $2,000,000 extra cost. Then every one knows of the enmity and jealousy displayed in several important sections of this country. Congress hammered it, the railroads flayed it, the innumerable strikes delayed its completion, a tremendous panic dashed against it, storms beat against it, and every known disaster and discouragement save an epidemic threatened it, but Chicago grit and blessed Chicago weather, a Chicago turnout, and an amazing year of Chicago healthfulness carried the Fair to a grand closing finish.

And the result? With 180 days of an average deadheadness of 35,000, or 6,300,000, to which add the probable paid aggregate attendance of at least 20,000,000, and we have a grand total of 26,300,000 against the Paris attendance of 28,149,353, and a grand total of more than twice the amount of cash taken in by the Columbian Fair from attendance alone. This amazing total will be swelled enormously by sums received from the concessionnaires.

G. S. Williams.

A Thoughtless Sister.

Mrs. Getthere—"Such impudence! Here's Sister Matilda proposing to come here with both her children and make us a long visit."

Mr. G.—"But you spent half the summer at her home in the country, and you had four children and a nurse."

Mrs. G.—"A different thing altogether. She has no servants, but she knows perfectly well that we have several and that every one of them will get mad and leave if the family is increased."—New York Weekly.

Her Deduction.

Mrs. Bings—"Mrs. Nexdoor told me you once wanted to marry that Miss Upton. She wouldn't have you, I presume."

Mr. Bings—"Did Mrs. Nexdoor say Miss Upton refused me?"

Mrs. Bings—"No, she merely remarked that Miss Upton had always been a very sensible girl."—New York Weekly.

A Practical Little Miss.

Little Girl—"Mamma, we is goin' to have a church fair to get money for the heathen."

Mamma—"That's a lovely idea, my angel, but what can you get to sell?"

Little Girl—"O, we is goin' to have the people bring their own things an' sell them to theirselves an' give us the money."—Good News.

She Isn't Left.

She didn't catch on in the sweet June's prime
With the other girls, and her face grew sober,
But she hustled around in the summer time,
And she's one of the fair brides of October.
